Bergland claims concern over farm size

KANSAS CITY, Mo., – Concerned over the trend toward fewer but larger farms, Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland has called for a national dialogue to discuss the future of American agriculture and the family farm.

In remarks prepared for delivery before the National Farmers Union's annual convention here, Bergland said he does not want to see and America "where a hand ful of giant operators own, manage and control the entire food production system."

"Yet that is where we are headed," he siad, "if we don't act now."

He said control of production is becoming more and more concentrated on fewer and fewer farms, noting that today 200,000 of the nation's 2.7 million farms control nearly two-thirds of all farm output.

Bergland said the administration's present food and farm policies and programs which serve a production system that is the envy of the world are "remarkedly well geared to the realities of this era."

He said the U.S. farm production system has not only fed America and the rest of the world at reasonable costs, but has been a stabilizing influence in global politics and the world economy, and generally has yielded a fair return to farmers.

But Bergland questioned if

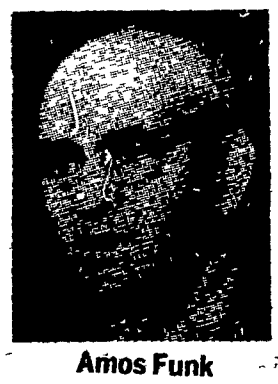
Deed restriction plan goes to Harrisburg

LANCASTER — Trying to get a unique farmland preservation plan into effect in Lancaster County, a well-known farmer and conservationist is taking his deed restriction idea to Harrisburg on Tuesday. Amos Funk, a vegetable farmer from Millersville, says enbabling legislation is needed before further action can be taken on the deed restriction idea.

Funk, who has a long history of involvement in land use planning, is one of several men to have developed the concept. The deed restriction is a voluntary plan whereby a farmer can state that he prefers to keep his land in farming. The county will be the enforcing body.

Even though much of the framework has already been set up, nothing official can take place until an okay is received from Harrisburg. Funk says he'd like to see the plan go into effect, noting that the present county commissioners support the deed restriction plan. After the elections, that may not be the case with incoming public officials, he fears.



Amos Funk

Funk and other members of the Lancaster County Farmland Preservation Task Force are concerned about stemming the tide of developments taking place in the Garden Spot. Noting that he is not against growth, but favors guided growth, Funk would like to see some 278,000 Lancaster County acres placed in agricultural preserve districts.

Lebanon Extension cited for quality

By DIETER KRIEG

SCHAEFFERSTOWN — The Lebanon County Cooperative Extension Service last week looked back to an innovative year of progress while focusing attention to the needs of the future. The occasion was their 62nd annual meeting and banquet. It was marked by a variety of presentations, including a report by Marion Deppen from Extension Service headquarters at Penn State University.

Among the more innovative achievements of 1978 were a fire school and the introduction of minicomputers to farm management.

While several staff members of the Lebanon County Extension Service gave reviews of last year's activities, Deppen was perhaps the one who gave the best-fitting summary. He said: "You should talk about the Cooperative Extension Service to everyone. The watchword here in Lebanon County is quality."

Marion Deppen

"The Extension Service is the most effective and largest informal education program in the entire world," the Penn State employee stated.

The story of Extension isn't all sunshine, however, Deppen revealed. "The appropriation of public monies per student is less at Penn State than at any other institution receiving such funds," said Deppen. Sixty-seven positions within the Extension Service have been collapsed due to lack of funding. Another 15 positions remain open - possibly to be

Eastern looks forward to brighter days

By DIETER KRIEG

BIRD-IN-HAND — Members of Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative were given optimistic reports by officers and delegates when they met here at the Bird-in-Hand Restaurant on Monday evening.

Jim Spear, a former president of the Syracuse,N.Y. - based dairy co-op, emphasized early in his remarks that Eastern is and always has been a cooperative that is dedicated to taking care of the farmer. He noted that when independent handlers went out of business, Eastern stepped in to take care of non-members, as well as members. "Some other cooperatives haven't even taken care of their own members," the former executive claimed. He now works closely with membership.

Franklin Wagner

Franklin Wagner, District 8 director, also had complimentary messages, although four major concerns were expressed early in his comments.

His concerns include the new Farm Bill which will be written in October. He is urging farmers to get in touch with congressmen to let them know "what you want in the bill."

"It behooves us to have input into the Farm Bill," said Wagner, noting that Eastern is already engaged in submitting its suggestions. For example, the 6000-member dairy cooperative has gone on record for favoring that

York legislator addresses farm problems

Bill Goodling

By JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

SHREWSBURY - Legislation, proposed and current, was the key topic under study as the York County Farmers Association held their Spring meeting last Friday evening at the Shrewsbury Fire Hall.

Over 200 members and guests turned out to hear guest speaker Congressman William Goodling, who spent a good-sized portion of his talk on the energy situation. He warned that the "American way of life" is becoming difficult to maintain and that the next five years might be especially devastating to energy-intensive farmers.

"The energy crisis is here and it is real," emphasized the congressman. "Even if gas would go to ten dollars a gallon, there won't suddenly be an abundance of it. We will be dependent on and at the mercy of our foreign suppliers just as long as we don't produce our own or find alternate energy sources."

Goodling, who serves on international committees and subcommittees, admits that he is embarrassed sometimes when he attends world meetings and has to face statistics that show the United States uses up to 900 per cent more energy by ratio comparison than the "country sitting next to me."

"And, it's not just that 40 to 45 per cent of foreign oil supplies that we depend on, either," he added, stressing

Do you like to shop around for pullets?

On what do you base your decisions? The quoted 20 week old price?

Here's a few pertinent questions to ask yourself about your last delivery:

1. Did the quoted price include delivery?
2. Were the birds fed to optimum body weight?
3. How many pounds of feed did they consume to reach 50% production?
4. At what age did they reach 50% large eggs?

Once you know these facts you are ready to do some intelligent buying.

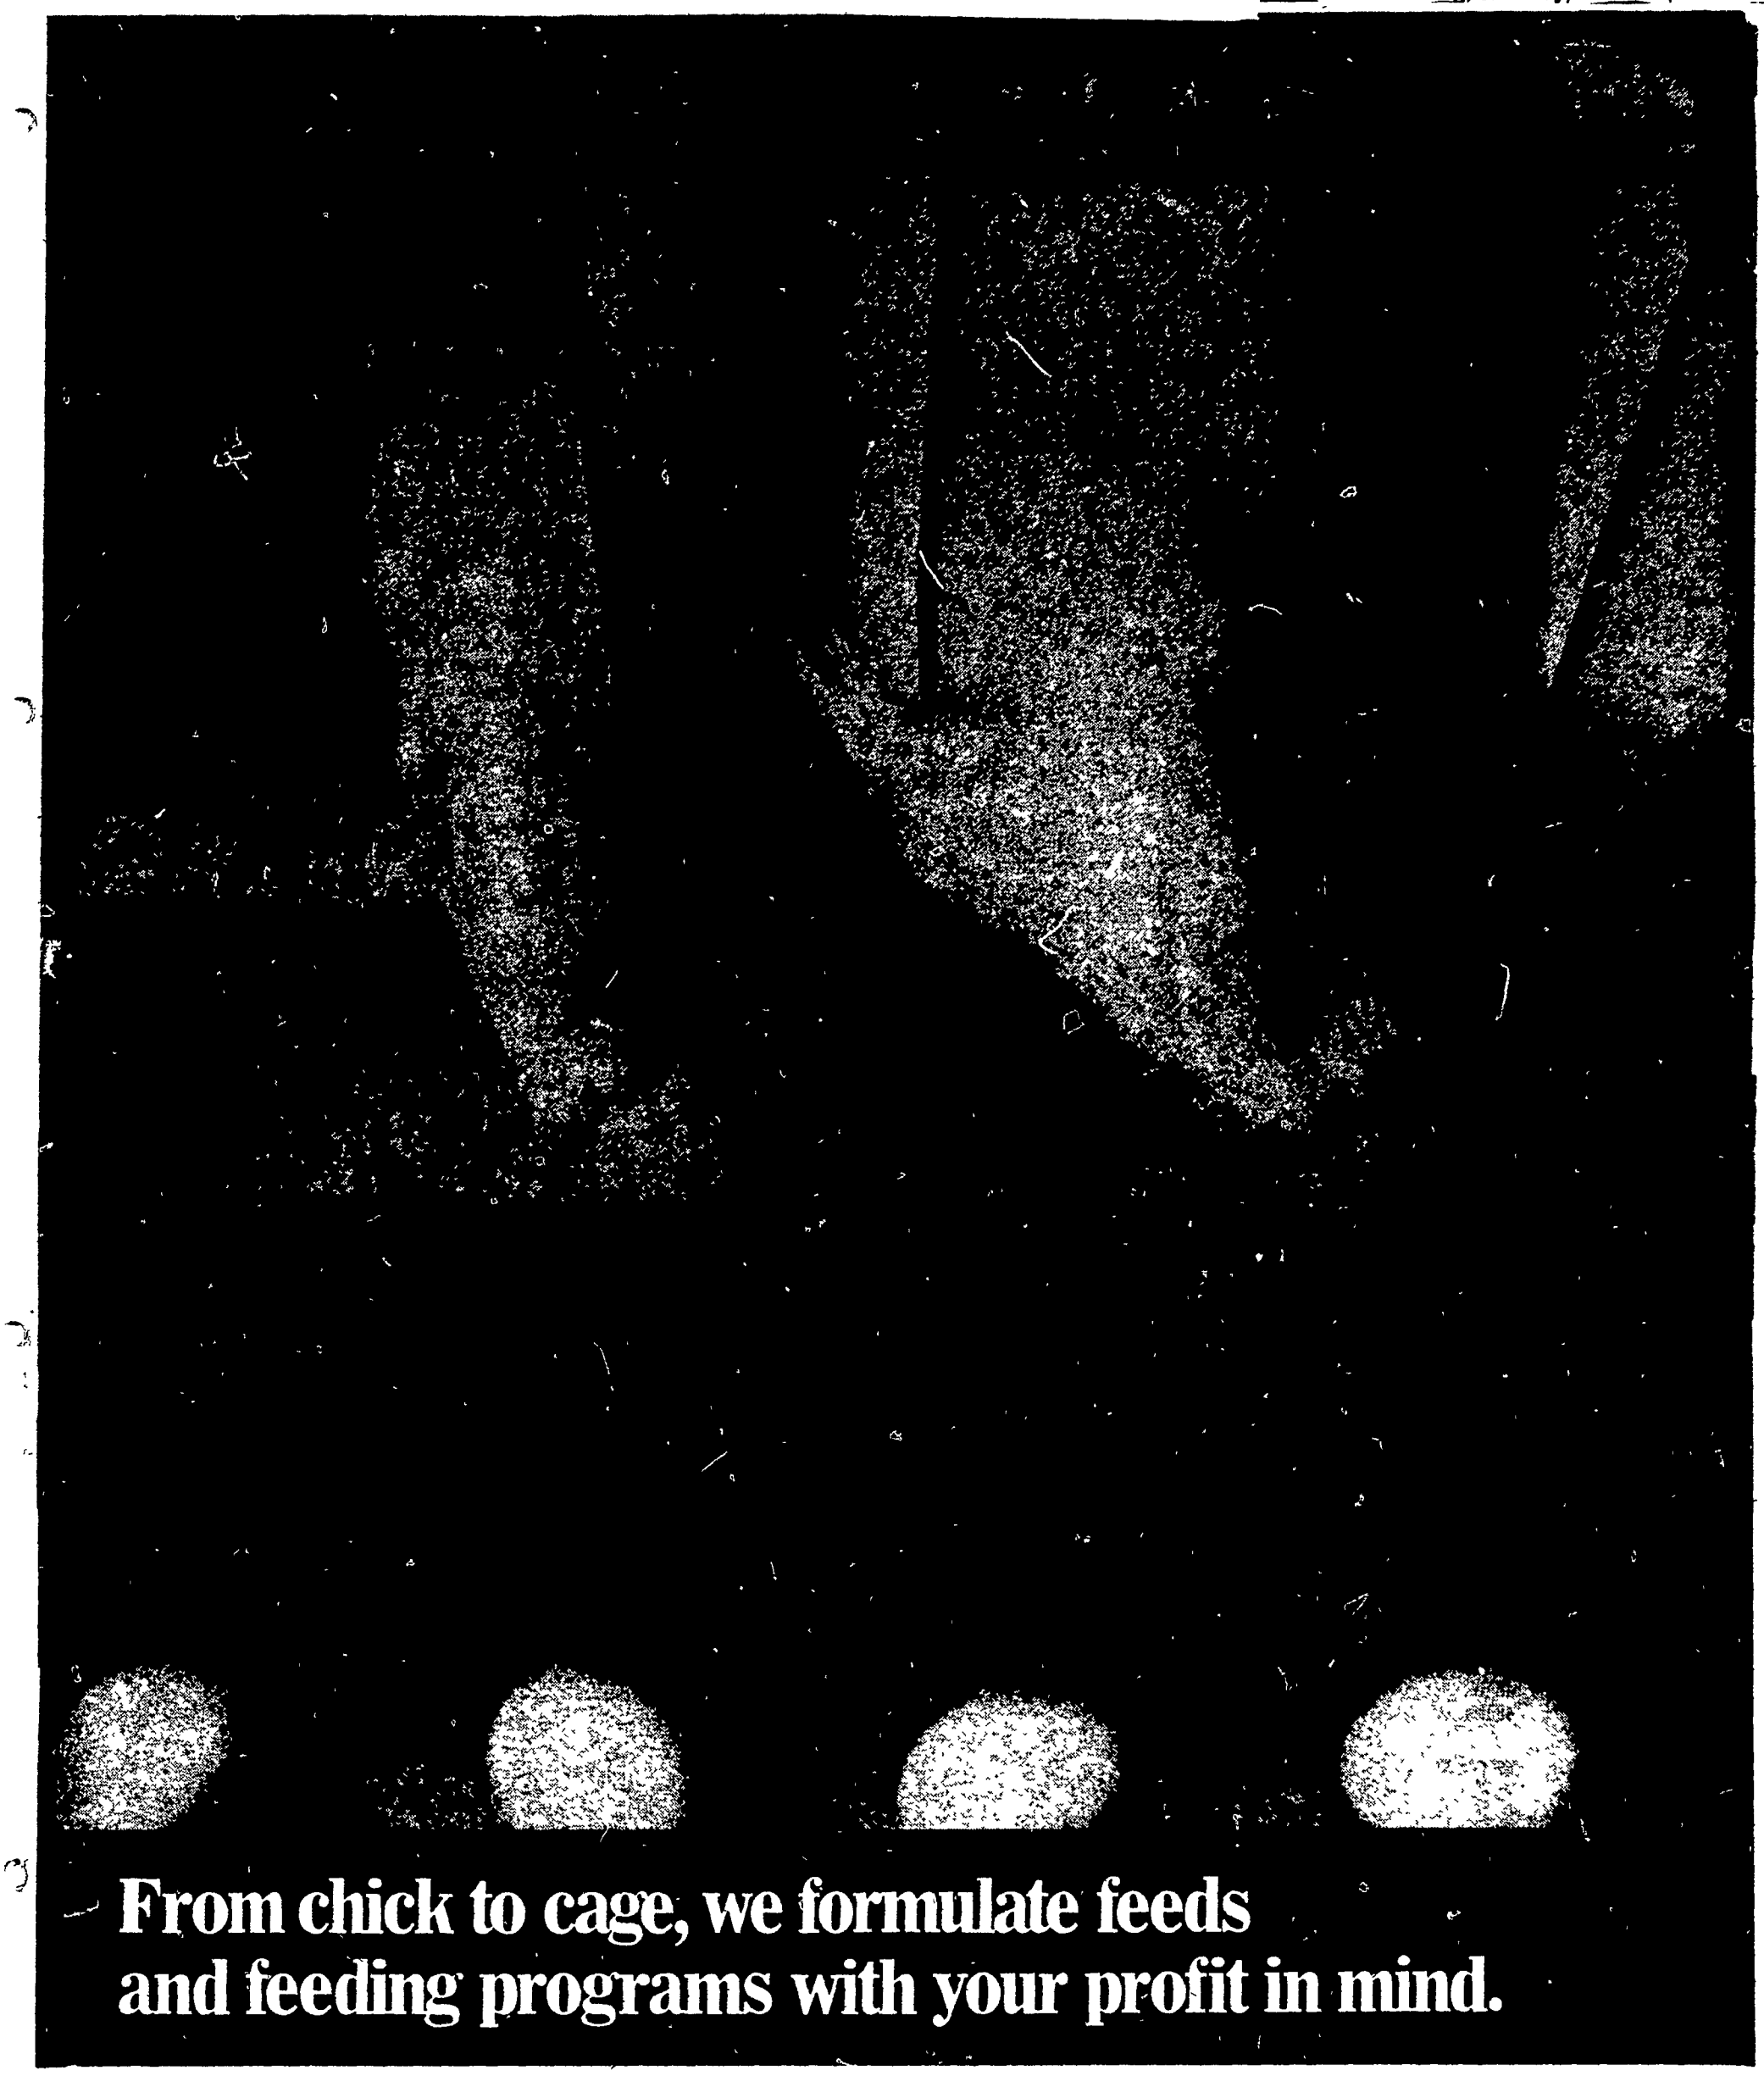
HUBBARD WHITE MT. BROILERS



From chick to cage, we formulate feeds and feeding programs with your profit in mind.

Do you have an open mind?

Are you ready to devote an hour or two of your time planning for a more profitable future?

If your answer to both questions is yes, you owe it to yourself to read what we have to say.

Unlike many other feed companies, we develop custom feeding programs for each individual operation.

It all starts with a Pennfield man reviewing your operation with you. Your goals. Your records. The health and overall condition of your birds. Whether you grow chicks or buy started pullets. The type of equipment you use. The production potential of your flock. Your management practices. And other factors that have an effect on your profit potential.

With the aid of computers, we then design a feeding program specifically tailored to your birds needs—a program that can improve your profits by reducing expenses, increasing production, or both.

For example, when we recommended producers switch from a competitive 18% protein feed to an optimum-nutrient density Pennfield feed, there was no loss in production—and this one recommendation has saved as much as $12,000 a year depending on flock size.

There is no cost—or obligation—for this unique service. But you must take the first step by writing or phoning us. Do it today.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS By DIETER KRIEG, EDITOR

The machinery expo has great potential

There is no doubt in my mind that the Pennsylvania Farm Machinery Exposition is a good idea.

More than that, it's a fantastic innovation with tremendous potential.

Reasons? There are several.

To begin with, the January Farm Show can neither accomodate all the exhibitors who want space, or all the crowds who want in. Something had to be done. The Machinery Expo is a step in the right direction towards solving that problem, especially in view of the fact that a new and larger Farm Show Building isn't likely to come in the near future.

Compared to the Farm Show with its mammoth crowds and poor ventilation, the Machinery Exposition was a breath of fresh air. Personally, I don't care much for masses of people shuffling along on littered walkways and having to breathe more dust than air. The Farm Show is interesting enough, that's true, and the exhibits are great, but the conditions are far from comfortable.

In contrast, the Machinery Exposition offered a pleasant atmosphere in more ways than one. People weren't bumping along elbow to elbow and the air was fit to breathe. Also, the place was comparatively silent. That too was good news. Furthermore, unlike at the Farm Show, a person could walk up to any exhibit he pleased and spend some time inspecting, talking, and inquiring. It was indeed a refreshing experience. It was great, and with the proper care from here on in, it should be the up and coming thing for Pennsylvania agriculture.

California's equipment show started with fewer exhibitors than our Expo, but it is now one of the largest in the world.

Six weeks ago I had the opportunity to visit one of the largest agricultural exhibitions in the nation. That experience lends weight to my belief that Pennsylvania can have a great machinery exposition.

The California Farm Equipment Show and International Exposition, one of the largest farm shows in the nation, is one fantastic agricultural extravaganza. The success I saw there is inspirational. They started their show in 1968 with 157 exhibitors and some 28,000 visitors. By comparison, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture did better with the number of exhibitors in Harrisburg for the first ever Pennsylvania Farm Machinery Show. And the visitor numbers will grow.

This year, the Tulare show boasted over 800 exhibitors and more than 100,000 visitors. It was strictly an agricultural show, held at the 20-acre Tulare County Fairgrounds The weather was very pleasant too, which is a help for any such exposition.

Granted, California's Winter weather is far better than ours, and an outdoor show allows for a lot more innovation.

On the other hand, Harrisburg has a perfect location to represent the vast agricultural potential of the Northeast and Middle Atlantic Area. We're close to markets, surrounded for hundreds of miles by productive farmland and the highway network is adequate. The Pennsylvania Machinery Exposition has a lot of merit.

Then there is also the question of money. The Farm Show Complex needs it, and this is one way of getting a lot of it. It's a good point to consider when evaluating the worthiness of a farm machinery exposition.

This year - the inaugural year for the Machinery Exposition - more than $101,000 in exhibitor, parking, and entry fees were collected. That's a sizable chunk of money which can't be overlooked when discussing the Exposition.

Last, but certainly not least, the opinions of exhibitors point to the need and desireabilty of a second show for Pennsylvania agriculture.

As I see it, there are a lot of good reasons to make the Farm Machinery Exposition an annual event.

Tulare, California is the home of one of the largest farm machinery expositions in the nation.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

Interpretations for Sunday School Lessons

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

X-RATING THE GOSPEL

Lesson for March 25, 1979

Background Scripture:
1 Corinthians 5:1-8;
6:9 through 7:40.
Devotional Reading:
Romans 11:33 through 12:5

A prominent denomination recently decided to cancel a much-heralded conference on Christian family life. The reason; a small but vocal group of critics were protesting that the keynote speaker, a nationally known and respected clergyman, had been known to advocate "objectionable" sexual practices to married couples. I was shocked: first, in that the man's good counsel was regarded as "objectionable," and second, that the leaders involved in the planning chose to cancel the conference instead of standing behind the integrity of the clergyman. The bottom-line of the vicious criticism seemed to read: "Good Christians will not even speak of such matters."

Against Your Own Body

This kind of reasoning would also black-list numerous passages in our Bible, too, because the scriptures are not afraid to tackle the subject of sex. In 1 Corinthians 6 and 7, for example, Paul speaks very plainly about sex. He mentions "adulterers" and "homosexuals" (6:9). He even talks about "prostitutes" (6:15,16). In Chapter 7 he gives advice to husbands and wives concerning sexual intercourse in the marriage relationship. Paul! Don't you realize "Good Christians will not even speak of such matters"?

Apparently not, thank God! Paul knows that the question is not whether we will speak about sex, but how. Paul acknowledges it as a normal aspect of human life. He does not sweep it under the carpet as if it were something unmentionable. What he does is to elevate it with two very important concepts.

The first of these is the idea that the human body is a temple of God's Holy Spirit and must be governed in a manner that is harmonious with that reality. The physical body thus is seen, not as disgusting and base, but as a beautiful and holy entity when governed rightly. That beauty and holiness is in no way diminished by sex — only sex that goes beyond the boundaries of our commitment to Christ. "Do you not know that your body is a temple of the Holy Spirit within you, which you have from God?" (6:19).

Who Rules The Body?

The second concept is that of mutual consideration and deference: "The husband should give to his wife her conjugal rights, and likewise the wife to her husband ... Do not refuse one another except perhaps by agreement for a season that you may devote yourselves to prayer; but then come together again ..." (7:3,5).

There is really nothing new in what Paul is saying about the sexual relationships; rather it is simply an extension of the kind of love and mutual concern that he advocates in all other relationships. Christians are called to be just as open and forthright on this as on any other human relationship and acknowledge that sex is a part of the God-given structure of life and, as such, is to be governed by the highest, not the lowest, concept of Christian love.

TO SPRAY FOR WILD GARLIC

Many turf areas and pastures are infested with wild garlic; this onion-flavored weed starts growing early in the Spring before most weeds and grasses. This means that herbicide applications should be made soon in order to kill down the plants when they are small. Also, it is best to spray pastures early before any of the clovers get started. Applications of low-volatile ester form of 2,4-D, or the Banvel D herbicides will do a pretty good job. Several treatments over a period of years may be needed to get good control. Dairymen with wild garlic in their pastured should make a special effort to kill the plants now. Onion-flavored milk is not acceptable.

TO BEWARE OF TRASH

Land owners along rural roads are the victims of folks who have little respect for the property of others. Too many folks are still dumping trash in fields along the road. In all cases when this is placed on pasture or crop land, the trash should be removed before spring growth begins. This trash will be hard on farm equipment when on crop land, and may be poisonous to livestock when on pasture land.

We urge property owners to remove the trash in the next few weeks. If any type of identification can be made, as to the owner of the trash, this should be reported to township officials; prosecutions can be made for dumping trash along the highway.

TO USE POULTRY MANURE SPARINGLY

With the great poultry population in this area, poultry manure is quite

Omaha Cattle

Thurs., March 22, 1979

Midweek prices on slaughter steers were 3.00-3.50 higher, and heifers were 3.00-4.00 higher, the greatest advance on Choice and Prime cows were .50-1.00 higher, and bulls firm, instances .50-1.00 higher. Fleshy two-way feeder steers were 2.50-3.50 higher.

Fed cattle prices advanced sharply the fore part of the week on meager supplies. Week end rains and flooding in some areas hampered livestock movement and most interests were in need of cattle for immediate requirements. Part of the early upturn was lost at midweek, however, as most buyers became cautious and selective and were competitive only for numbers to meet immediate requirements. Prices on carcass beef advanced sharply early, but midweek demand was reported light. Feeder buyers were moderately aggressive for fleshy two-way steers. Steers made up approximately 35 and heifers 35. Cows comprised 12, feeders 15.

STEERS: Early, four loads Choice with few Prime predominately 3 1195-1295 lbs. 75.00, load Choice and Prime 3-4 1190 lbs. 74.50. At midweek, five loads Choice with few Prime 3 1134-1207 lbs. 74.50. Figure it for yourself.

You get better feed conversion and lower cost of gain with corn-soy and Vigortone.

If you're feeding hogs from birth-to-market, corn-soy and Vigortone will make you more money. Your figures will prove it.

Start out with more uniform litters at less cost with Vigortone's Sow Prep No. 4A. When feeding less than four lbs. of feed, use Sow Prep No. 54. You'll have big savings over self-feeding programs.

Then, save 50% on your pre-starter rations with Vigortone's Creep Wean No. 3. This highly potent pre-mix contains vitamins, minerals and amino acids that assure fast growth right through weaning. Your baby pigs will really go for this highly palatable pre-starter because you grind and mix it yourself — fresh.

Add your choice of antibiotic to your pre-starter, or use Creep Wean No. 3C with Mecadox.* It controls swine dysentery and bacterial swine enteritis.

At 45 pounds, put your pigs on Vigortone 16% starter ration. Your cost of gain will be lower, because you again prepare it yourself using homegrown feedstuffs and Vigortone.

Keep your pigs on corn-soy and Vigortone right on through growing and finishing. Your hogs are assured the essential balance and levels of amino acids, major minerals, trace minerals, and vitamins.

Make more money this year by lowering your feed costs from birth-to-market. Feed Vigortone—fortified corn-soy rations.

Now is the time to compare

See your Vigortone dealer soon. He's ready to compare the performance of Vigortone's low-cost swine feeding programs with any other you name.

Zinnias thrive with special care

UNIVERSITY PARK – According to a Pennsylvania State University correspondence course on home floriculture, many kinds of plants have more flowers when terminal tips are removed. Pinching is a method used to change plant growth.

Specialists say to pinch the terminal tips of zinnias to grow more flowers. The plants will put out branches below the pruned tip, become bushy, and start more flower buds.

A soil mulch is important in the Summer care of your annuals. Any loose material, such as wood shavings or peanut hulls, spread two inches deep on the ground around plants works well. Weeds will not come through; soil dryness is reduced and the ground stays cooler.

Your garden soil in mid Summer sun may go over 100 degrees. That is much too hot for shallow rooted plants like zinnias, marigolds, and many other plants. Growth of flower buds comes to a halt with roots in hot, dry soil.

To learn more about growing plants around your home, Penn State offers a correspondence course in Home Floriculture. Enroll by sending $5 plus 25 cents postage to Home Floriculture, Box 5000, University Park, Pa.. 16802. Make your check payable to Penn State.

Azaleas popular in home landscape

UNIVERSITY PARK – Rhododendrons, azaleas, and laurels are a group of shrubs many find useful in home landscaping. They have broad, evergreen leaves all year, attractive flowers in spring, need little pruning, can be used as hedges or in shrub borders or as individual plants in corners of lawns.

Rhododendrons, azaleas, and laurels are known by botanists as ericaceous plants. They grow best in moist, acid, crumbly soil.

There are many species of azalea. To help homeowners choose suitable ones and use them effectively in landscaping, the Pennsylvania State University offers a correspondence course on this group of plants. The course explains species differences and cultural needs.

For a complete Rhododendrons and Azaleas course, send $2.50 plus 25 cents postage to Azaleas, Box 5000, University Park, Pa. 16802. Make your check payable to Penn State.

WHAT'S NEW

SEED SOYBEANS

Six new soybean varieties are available from the Asgrow Seed Company for planting in 1979. Two new varieties have been developed for eastern, southern and plains farmers, while Corn Belt farmers have four new choices.

The new Asgrow varieties, A5312 and A5618, are adapted to the Mid-Atlantic states, the Coastal Plains and the Mid-South.

A5312 is a tall, upright plant with very good seedling emergence, good stability and very good shattering characteristics. It's an excellent combining soybean, providing no green stem problems and with excellent threshability. It resists powdery mildew, bacterial pustule and is tolerant to bacterial blight and pod and stem blight.

A5618 is also a tall plant, providing good shattering characteristics, no green stem problems and excellent pod threshability. Seedling emergence and standability are also good. This variety resists powdery mildew, bacterial blight and tolerates pod and stem blight.

A4268 is a new Asgrow soybean for most of Kansas, Missouri and Kentucky, the Mid-Atlantic states, and southern Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. Standability is superior to other varieties in its maturity range. It has excellent seed holding and is an excellent combining soybean. The plant matures evenly and is resistant to phytophthora root rot, purple stain, blight and leaf diseases.

Asgrow, a subsidiary of The Upjohn Company, also develops and produces hybrid corn and sorghum seed.

Worms Are Stealing Your Milk

Break the worm cycle with

BAYMIX FROM AGWAY

More than ninety percent of all dairy cows are worm-infested It's true Researchers have found worms in nine out of ten dairy cows inspected With these odds, chances are your herd has worms (internal parasites)

Worms can cost you money by reducing...
- milk production potential
- feed efficiency
- growth of replacement animals

BAYMIX is the "Dollars and Sense" wormer. Here's why:

● There is no milk withdrawal with Baymix so you can worm the whole herd at one time milking cows, dry cows, calves and replacements ● Only by worming the whole herd at one time can you effectively break the worm cycle and reduce internal parasitisms on the whole farm ● Easy and convenient to feed No handling or restraints to stress animals Just topdress on feed for six days

Let Agway check your herd for worms...

● using a fecal test kit, Agway can tell if worms are present in your herd If worms are present, a Baymix worming program can be started now The recommended Baymix program to reduce parasite levels on the whole farm is a worming in the Spring and again in the Fall

Start using Baymix and stop worms from stealing your milk

Shelhamer pleased with equipment exposition

By DIETER KRIEG

HARRISBURG — The founder of Pennsylvania's Farm Machinery Exposition, Kent Shelhamer, says that if Pennsylvania doesn't move ahead with such an offering, somebody else will. Furthermore, the former state agriculture secretary proclaims: "You now have a young baby - it's up to you to nourish it and help it along."

While Shelhamer was not at the helm of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture when the Machinery Exposition got underway on March 8, he says he is very pleased to have been a part of it. "I'd do it all over again, only better," the former PDA head said enthusiastically. He has a few suggestions on how to improve the show for next year.

"I suggest early scheduling," Shelhamer began, "to avoid conflicts." He'd also like to see publicity efforts improve, explaining that he was not satisfied with the advance notices and subsequent news coverage given to the Exposition. A special breakfast with commodity queens, the secretary of agriculture, and potential buyers might be a thought, he suggested in a recent interview with Lancaster Farming.

Shelhamer is solidly convinced that the Keystone State should have a machinery exposition. "You can only drift for so long," he warned, "before someone - a promoter - with an eye for the future and ideas for making money comes along." Shelhamer wants Pennsylvania's farmers to have a portion of the pie.

"We should promote agriculture. We haven't done enough promoting of agriculture. We should think about how to make a pretty good show better," he went on with his enthusiasm oozing out as much as ever.

Excited about the potential of the Farm Machinery Exposition, Shelhamer notes that this year's first-ever Expo brought in over $100,000 to the PDA treasury. According to Farm Show Director Wellington Smith, the final, all-inclusive tab will come to $103,713.16.

"If we don't do it, somebody else will," says Kent Shelhamer in regards to the Pennsylvania Farm Equipment Exposition.

Shelhamer, who headed the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture from February 1977 to February 1979, is often regarded to be one of the best agriculture secretaries the state has had in recent memory. A Columbia County fruit grower, Shelhamer explains his promotional-mindedness as a somewhat typical trait of a farmer who has to advertise and sell his own products. He prides himself as being a "shaker and a mover," as well as a stubborn Deutschman.

Shelhamer considers it a great blessing to be able to work hard. The Machinery Exposition stands as the hallmark of his long list of achievements as a member of the State Legislature, and later head of the Department of Agricultrure. To honor him, he was given a special plaque on March 7 at the horsemen's banquet that preceded the Exposition. Penrose Hallowell, present secretary of agriculture, was also recognized for his support of the Exposition activities. Some of the special attractions of the show, such as farm safety exhibits and an emphasis on energy conservation, were Hallowell's ideas.

Farmers' Fun Night on Thursday, the horse pulls on Friday, and the equipment auction on Saturday were Shelhamer's special projects, aside from the Machinery Exposition itself, which stood as the kingpin of the entire 3-day event. "The way for agriculture to become closer and better is by working with it," the agricultural promoter said. "Farmers' Fun Night - it was a time for farmers to pat each other on the back and have fun - we need more of that," he continued in rapid-fire fashion.

"The Machinery Exposition was like having a baby - a first baby - and I know, I fathered five," he continued. A religious man, he recalls scripture from 1 Corinthians 3:5,6 — "Servants through who you believed, as the Lord assigned to each. I planted, Apollos watered, but God gave the growth." He'd like to see the Machinery Exposition receive continued "care and nourishment" now that it has been planted.

"People have faith in a new show," he said confidently and he backs that statement up with some financial reasoning. Exhibitor spaces at the Machinery Exposition and Farm Show were identical in price, taking the respective three and five day schedules into consideration. That's an indication that the Farm Show rates should be raised, says Shelhamer. He adds that of the 13 indoor farm expositions in the nation, the Farm Show Complex is the cheapest to get into.

"I'm convinced we have more potential in Pennsylvania because of our location. We should really go out and promote." he emphasized again.

"If I had to do it over again, I would, only better," he concluded.

Ammonia knocks aflatoxin from corn

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Scientists have found that ammonia not only knocks the toxin from moldy, cancer-causing corn (thus making it perfectly safe for animal feed), but the treated corn makes better feed than it ever has before.

"We found that ammonia is an effective detoxifying agent for aflatoxin-contaminated corn, a moldy corn that can be carcinogenic," reported Merle E. Muhrer, University of Missouri biochemist.

The USDA regional laboratory at Peoria, Ill., recently ammoniated aflatoxin-contaminated corn. Then Muhrer and colleague Gary L. Johanning tested the corn's nutritional value at UMC by feeding it to rumen microorganisms and guinea pigs. Scientists at Clemson University in South Carolina are now going to test the ammoniated corn on cows.

"We had outstanding success in our feeding experiments and are enthusiastic about this corn treatment," said Muhrer. "The ammoniation will make valuable use of feed now considered a total loss by farmers."

Muhrer and Johanning first got the idea for the ammonia treatment when they found that dialdehyde starch (DAS) was an "ammonia super slurper." As such, the DAS would allow farmers to feed the cows more urea, a relatively inexpensive non-protein nitrogen source.

"Man can't use these non-protein nitrogen foods for his own nutrition," said Muhrer, "but man can use some of the more expensive protein sources like soybean meal which is often fed to livestock. It's better to feed non-protein products like urea to animals and save the good quality protein for man."

Until the UMC scientists made their discovery about DAS, urea could be toxic to animals, because of the high level of ammonia it released inside the animal. DAS reacts with ammonia, literally slurping it up to detoxify it.

"Aflatoxin's structure is similar to DAS," said Muhrer. "So by adding ammonia to the corn, the ammonia would react with the active parts of the aflatoxin and detoxify it."

Muhrer said scientists in the USDA's Science and Education Administration's regional laboratory in Peoria proved that the theory would work. Agricultural engineers E.B. Bagley and O.L. Brekke designed a system to trickle ammonia into a bin where corn is stored.

"We knew that the treated corn was no longer toxic, but we didn't know if it was any good as feed," said Muhrer.

"However, research with microorganisms showed that the ammonia would improve good corn by increasing the nitrogen and crude protein within it.

"As a result, farmers wouldn't have to add as much expensive, good quality protein to animal rations and thus save more protein for human nutrition.

"Also, the ammoniated corn is even better than untreated corn for cattle and sheep because it is more digestible."

Muhrer said tests on treated corn will be conducted, but he believes the ammonia treatment will be an inexpensive way to boost energy in dairy, beef and sheep rations.

Ammonia not only knocks aflatoxin from corn, it increases the crop's feed value, researchers claim.

Tree planting demonstration planned

LANCASTER — The Lancaster County Cooperative Extension Service, in cooperation with the Forestry School of Penn State University, will conduct a tree planting demonstration on Thursday, April 5, to show area farmers the benefits of natural windbreakers, etc.

All interested persons are welcome to attend, Lancaster County Extension Director Max Smith says. The planting session will take place at the Walter Brent farm, Manheim R6, beginning at 10 a.m. The Brent property is located along Orchard Road, off of Hosler Road, approximately one mile north of town.

Three rows of evergreens will be planted, says Smith. Assisting in the actual planting will be FFA members from Manheim Central High School. In addition, Jerry Reyburn and David DeWalle from Penn State will lend their expertise to the practical learning sessions.

After the trees are planted, the party will move on to tour property owned by Rev. and Mrs. Richard Canfield, Manheim R1, where rows of trees have been serving as natural windbreakers for the past six or seven years.

More information is available from the Lancaster County Cooperative Extension Service office.

For those interested in reading more about the potential benefits of planting evergreens in rows, an article furnished by the New Jersey Cooperative Extension Service gives some details. It's printed on page 113 of this newspaper.

available. Since poultry manure may contain from 10% to 90% nitrogen, depending upon moisture and litter content, it can burn crops and result in disappointments. Gardeners should be alert and refrain from using fresh poultry manure in their soil, to any great amounts. On crop land it is suggested that poultry manure applications be limited to not more than 4 to 5 ton per acre. Keep in mind that some poultry manure might contain 50 per cent or more of available nitrogen and can burn seeds and crop roots.

Poultry manure is also the highest in phosphorus and potash content of any of our farm manures. The 1979 Agronomy Guide gives additional details about the fertilizer values of farm manures.

TO MAKE A WILL

The statement, "We don't own enough to justify a will" is over-used by many families. If you have a family, and if you own anything, you should have a will. If a person dies without a will, property is distributed according to the Interstate Laws of Pennsylvania. These laws may not distribute your estate according to your desires. This has often happened in the past and there is little that can be done about it without a will.

We urge all family heads, and property owners to contact a lawyer, and have him help with making a will. The cost will not be great in comparison to settlements and costs without a will. Don't put it off any longer.

Stauffer Homestead gets conservation award

By SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

SMOKETOWN – The Stauffer Homestead at Goodville near the headwaters of the Conestoga River, was named the 1979 Outstanding Cooperator at the 28th annual meeting of the Lancaster County Conservation District held at Good and Plenty Restaurant last Friday.

The Homestead owned by Mr. and Mrs. John Miller, East Earl R2, has been in the Stauffer family since 1732 when it was deeded to Mathias Stauffer by Thomas and Richard Penn. Mrs. Miller is a direct descendant.

The Millers were awarded an aerial photograph of the 240-acre farm.

The Homestead became a cooperator with the District in 1963, when its first conservation practice was to string electric fence to keep livestock from the Conestoga. Since then they have added 3,850 feet of sod waterways, 925 feet of diversion terraces and 24,000 feet of cropland terraces.

The farm has been managed by Earl and Bill Fisher since 1945. Beef breeding has been carried out on the farm since 1830, and since 1960 they have had purebred and percentage Charolais stock. They also have 120 sows and 39 Suffolk sheep.

In presenting the award, Conservation District Administrator Thomas Johnston, cited the farm for its cooperation with local 4-H and FFA groups who have been welcomed on field trips.

Miller thanked the Conservation District staff and the staff of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service which cost-shared the program. He also thanked Titus Musser, the land contractor who was responsible for terraces and the sod waterways.

A storm water management award was presented to the developers, landscape architects and West Lampeter Township personnel for the Pioneer Woods development on Lampeter Road. Commissioner Raymond G. Herr who presented the award said the cluster development made possible more open space for water runoff and recreation.

The development is owned by Clabell Associates, with John Denlinger and Clyde Horst accepting the award on behalf of the five partners. McCluoud, Scatchard, Derck and Edson was the architectural firm responsible for the development. Bob Derck and Will Burkhart accepted for the architects. Jere Schuler, supervisor, and Imo Sulyok, chairman of the planning commission, accepted the citation awarded to the Township.

Service awards were presented to Mary Catherine Byrd, for completing 30 years of work at the ASCS office. Snavely Garber received a certificate for serving 18 years as a committee person for ASCS. It was noted that Garber's uncle was awarded the first Master Farmer award in the state in 1927 and Garber received the award in 1955. Steve Huber was recognized for his 2½ years in the District's office. He is now with the Lancaster County Planning Commission.

Guest speaker Congressman Robert S. Walker told those attending the meeting that in the next 15 years the "number one problem in this country will be the contamination of drinking water. It is an emerging problem and is becoming more severe. We need to address it."

He said runoff, caused by paving over large areas of farmland for development,

New 2 and 4-wheel drive compacts with big-tractor

Six all-new models offer old-tractor economy with new-tractor performance.

These lively compacts from Massey-Ferguson can scoot around farmyards, large and small acreages, construction sites — or numerous other locations that call for smaller machines. Their size lets them squeeze through spaces too small for larger tractors. New big tractor features like two- and four-wheel drive make them far more efficient and adaptable than older tractors in the same horsepower range.

Diesel power and economy.

The economical diesel-powered 16 PTO hp* MF 205, 21 PTO hp* MF 210 and 26 PTO hp* MF 220 hold maintenance and fuel costs to an absolute minimum. Yet their high cubic inch displacement per horsepower provides the kind of lugging power you need.

A 12-speed transmission — four forward speeds in 3-speed ranges — is standard on the 210 and 220. A 6-speed transmission is standard on the MF 205 — three speeds forward in two speed ranges.

There's a 540 rpm rear PTO with overrunning clutch on all three tractors — giving you power to run a variety of attachments. A built-in safety start is standard.

Rear wheels are adjustable on all models, giving you variable tread settings for working in all crops — or especially spaces. You can add wh weights for more balanc traction, and front weigh for 25 lb. suitcase weigh available.

3-Point linkage position control

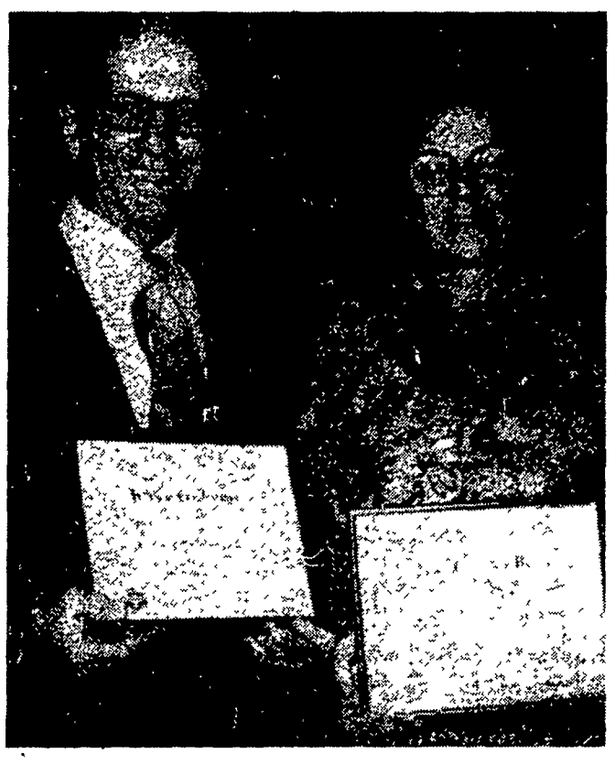
Long years of service recognized



Snavely Garber, left, and Mary Catherine Byrd were recognized by the Lancaster County Conservation District for their long years of service.

A storm water management award was presented by the Lancaster County Conservation District to those involved in the development of Pioneer Woods on Lampeter Road. Accepting awards were (l to r): Imo Sulyok, West Lampeter Planning commission; Jere Schuler, West Lampeter Township Supervisor; Will Burkhart and Bob Derck, representing the architectural firm of McCloud, Scatchard, Derck and Edson; and Jack Denlinger and Clyde Horst, with Clabell Associates.

Guest speaker
Congressman Robert S.
Walker told those attending
he meeting that in the next 5 years the "number one roblem in this country will e the contamination of rinking water. It is an merging problem and is ecoming more severe. We eed to address it."

He said runoff, caused by aving over large areas of armland for development, is a large part of the problem, causing loss of topsoil and picking up pollutants and carrying them into the streams.

Walker placed himself strongly behind farmland preservation, congratulating Lancaster County's efforts in that area. He said we must stop paving over farmland, adding that there is serious concern in Washington about loss of farmland. "We know the problems must be solved in tandem," attacking the issue locally, statewide and on the national level.

In preserving farmland, Walker stated, "Above all, the individual must have the choice in what happens to his property." He is against federal control in deciding the use of land.

"We must recognize that what will really preserve farmland is to make farming profitable for those on the farmland. If a man makes a good living on the farm he is likely to stay there," Walker said.

With farm families suffering "devastating results" of double digit inflation, Walker stated, "The fault lies in a federal government which can't contain its own spending policies. No family can run that way and no government can run that way for long either." Walker said, "We've mortgaged your future, your children's future and their children's future."

He said that double digit inflation cannot be controlled until the government, as a matter of policy, is willing to bring its budget under control. "The federal government must set the example." He called inflation the "cruelest tax of all."

Walker told the group that good conservation practices will assure the preservation of land used for growing food.

Aaron Z. Stauffer, district chairman, discussed the progress made in preserving farmland through deed restrictions. "We finally have something that is fair to the farmers, and is effective." He said zoning restrictions have caused problems in the past because zoning is easily changed and farmland lost as a result. He thanked Vice-Chairman Amos Funk and the County Commissioners for their work in this effot.

In his report, Johnston said that Lancaster County takes a backseat to no one in conservation, but he warned that there is still much work to be done. He said that many original conservation practices have gone, including the disappearance of contour strips and water ways.

Pa. poultry banquet sets record

LANCASTER – Members of the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation have been trying for six years to find the total, predictable attendance at their Annual Fund Raising Banquet. They won't find it again this year!

The attendance has continually increased every year and some industrymen won't even venture a guess anymore where it will finally bottom out. Beginning in 1973 with 303 people in attendance, attendance grew to 350 (1974), 545 (1975), 901 (1976), 1204 (1977) and 1,318 in 1978.

Already this year sales have surpassed last year's total. Co-chairmen Bill Carlin (Hubbard Farms), Bob Graybill (Pennfield Corporation), and Dale M. Weaver (Victor F. Weaver, Inc.) report that with over five weeks to go, sales will probably top 1500. The banquet is scheduled for April 19, at the Host Farm in Lancaster. A phenomenal success story, most industrymen attribute this success to the urgent need for a strong state association to protect a growing poultry industry. All proceeds after expenses go to the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation, a non-profit organization serving Pennsylvania poultrymen. But in addition to this need for a strong organization most people who attend the gala affair report that it is one of the best banquets in the country. With emphasis on excellent food and entertainment, the banquet has few no-shows. So if you are planning on attending the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation's Annual Fund Raising Banquet, festivities begin at 6 p.m. For ticket information you can write to the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation, 500 N. Progress Ave., Harrisburg, Pa. 17109 or call (717) 652-7530.

FORAGE HARVESTERS

Starting this spring area farmers may be able to harvest more forage without adding extra horsepower. John Deere dealers say the two newest John Deere forage harvesters have several power-efficient features that let farmers get more harvesting work out of their present tractors.

"The idea behind the 3940 and the 3960 is to keep power waste at a minimum," says a John Deere spokesman. "The new 3940 and 3960 have so many power-saving features, they're called the Powr-Mizer Forage Harvesters."

The most obvious design change is a new segmented-knive cutterhead. The 3940 had 36 knives, while the 3960 offers 48 cutter knives. This segmented design gives a fine, more uniform cut. Segmented design also makes knife replacement quick and inexpensive.

According to Mike Bieber, product information manager at Ottumwa, Iowa, a new, easy-to-adjust shearbar makes it simple to keep cutting efficiency at a peak on the 3940 and 3960. "It only takes one wrench and less than two minutes to adjust the setting," says Bieber. "And farmers will really like the fact that you don't have to remove any parts or shields to get to the adjustment rods."

A new two-speed blower is another power-saving feature on the 3940 and 3960. The fast speed gives extra power to handle hard-to-blow crops like alfalfa. The slower speed saves power and increases harvesting capacity in easy-handling crops like corn silage.

Other major design innovations include a PTO-powered knife sharpener and optional electrohydraulic controls.

These new machines will be arriving soon at John Deere dealerships in the area.

Two Delaware students attend national 4-H conference

NEWARK, Del. – Two University of Delaware sophomores will represent Delaware at the Second Annual National Collegiate 4-H Conference in Fort Collins, Colorado from March 21 to 25. They are animal science major Keith Mastin, of Newark, and plant science student Cheryl Kieffer, of Hockessin.

Kieffer and Mastin, like many of their fellow members of the University of Delaware 4-H Club, grew up in 4-H and are interested in continuing their participation by offering their assistance to younger members. As members of the University club, they serve as 4-H project leaders, judge competitions, and help raise money for camp scholarships.

Poultry lessons given

UNIVERSITY PARK – Business-minded owners of chickens want to learn how to care for them so as to earn maximum net income. All lessons in Correspondence Course No. 92, Poultry Keeping, teach students how to care for chickens. Lessons on breeds, feeding, nutrition, housing, equipment, management, diseases, and parasites allow the student to learn how to keep the birds healthy and reproductive.

Efficiency is increasing output of acceptable qualities per unit input. This is done by allowing birds to reach their maximum performance capability. This course teaches how to select genetically superior birds, then manage their environment and nutrition so that the bird is so healthy and happy it will out-produce all competitors.

Egg-laying poultry flocks now average over 300 eggs per bird housed, if everything - management, environment, nutrition - is handled properly. To learn good management, Correspondence Course No. 92, Poultry Keeping is available. Send a check or money order to $6.50 plus 25 cents postage to Poultry, Box 5000, University Park, Pa. 16802. Make check payable to Penn State.

Mrs. Norman Walker received the lighthearted "Green George" award, given annually by George Williams of the Codorus Fertilizer Service.

Mrs. Walker wins 'Green George'

CODORUS -- Approximately 150 guests turned out at the Jefferson Fire Hall March 13 for the Codorus Fertilizer Service's annual customer appreciation dinner. Hosts for the evening meeting were Mr. and Mrs. George Williams, Codorus, owners of the custom fertilizer firm.

Highlight of the meeting was the presentation of the "Green George" award, given each year by Williams to one of his customers. This year's winner was Mrs. Norman Walker, Glen Rock R3.

Martin K. "Marty" Brown, of Lancaster, was the program speaker. A member of the Lancaster Toastmasters, Brown is an engineer in the color tube division of RCA.

"Peter Piper Picked A Peck ..." was the title of Brown's unique presentation, which dealt with stuttering, a speech defect which afflicts thousands of individuals, including the speaker.

A crusader for better understanding of the problem of stuttering, Brown says he has developed an almost "missionary" zeal for greater public awareness and acceptance of speech defects. He shared two specific recommendations for dealing with real or potential speaking difficulties.

"Leave the kid alone," Brown admonished parents who become overzealous in correcting a young child's tendency to speak too rapidly. "Small children are often so eager to tell you something that they speak too fast. Constantly calling their attention to that habit will only make them very self-conscious and may well be the basic reason for the stuttering problem developing.

Brown's other suggestion was aimed at non-stutters who are uncertain how to act when conversing with persons with speech defects.

"Please, be patient and understanding," he pleaded. "Extend to them the same courtesy you would give to someone wearing a brace on his leg, because stuttering is the same type of handicap."

Soil service operating

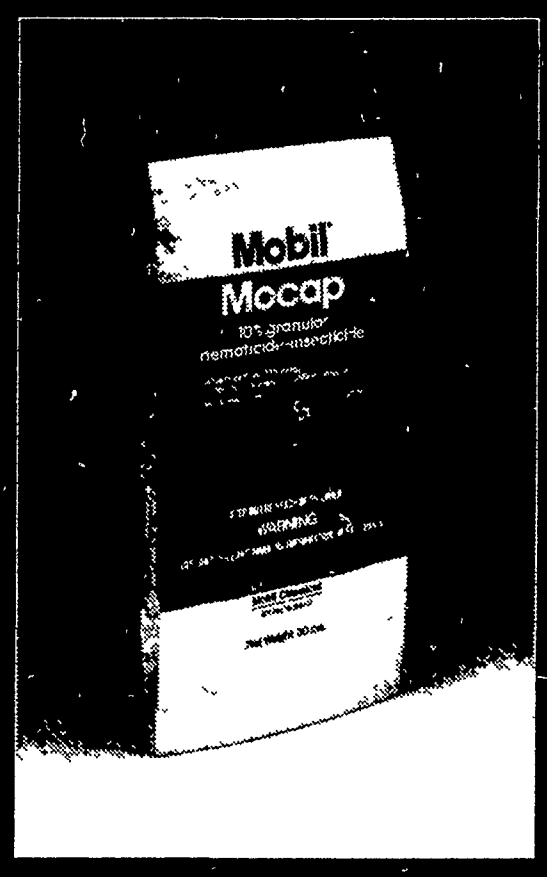
GALENA, Md. – Fertility Associates recently opened their new main office here, in the Kent Creek Real Estate building, servicing the Maryland and Delaware Eastern Shore farmers.

Fertility Associates claims to be the only "full service" consulting firm on the Shore, and perhaps the only organization of its kind in the East. Using the successful model of consulting firms of the West and Midwest, Fertility Associates offers fertility consulting, which includes soil and tissue testing, aerial infrared photographic inspections and detailed crop productin recommendations. They offer weed and pest insect scouting programs aimed at more economical and ecologically sound pest management decisions. Additionally, out of the new Galena office, they offer a "crop doctor" service to clients and non-clients alike.

Deterioration

All dried foods deteriorate to some extent during storage — throughout a range from six months to a year, depending on the kind of food. To keep nutritional losses to a minimum, vegetables and fruits (especially carrots, onions, and cabbage) should be consumed within a reasonable length of time

How to protect your corn from cutworms, wireworms, nematodes and rootworms for the least money.



Only one corn insecticide is labeled for protection against the four major soil pests. Only Mocap® insecticide protects against cutworms, wireworms, nematodes* and rootworms

You'd probably expect to pay extra for the extra protection you get with Mocap But according to an independent survey, growers who used Mocap paid less per acre than growers using any other insecticide.

With Mocap 10% granular formulation, you'll get greater surface area coverage and reduced exposure to chemicals. There's also less risk that the insects will escape coverage

And better protection means greater potential for increased yields

Ask your dealer.

Ask the man who can be objective —the man who sells several different kinds of insecticides. He'll tell you that Mocap granular is formulated on clay, not on sand. That means it won't be abrasive to your equipment—and it won't run through the hopper gates like sand. It flows evenly into and out of the hoppers without bridging and without caking on the rotors

Your dealer can also help you compare the effectiveness, price and easy handling of Mocap to any other insecticide he sells. So ask him about Mocap insecticide.

Or just do this Tell him you want the broadest protection for the least money And see what he gives you

Changes in meat industry outlined by consultant

UNIVERSITY PARK – New analytical equipment is enabling scientists and regulatory agencies to detect extremely small amounts of potentially harmful ingredients in foods, declared Dr. Burdette C. Breidenstein, meat industry consultant from Oklahoma City, Okla. during Livestock Day held recently at The Pennsylvania State University.

"Such instruments have become so powerful that we may, in the future, find microscopic traces of almost any substance in foods," Dr. Breidenstein observed.

He pointed out that mass spectrometers, for example, can determine product ingredients at five parts per billion. This means, he said, five parts of foreign matter for every one billion part of edible product. He indicated this can mean that most so-called "food scares" may be given too much attention.

Referring to carcinogenic or cancer-producing agents in foods, he asked the question, "At what level is such a compound really a substance of concern?"

Discussing the future of meat animal products, he said meat processors can "engineer' almost any shape and composition of meat desired. As examples, he listed flaking and forming of steaks made with cuts formerly used in stews or ground beef. Another such product, he noted, is extruded bacon which does not contain the amount of fat usually found in standard bacon.

One of the newer meat shipment methods, he said, is controlled atmosphere storage, which maintains constant moisture level as well as temperature. This storage extends sharply the shelf life of pork, and. is better priced for shipping pork than is vacuum packing. The latter, he claimed, is very suitable for storing and shipping beef. Controlled atmosphere storage of meat is currently used largely on ships, he added.

"In processing smoke-cured meat such as ham and bacon, nitrites are the most suitable and least costly additive to prevent spoilage," he affirmed. "Nitrates also stabilize flavor and color. This food preservative is one of the oldest known to man, having been used before the birth of Christ."

Dr. Breidenstein pointed out that dietary diseases are almost unheard of in the U.S., with life expectancy increased by 20 years over the past 50 to 75 years.

The keynote speaker at Penn State's Livestock Day declared that "the hamburger era is upon us, at the expense of roasts." In selecting beef, people view steak as a convenience item, he said, with sale of steaks increasing somewhat in the last 10 to 12 years.

Discussing nutritional labeling, Dr. Breidenstein said one national meat packing company was surprised to find that 70 per cent of the people in a survey read the labeling. As a meat industry consultant, he recommended that nutrient labeling be continued as a voluntary program on the part of food processors.

Awards were made during the annual Cattlemen's Banquet sponsored by the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association and the Pennsylvania Beef Council. Named the 1979 Cattleman of the Year was Lowell L. Wilson of State College, professor of animal science at Penn State.

Chosen as the 1979 Cattlemen's Queen was Karen McCullough of Mercer, a senior at Grove City College. Ms. McCullough is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McCullough of Mercer, R4.

Tickets for the lecture are available for $1 each at the Farm Museum, located just off the Oregon Pike about four miles North of Lancaster. For more information about the program, call (717) 569-0401.

In her talk at the Farm Museum, Miss McElroy will discuss both basic kitchen tools and the ingenious gadgets devised to lighten the load of the American housewife. The American passion for mechanical gadgets manifested itself in many ways during the last century, not least of which was the invention of such kitchen marvels as the mechanical apple peeler, the cherry pitter, the revolving fireplace spit, and many others which will be mentioned in Miss McElroy's talk.

that 14 out of the top 15 needed minerals are also imported. He warned that Soviet influence is gradually enwrapping many of the key sources of our energy and mineral suppliers.

Maybe eight years from now, the congressman projects, alternate sources will start becoming realities, as solar, wind power, geothermal and other exotic energy sources have been more perfected. He recommends that the bulk of research and development funds be funnelled into private sector study, rather than strictly through government energy specialists.

Inflation, though, is what Goodling blames as the nation's number one problem, closely tied to the energy crunch and the declining world influence of the American dollar.

Reducing inflation must be on a fifty-fifty basis of cooperation by the government and the private sector, he says. Fewer regulations, less spending and reduced payroll numbers must be part of federal efforts, but the private sector, encompassing labor and management, must also be willing to help solve budget deficit spending.

"I don't like controls," Goodling insists, "But I suspect that's where we're headed." He warned that trying to balance the budget overnight will disrupt the 19th congressional district because of the area's heavy industrial dependency on government contracts.

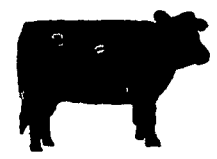
Neither, Goodling says, can he support a constitutional convention to demand a law-of-the-land amendement for a balanced budget. A "Con-Con", as the potential conference has been dubbed, will open up a "real can of worms," and would sap the budget further through its expenses, as well as hamper the government during an emergency situation. A better alternate, he feels, is through citizen demand for budget balancing.

In reply to an audience question on the recent American Agriculture "tractorcade," the congressman grinned and asked the farmers to come to Washington in force, "but please, not on your tractors."

"Make your presence known in the halls of Congress," he urged, "But not on the streets. Come with issues – several issues. We may not be able to agree on one, but surely we can agree on some of them."

Keeping with the legislative theme were reports from national legislative committee chairman Lou Wambaugh, Delta R2, and District 8 director Carolyn Rutter, Dover R1. Both attended a Washington legislative tour sponsored by the Pennsylvania Farmers Association on March 14 and 15.

Farmers meeting with their representatives in Washington discussed legislative priorities which included support for a marketing and bargaining bill, a balanced budget, but not by constitutional amendment, opposition to proposed reorganization of USDA, and the repeal of the Delaney Act, which bans the use of products found to cause cancer in research animals.



Mol-Mix®
liquid supplements

Quality ingredients add up to a quality product.

Most of you dairymen know that supplementing your cattles' diet is a mandatory part of any dairy operation. And you probably know that liquid supplementation is the most efficient (and therefore, least expensive) way of doing it. But, what you may not have considered is this: If you're not using a quality product, your efforts may be in vain.

Mol-Mix is made with the finest quality ingredients available, including those which are "performance-oriented" to give you the results you're looking for. Yet these special ingredients, things like phosphoric acid, ammonium polyphosphate, corn distiller's solubles, and condensed fermented corn extractives, are the very ones that many other supplements lack!

You might not realize just what these extra ingredients can do. Drop by your Mol-Mix dealer and let him show you what each adds to the quality of Mol-Mix.

But one thing won't need explaining: the dollar-and-cents advantage of Mol-Mix. Our quality ingredients mean more net profit for you; some dairymen report as much as four and a half dollars return for every dollar invested in Mol-Mix.

Mol-Mix liquid supplements: it all adds up to a lot more quality.

Bergland claims

the farm policy decisions that both government and the private sector have made in modern times – and the programs that implemented those policies – are still in America's long-term best interests.

"I am deeply concerned about what I see is happening to the structure of agriculture," he said, "and I am concerned most of all with the desperate need to ask ourselves if this is what we want, or what the nation truly needs."

Bergland said, "If we want to save the family farm; if we want to preserve the diversity of American agriculture...then we must all begin the serious consideration of a farm policy that would be committed to an agricultural structure in America that is in the...interests of the family farm operator."

He said he was concerned about the regressive distribution of benefits from many farm programs, and tax and credit policies which inadvertently contribute to the trend toward fewer and bigger farms.

"I see the benefits of many farm programs going not to improve the incomes of those rural families needing help, but contributing, instead, to higher and higher land prices," Bergland said.

Bergland said he had given much thought to the problems, and was asking for a national dialogue to help develop policies and programs to preserve the family farm system.

He said it should be evident that high and rising land values work to the decided advantage of the big farm operations at the expense of young farmers, small farmers and tenant farmers.

Bergland said the national dialogue should also include a full discussion of the nation's tax laws. He said present law encourages high income taxpayers – who can use investment credit, capital gains, accelerated depreciation and other devises – to pay more for land than its productive worth, because they will still realize a benefit from the tax structure.

"This virtually denies individuals who have small or no incomes to begin farming," Bergland said.

A guaranteed 100 per cent of parity program is not the answer to the problems of the family farm, Bergland said. He said such a policy would price American farmers out of export markets that are vital to farm income and the trade balance, and drive land prices even higher than they are today.

"This," he said, "would accelerate the trend, resulting in even fewer farms owning even more of the land and controlling even more of the production."

Lebanon Extension Service

filled if money becomes available.

Cutbacks in budgets have meant trimming of programs.

Deppen says that well balanced Extension work has the staff reacting to the community's agricultural concerns 50 per cent of the time, while the other 50 per cent is dedicated to specific programs. Lebanon County has a very good system, he praised.

The Penn Stater also went on to say that the Cooperative Extension Service can have an important impact on inflation. "The one thing that really affects inflation is productivity - a great key in controlling inflation," said Deppen. Increased agricultural production, he noted, has helped to cool the fires of inflation. "That principle could be true of the rest of the economy," he opinionized. "The Cooperative Extension Service emphasizes productivity and responsibility is taught."

In talking about the fire school held last Summer, Extension Agent Dennis Hoke commented that a total of 40 fire companies were involved and that the participants are now better prepared to save life, limb, and property in rural situations.

"Plenty of interest was shown," Hoke assured, adding that another such educational program would probably be held in 1980.

Newton Bair, the senior member of the Lebanon County Extension staff, told the group of farmers and agribusinessmen that a small, pocket-sized calculator is capable of being programmed for up to 450 mathematical calculations. The electronic device will do in seconds what might otherwise take hours with more conventional figuring. He invites anyone wanting to learn more about it to contact him at his office. "It's one of our new management tools," the former dairyman added.

The 4-H report was given by Linda Rohrbach. The 4-H program in the county was headed by Pat Krall until she left last August to become a volunteer at the national 4-H Center. A large variety of activities is offered by the Lebanon County 4-H program, she noted.

Alletta Schadler and Karen Jordan covered family living topics. The directions of the ladies' services continued to broaden, with projects ranging from furniture repairing to food preservation and sewing to babysitting.

1979 All-American vegetables chosen

FLEMINGTON, N.J. - The six finest vegetables for 1979 are out on the seed racks. These six vegetable varieties bear the coveted title of being a 1979 All-American Selection. Judges at twenty seven official All American vegetable trials grew and evaluated these and many other new vegetables. Trials were performed throughout the U.S.A. and southern Canada. The All American Selection is best in its class, surpassing the performance of previously top rated vegetables.

The 1979 Gold Medal winner goes to a new flavor sensation, Sugar Snap Pea. This new edible podded snap pea is so sweet and succulent that it can be snapped into pieces and mixed into the salad bowl, eaten whole, or as an appetizer. Sugar Snap is also an excellent choice for stir frying or steaming. Unlike flat sugar or snow peas, Sugar Snap remains in prime eating condition for several days.

Its average height is four feet, with 70 days maturity from seeding, and makes an excellent Spring or Fall planting.

Saladin is the versatile new cucumber that feels at home either in a salad bowl or pickle jar. The bitter tasting skin of standard cucumbers has been bred out of Saladin, making it a tasty addition to a garden salad. Seed development is slow in this fruit which is an additional attraction for fresh consumption or for pickling. One shouldn't be alarmed by different looking plants from the seed packet. Saladin bears mostly female blossoms, so pollination variety has been added to insure a good fruit set.

Three other All American Selections include Grand Duke kohlrabi, a sweet yellow pepper called Dutch Treat, plus two different types of Winter squash, Early Butternut and Sweet Mama. All posses the same honored distinction with Sugar Snap and Saladin and would be a tempting and tasteful treat for anyone's table.

Turkey course offered

UNIVERSITY PARK — Proud owners of small or large flocks of turkeys may easily learn how to care for this All-American bird through a correspondence course. After taking this course, flock managers may earn five to 10 dollars net income to labor and managment per bird, dressed and sold. Lessons include detailed information on marketing, feeding, nutrition, management, disease and parasite control, housing and equipment, along with several other references. Names and addresses of contacts in the industry are available.

The turkey requires special care in brooding and marketing to be a successful project. These management techniques are included in Correspondence Course No. 106, Production of Market Turkeys.

Anyone may purchase and complete this course by sending $5.50 plus 25 cents postage to Turkeys, Box 5000, University Park, Pa. 16802. Make check payable to Penn State.

USDA invites proposals

NEW YORK, N.Y. – Beef producers and the public have until April 5 to submit their views to the U.S. Department of Agriculture on what kind of beef research and promotion program should be developed.

P.R. Smith, assistant secretary of agriculture, said the department has already received one proposal from a beef industry group. He said the public can suggest changes in the industry proposal or submit other proposals.

Smith said public comments will be considered during the program's development. Any program must be approved by a majority vote of beef producers in a national referendum.

A 1976 law authorized a program to develop and improve markets for cattle, beef and beef products. Smith said a program proposed in 1977 did not receive two-thirds approval for passage, even though 56.4 per cent of those voting favored it. A 1978 amendement to the act permits a program if a majority of registered voters approves it.

The beef research and promotion program would be financed with assessments of up to one-half of one per cent of the value of each animal slaughtered, with provision for producer refunds. The program would be administered by a board of up to 68 producers members, appointed by the secretary of agriculture.

Copies of an industry proposal, along with rules for developing a program may be obtained from the Agricultural Marketing Service, room 2084-S, USDA, Washington, D.C., 20250. Phone : (202) 447-3970.

The rules were published in the February 27 Federal Register.

Wheat protein testing rule proposed

NEW YORK, N.Y. – A proposal by the U.S. Department of Agriculture would, for the first time, require all private and state official grain agencies to provide testing services for protein content of wheat.

The protein content of wheat is the single most important index of its value for baking purposes.

Leland E. Bartelt, administrator of the department's Federal Grain Inspection Service (FGIS), said the added function would take effect August 15, if adopted. Official agencies which inspect little or no wheat may be exempted from the provisions.

Bartelt said the proposal would require inland official agencies to be able to test for protein in all classes of wheat except mixed and unclassed.

"The industry responded favorably when FGIS began offering protein testing services for hard red Winter and hard red Spring wheats at export elevators in May 1978," Bartelt said. "We expect requests for official protein testing services to increase considerably when testing is available at all specified service points, and is extended to soft red winter durum and white wheats."

The proposal would also require that only the near-infrared reflectance (NIR) method be used to determine official protein content in wheat, effective May 1981. Other approved testing methods could be used until then. Bartelt said the requirement that only NIR testing equipment be used to determine protein content in wheat should improve nationwide uniformity.

Official agencies will be responsible for training their own employees to use approved protein testing devices. FGIS will provide testing for official personnel who wish to become licensed to perform wheat protein testing.

To avoid public confusion, after August 15, no official agency would be permitted to perform unofficial testing for protein, except for mixed and unclassed wheat. Independent laboratories could continue to provide unofficial protein testing services for all classes of wheat.

Comments on the proposals should be sent, by April 9, to the FGIS Compliance Division, Room 2405, Auditors Bldg., USDA, Washington, D.C., 20205. The proposal appeared in the March 8 Federal Register.

Lawn care booklet offered

NEWARK, Del. – A weed-free lawn is a rare sight indeed. Most of us will never have one, but that doesn't keep us from wishing for a little more "real" grass in our lawns, just the same. Somehow, uninvited weeds always seem to flourish better than the beautiful grass we want to grow there.

Each spring is an excellent time to deal with these persistent lawn pests. To help homeowners cope more successfully with them, University of Delaware Extension garden specialist Dave Tatnall has drawn up a list of 25 plants he considers to be your lawn's worst enemies. He's put this list in a fact sheet, together with some suggested controls for them.

A look at his inventory helps to explain why the average home gardener gets so frustrated trying to grow an attractive lawn.

For one thing, the weeds you're fighting fall into several categories, each requiring a different kind of control. There are annual broadleaf weeds like henbit, chickweed, knotweed, and black medic. There are perennial broadleaf weeds such as cinquefoil, dandelion, ground ivy, nutgrass, plantain and sorrel. There are annual grassy weeds like annual bluegrass, crabgrass and foxtail. And finally there are the perennial grassy weeds, including bentgrass, Bermudagrass and course fescue.

Keeping your lawn properly limed and fertilized and the soil well-drained is your first line of defense against many of these pests. Handweeding will also help in some cases. But for serious infestations you may have to go to some type of chemical control.

In order for herbicide treatments to be successful, however, the chemicals you use must be targeted for the weeds you're trying to get rid of. Some herbicides work selectively on broadleaf weeds only; some provide selective control for crabgrass and other annual grasses; while in the case of perennial weed grasses the only available materials are those which will kill everything in your lawn, inlcuding the grass.

Hallowell urges farmers to use sewer assessment relief act

HARRISBURG – State Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell, citing a "disappointingly small number of farmers who have taken advantage of the act," is urging Pennsylvania farmers to consider the provisions for front footage assessment relief which are available under Act 71 of 1977.

Hallowell said that to date only 29 farms in five counties (Allegheny, Berks, Cumberland, Montgomery and Westmoreland) have been certified for the tax deferment. He noted that the 29 farms had received a total of $394,655 in tax payments deferred, ranging from a high of $43,284 to a low of $2,136. Acreages for the farms ranged from eight acres to 235 acres.

Under the Sewer and Water Assessment Relief Act, farmers who are assessed for front footage on their land may have their tax payments deferred for as long as they do not connect their farms to the line and as long as the land remains in farming.

"In consideration of the large number of sewer systems currently under construction across the state, I am surprised at the disappointingly small number of farmers who have taken advantage of the act," he said. "I would urge farmers to make use of the deferred payment provisions of Act 71 when sewer and water lines are installed on their land."

Hallowell said, in addition, that he would ask State Department of Environmental Resources Secretary Clifford Jones to include notice of Act 71 benefits with their grant approval letters when sewer construction projects have been passed. He also will ask that DER make an announcement of the information concerning tax deferment for farmers during all public hearings on the installment of sewer and water lines in rural areas.

Home Landscaping course offered

UNIVERSITY PARK – According to The Pennsylvania State University's correspondence course on home landscape planning, plants should serve some useful purpose – as well as being attractive. For example, they enclose your backyard and give privacy. Or, well chosen plants enhance house architecture. A background or "frame" is formed as you look at your house from the front. Plants also provide shade, serve as windbreaks, and possible other functions.

Not only placing of plants, but also their shape, size, and texture are to be considered. And few plants grow equally well in sun or shade. Plant a shade-loving rhododendron in full sun and it will do poorly.

To learn landscape planning for small properties, Penn State offers a correspondence course for $4.25 plus 25 cents postage. Write to Landscape Planning, Box 5000, University Park, Pa. 16802.

COMMENTS FROM READERS

Fewer knives need clarification

Editor:

A fellow employee has shared his copy of the March 10 issue of Lancaster Farming, which includes your coverage of the February meeting of New Holland Young Farmers.

Your coverage was very precise and well done, with only one area needing some clarification. The statement "fewer knives give a more uniform cut" needs qualifications which I thought I presented, but may not have been understood. The "fewer knives" theory is only effective when available horsepower and/or fast feed roll speeds prevent the accumulation of a mat of material between the feed rolls. The "mat" is necessary so the feed rolls hold the material while it is being cut. Actually, if one could assume an adequate material mat was always present, "fewer knives" will give a less uniform product.

It is on this latter assumption that Sperry New Holland has successfully introduced and marketed the 12-knife cutterhead concept.

I don't know your policy on such matters, but if possible I would appreciate some kind of clarification on this subject.

Thank you,

Eastern

parity be maintained at 80 per cent.

A second major concern is the milk security fund which is being much talked about but still lacks enough general support to become law. The lack of unity on this subject among farm organizations is a third thorn bothering Wagner. The fourth worrisome situation is the milk haulers' strike that has been going on in New York City since Feb. 24. Blend prices for this month are expected to drop by 15 cents per hundredweight as a result of that strike. February prices were not affected.

On the brighter side, Wagner said Eastern was working its way out of debt, the remodeled cheese plant at Waverly, N.Y. is in operation, and the equity fund that was created last year is right on target at $1.4 million.

But it was the milk security fund that took up most of the Dauphin County dairyman's words. While expressing disappointment that Pennsylvania's largest farm organization is in disagreement with others concerned about the milk security fund, Wagner is hopeful that a plan will be developed.

"It is of vital importance to get a milk security fund written," Wagner exclaimed. He credits Eastern for having taken the initiative on the matter. Earlier this month, Eastern met with numerous Pennsylvania assemblymen as well as Secretary of Agriculture Penrose Hallowell to help bring the security funding problems to the forefront.

"The lack of sufficient security funds has caused significant problems," Wagner continued. "We don't have an adequate program because some general farm organizations have been dragging their feet. We want the solution to be satisfactory to everyone."

Wagner said that the dairy cooperatives in the area are in agreement on how the milk security fund should be established. That is to have the dealers contribute dollars based on the volume of milk they buy from Pennsylvania dairymen. The Grange and Pennsylvania Farmers Union are in agreement with that plan, explained Wagner. But the Pennsylvania Farmers Association favors an idea which would require that the dairyman himself contribute one cent per hundredweight of milk sold from his farm to a Pennsylvania handler.

The purpose of the fund is to prevent serious economic losses to dairy farmers when their handler goes out of business.

"We don't think it should be the farmers' responsibility," Wagner argued.

In discussing the Waverly, N.Y. cheese plant, Wagner said it was receiving 400 to 500 thousand pounds of milk per day and operating nicely. The plant is presently making mozarella cheese to the curd stage while undergoing remodeling. It's expected to be operating fully as early as May 1.

Because of an eight per cent decrease in membership since last year, Eastern's income is slightly down this year, Wagner revealed. Meanwhile, the budget has been trimmed in all categories, and according to Wagner and other officials, Eastern is definitely making progress with its financial obligations. Despite the decrease in membership, a two per cent increase in production is noted.

Explaining the equity fund, Wagner told the group it would be returned to members when and if they are no longer active in the dairy business. The idea of the fund was and still is to reduce the debt load of the financially burdened co-op. According to Wagner, Eastern at one time had as much as $10 million

STABILIZED NITROGEN

It's 8 bushels better.

You can get four dollars back for every dollar you invest in N-Serve* nitrogen stabilizer.

Because N-Serve stabilizes nitrogen. And stabilized nitrogen increases corn yields an average of 8 bushels per acre over regular nitrogen.

How do we know? Because stabilized nitrogen has been used on farms like yours throughout the U.S. And over several years, under varying weather, soil and moisture conditions, the yields prove it.

Stabilized nitrogen is, on the average, 8 bushels better than regular nitrogen.

So this spring, ask your dealer to add N-Serve to your anhydrous, liquid or dry nitrogen. Your nitrogen will be stabilized, and your yield improved.

N-Serve stabilizes nitrogen. And stabilized nitrogen is better.

8 bushels better.

Herbicide ban opposed

PARK RIDGE, Ill. — The American Farm Bureau Federation has joined Dow Chemical Co. and eight others in filing an injunction to halt the ban of 2,4,5-T herbicide. The complaint filed charges that the Environmental Protection Agency ban is "arbitrary, capricious, and abuse of discretion."

Farm Bureau estimates that a million acres of pastureland will be affected by the ban.

The Environmental Protection Agency issued the herbicide ban on March 3. Accordingly, 2,4,5-T may not be used for forestry, pasture and rights of way applications.

Dr. Ethel H. Blair, vice president and director of health and Environmental Sciences for the Dow Chemical Company, issued the followng complaint after the suspension was announced:

"We are shocked and disappointed that EPA has ordered an emergency suspension of the sale of 2, 4, 5-T but not surprised as this is just another example of "government by decree."

We can only conclude that the action is a political move to subvert the Agency's own scientific review process (RPAR). We and other registrants of these products have been following EPA's timetable for data submission and fully supporting the scientific review process. A decision on registration of 2, 4, 5-T was due in April.

This is an example of government at its worst ... basing a hasty product suspension on data which have not been subjected to scientific review. The bulk of scientific data gathered to date over three decades of use demonstrate that there has never been a single documented incident of human injury resulting from normal agricultural use of these products. We intend to vigorously defend this enviable safety record and will seek injunctive relief in the courts.

With regard to the allegations that 2, 4, 5-T can cause increased miscarriages, all we can say is that the report is totally unsubstantiated and at variance with previous scientific studies. For instance, government agencies in Australia and New Zealand recently completed extensive studies into allegations of human reproductive problems caused by 2, 4, 5-T and approved its continued use."

Performance tested bull sale is Friday

HARRISBURG – State Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell has announced that the sixth Performance Tested Bull Sale will be held at the Agriculture Department's Meat Animal Evaluation Center at University Park on March 30 at 12:00 noon.

Hallowell said that approximately 60 bulls, including Angus, Charolais, Chianina, Limousin, Polled Hereford and Simmental bulls, will be sold at that time.

A total of 82 bulls began the 140-day performance test at the Meat Animal Evaluation Center during October 1978. After 112 days, the average daily gain for all bulls on the test was an impressive 3.31 pounds per day. The test officially ended February 6, 1979, and the bulls are currently being indexed for performance. The top 75 per cent will be sold at public auction.

Performance testing provides a common test for evaluating rate of gain, structural soundness, condition, muscularity and carcass merit. It provides an opportunity for purebred breeders and commercial producers to purchase bulls which have been evaluated under similar conditions.

Hallowell noted that many breeders and commercial producers consider animals pedigrees and placements at livestock shows when purchasing a bull for their breeding programs. But he added, "A pedigree tells us what the animal should be. Show rings tell us what the animal appears to be. But only performance testing allows us to judge an animal on what it actually is."

The performance testing program is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture in cooperation with the Pennsylvania State University and the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association.

- COW MATS PROVIDE GREATER COW COMFORT. Here's the biggest reason for you to consider the use of cow mats. Farmer after farmer has testified that cow mats have extended the life and production of their cows. Cows that became stiff or lame have shown remarkable recoveries on mats. We believe greater cow comfort means more production and we know from experience that cows given a choice will prefer our mats over concrete every time. Try a few mats and let your cows prove it for you.
- COW MATS SLASH BEDDING REQUIREMENTS. Like thousands of other farmers, you can cut your bedding use by 80% or more, and your cows will still enjoy greater comfort.
- COW MATS SAVE TIME AND LABOR. By reducing the amount of bedding used, you'll automatically save time and labor used in the handling, storage and distribution, plus have more time for management.
- COW MATS REDUCE COW INJURIES. The cushion comfort provided by cow mats protects against most udder and leg injuries (or swollen hocks) found with cows that are bedded on concrete.
- COW MATS EASILY PAY FOR THEMSELVES. If you have to purchase part or all of your bedding, cow mats can pay for themselves in as little as one year. Considering the other advantages, cow mats are a good investment that will continue to pay off year after year.
- COW MATS ARE EASILY INSTALLED. Fast, simple installation in new or existing free stall, tie stall, stanchion type barns. Exclusive manufacturing process produces a non-porous mat that won't absorb liquids. Flat, non-ribbed surface is easy to clean.

Little Dutchmen create special award

By DIETER KRIEG

ANNVILLE — The Little Dutchmen FFA Chapter unveiled a special new award last week and named it after the person they know to be the most enthusiastic spokesman of their organization. Miss Eleanor Whitmeyer, a veteran of over 30 years of teaching at Annville-Cleona High School, received the distinctive honor during the Chapter's 19th annual parent-member banquet. It was held here March 15 at the high school.

Miss Whitmeyer is a teacher of social studies and president of the Annville-Cleona Education Association. Invited to the Little Dutchmen FFA banquet as a guest and keynote speaker, Miss Whitmeyer delivered a motivational speech which prompted a standing ovation from her young audience. She encouraged the young men and women and guests to set worthy goals and make full use of their talents.

Little Dutchmen FFA advisor Lowell Morton described Miss Whitmeyer as one of the finest supporters of the Future Farmers of America. Roland Maust, recipient of the first annual Eleanor Whitmeyer Leadership and citizens award, commented: "Anytime there's an achievement, the next day there's a congratulatory note from her." Maust is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Maust, Lebanon R4.

Aside from having been a long-time supporter and promoter of the FFA, Miss Whitmeyer has always opened her classes to FFA'ers practicing for public speaking. Noting that she will retire at the end of this school year, the Chapter presented her with a watch.

Other award winners included:

Joseph Harvatine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harvatine, Cleona, received the Chapter Scholarship Award.

Recognized as the lone 1979 Keystone Degree winner was Bruce Brightbill. He also received the DeKalb award. The State FFA Proficiency award winner was Jay Bomgardner.

Recognized for Chapter leadership was Robert Kreider, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Kreider, Lebanon R1.

National parliamentary procedures team awards were given to Alan Hostetter, Jay Bomgardner, Ellis Meyer, Robert Kreider, and Michael Fair. The state team consisted of Reid Hoover, Ellis Meyer, Alan Hostetter, Bryan Burkholder, Joe Harvatine, Alan Graves, Darryl Landis, and Jeff Landis. They also received recognition.

Cited with the Chapter Tractor Driving Award was David Bomgardner. The FFA Float Recognition Award went to Lisa DiAngelis and Judy Henning.

Age, not quality, affects hard-cooked eggs

YORK – All of us have heard someone claim that hard-cooked eggs do not peel as easily as they did years ago. It's therefore assumed that today's eggs are of inferior quality. Experts say that it's probably true that eggs peel harder than they used to, but they are not of lower quality.

The major factor in determining how easily a hard-cooked egg will peel is age – a freshly laid egg is almost impossible to peel without some of the albumen, or white, adhering to the shell. But older eggs will peel more easily. This difference in peeling ease is related to the pH of the egg albumen. A freshly laid egg has a pH between 7 and 8. As the egg gets older, it loses carbon dioxide gas through the shell. This causes the pH to increase to approximately 9 and in the process makes the egg easier to peel.

There are two basic methods used to hard-cook eggs: the boiling water method and the cold water method. In the boiling water method, you bring the water in a pan to a boil and then lower the eggs into the water. Reduce the heat and hold the eggs at simmering temperature for 18 minutes. Then immediately place them in cold running water. In the cold water method, you place the eggs into a pan with cool water and cover the pan and bring the water to a boil. Remove the covered pan immediately from the heat and hold at room temperature for 20-25 mintutes. Then place the eggs in cold running water. Both methods give satisfactory results.

Avoid overcooking or cooking eggs at too high a temperature. This will make egg whites tough, produce hard spots on the yolk, and often turns the yolk surface to a green-gray color. You can prevent this discoloration by cooling the eggs immediately after the heating period. Prompt cooling also makes it easier to remove the shell.

The next time you want hard-cooked eggs, use older eggs and cook them according to one of the above methods. The results should be properly cooked eggs which peel easily.

Egg cooking tips noted

YORK - Shell splitting, which occasionally occurs as eggs are hard cooked, can be reduced by piercing the large end of the egg shell prior to heating.

Experts explain that this hole in the egg's shell allows gases inside the egg to escape during the heating process. Since the egg contents expand approximately 2.5 per cent upon heating, the increased internal pressure may crack the egg if the gas can't escape.

A newly laid egg has pores in the shell allowing the gases to escape, so piercing such an egg before heating is not necessary, but does no harm. However, as the egg ages, the shell becomes less permeable to gases and piercing can reduce splitting, according to experts.

To shell an egg, use a needle to poke a small hole in the large end of the shell, where the air cell is located.

Tailgate markets open to farmers

PHILADELPHIA - Four locations have been selected for weekly markets as part of the Philadelphia Tailgate Market Project.

Farmers Markets will be held on Saturdays, July 17th through October 27th at St. Cecilia's Church in Fox Chase; Fridays, July 13th through October 26th at St. Francis de Sales Church in West Philadelphia; Thursdays, July 19th through October 25th at Our Lady of Lourdes Church in Overbrook; and Wednesdays, July 25th through October 31st at Our Lady of Calvary Church in Northeast Philadelphia.

A "mini-market", featuring primarily poultry and eggs, will continue at St. Cecilia's on Saturdays from November 3rd through December 22nd.

The purpose of these markets is to offer local farmers additional marketing outlets and a good price for their products, while providing urban consumers with quality fresh Pennsylvania produce. Last year, participating growers reported profits of from 33 to 45 per cent higher than normal wholesale prices.

The project is coordinated by Nutritional Development Services of the Archdiocese of Philadelphia through a grant from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Fair Fund. The only cost to the farmer is $47 for the temporary licenses required by the City of Philadelphia. These licenses, arranged through Nutritional Development Services, allow the farmers to sell their products at any designated site throughout the season.

Any farmer who is interested in signing up for these markets or wishes more information should contact Ms. Catherine Hanssens by writing Nutritional Development Services, 222 North 17th Street, Philadelphia, Pa. 19103, or by calling (215) 587-3691.

Food additive bill introduced

WASHINGTON, D.C. – U.S. Senator Richard S. Schweiker recently introduced legislation requiring the Food and Drug Administratin to weigh the benefits of food additives against thei risks rather than considering only their risks as provided under current law.

"The need for this legislation was stressed by the Food Safety Policy Report recently submitted by the Navy Academy of Sciences. This Report was commissioned by Congress when it postponed the ban on saccharin, and it completely supports my concept of risk-benefit assessment," Schweiker said.

"At present, under the 'Delaney clause' of the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act, any additive found to cause cancer in humans or animals must be banned. This law is seriously defective because it does not allow for the possibility that a food additive, which may pose some risk of cancer, may at the same time have health benefits that justify its continued use. My bill would allow the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare to find that the benefits of permitting continued use of the food additive outweigh the risks to human health posed by its continued use.

"Clearly, we cannot have a risk free food supply. As the saccharin case so vividly illustrates, the public neither expects nor desires such an unrealistic policy goal," Schweiker continued.

Schweiker said his bill introduced is the first step in implementing some of the reforms call for in the Food Safety Policy Report.

ONLY $80 TON FOR GOOD ROCK PHOSPHATE

Plus spreading. Also in bags. Hi-Cal lime and this phosphate are the main componants in producing those fantastic yields on the Carey Reams program which are twice as high as the average. How possible you may say? It is in knowing the right ratios.

AND NOW BX SOIL BACTERIA along with it will at least economize it (reduce need for phosphorus) and we expect improve the yields. Many farmers are trying the combination. You'll miss something if you don't. BX will even give huge crops by itself, better than fertilizer in many areas. To be safe at first, use half BX and half of the Reams program. It will up your yield and down your cost. We have official university tests to prove it.

BX testimonies are fantastic -- earlier, hardier, tastier and larger crops. 40 tons tomatoes without fertilizer. ASPARAGUS, sick and diseased comes back healthy and fancy, with a special additive invented by the genius BX culturer. Same with sick fruit trees and berries. No nematodes in root crops.

If you need a blended fertilizer, we have a top one - FERTRELL. Only $117 per ton. The company sales are increasing by leaps and bounds because wise farmers are realizing that the organic way is the only way without a dead end street.

We also carry WEX which makes organic or chemical sprays go much further, reducing the need for toxic chemicals. Also FUEL MATE which reduces fuel consumption. Motors run cooler, spark plugs and mufflers last much longer.

AGRISPON -- Also a very good soil bacteria. Repeat business is good.

SOIL CONDITIONER is excellent for quickly breaking hard pan draining swamps and mellowing top and sub soil for water holding capacity, easier seed bed preparation, better roots.

FREE LOCAL SOIL TESTING by a Reams student, with an order for a load of phosphate. $10 without a sale. Carey Reams is looking for more students. Contact us.

Equipment expo drew visitors from near and far

By DIETER KRIEG

HARRISBURG — The 1979 First Annual Pennsylvania Farm Equipment Exposition attracted visitors from as far away as Maine, Ohio, Virginia, North Carolina, Kentucky, Connecticut, Illinois, Georgia, West Virginia, California, and even four persons from Norway. Those are some of the findings of a study conducted at the Exposition by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Farm Show Director Wellington Smith, who made the survey available to Lancaster Farming, noted that the gathered information and ideas are to be used by the PDA as well as exhibitors to guide them along with future exposition activities.

Some general results of the survey follow:

Eighty-five per cent of those surveyed were from Pennsylvania, the other 15 per cent came from out-of-state, with Maryland, New Jersey, and New York heading the list. Forty-eight per cent indicated they live less than 100 miles from Harrisburg.

Why did people come to the Exposition?

According to the PDA survey, nearly three-fourths (72 per cent) of those replying said they came to obtain information about buying farm equipment or related products. School projects, the horse pull, and "just looking" were among the other reasons.

A predominant number (84 per cent) of the visitors indicated they were from rural areas, which is just what exhibitors wanted. But only 52 per cent of those surveyed claimed farming as their actual occupation. Seventy-four per cent said they were engaged in some type of farming.

Of the farmers who responded to the questionnaire, 51 per cent said they farmed full-time, while 49 per cent noted they were engaged in part-time farming.

Thirty-three per cent indicated they were dairy farmers, 19 per cent were in beef operations, 16 per cent raised grain, five per cent claimed to be orchardists, three per cent held poultry, another three per cent kept swine, and the remainder (21 per cent) were engaged in other phases of farming.

Thirty per cent of the farmers who came said they farmed between 100 and 200 acres. The next largest group, at 29 per cent, were those with 200 to 500 acres. Next was the group with 50 or fewer acres. They accounted for 20 per cent of the farmers surveyed.

Of those indicating they were members of farm organizations, the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association was indisputably the most popular with 89 per cent of the vote. Thirty-one per cent claimed to be Grangers. All tolled, 64 per cent of the farmers said they belonged to at least one farm organization.

In answer to a question about on-farm energy conservation, 61 per cent indicated they had initiated conservation practices in the home or on the farm in the last three years. Insulation, weather stripping, storm doors and windows were mentioned most frequently. Wood and coal heating, lower thermostats, Diesel farm equipment, turning lights off, horses for labor and smaller cars received portions of the balloting. Relatedly, 16 persons said they practiced better soil conservation.

The PDA report summarizes as follows:

"Although attendance at the First Annual Exposition was light, the vast majority were farmers and country dwellers. Three out of four were engaged in full or part-time farming and expressed interest in seeing or buying farm machinery and equipment for use in a wide variety of farm sizes and types.

York dairy princess committee reorganizes

YORK – The York County Dairy Princess committee met last week to reorganize for Spring promotional activities and the June crowning of a new first lady of the dairy industry.

The pageant is scheduled for Saturday, June 30, at the 4-H Center near Bair. Committee appointments to date include: George Rohrbaugh, New Freedom R1, and E. Wayne Beshore, New Cumberland R1, financial co-chairmen; Kathy Lehman, pageant; Joey Welsh, East Berlin R1, publicity; refreshments, Mr. and Mrs. Loren Detter, Dover, and Mr. and Mrs. Larry Amsapcher, York R7; Marge Rutter, York, gifts; Emilie Welsh, East Berlin R1, decorations; Darlene Godfrey, Glen Rock R2, and Shirley Hess, Dallastown R1, door prizes.

Eastern

borrowed on a day. Now that figure is reduced to $3 million borrowed, with a high of $5 million. "This is a significant change in six months time," he commented.

Wagner also said that Eastern considers the cheese plant to be the better alternative for handling surplus milk, compared to butter and powder plants. The latter depend on government purchases, he reasoned, while cheese plants are tied directly to store sales. "We have the market," the District 8 director boasted.

Noting that there is a powder box and butter churn at the Waverly dairy plant, Wagner said these procesing facilities would not be disturbed during remodeling "just in case they're needed in the future."

In the final analysis, Eastern's directors and local executives are convinced that the turn for the better has been made. Outgoing District 8 President William Gerhart of Gilbertsville, Montgomery County, commented triumphantly: "I was a former critic of Eastern, but they're under good management up there now, and I hope they keep it."

Jim Spear, the former Eastern president, said: "Eastern has had a very good reputation for supporting farmers, and we're also very progressive. That may have been part of our problem in previous years - we were too progressive, we grew too fast for conditions. Eastern is now looking much brighter and I'm confident it will continue to do so."

In other activities at the evening meeting, Eastern's fieldman, Tony DiFava reminded dairymen from Lancaster County that they must have their herds tested for tuberculosis by June 30. State law requires it. Failure to comply could mean loss of a milk market. Also, the public health inspectors will be coming around.

Another note of caution was directed towards the use of antibiotics. Federal regulations on this regard have become much stricter in recent weeks. Slight traces of antibiotic residues in cattle carcasses could develop into serious consequences for farmers who violate the set sandards.

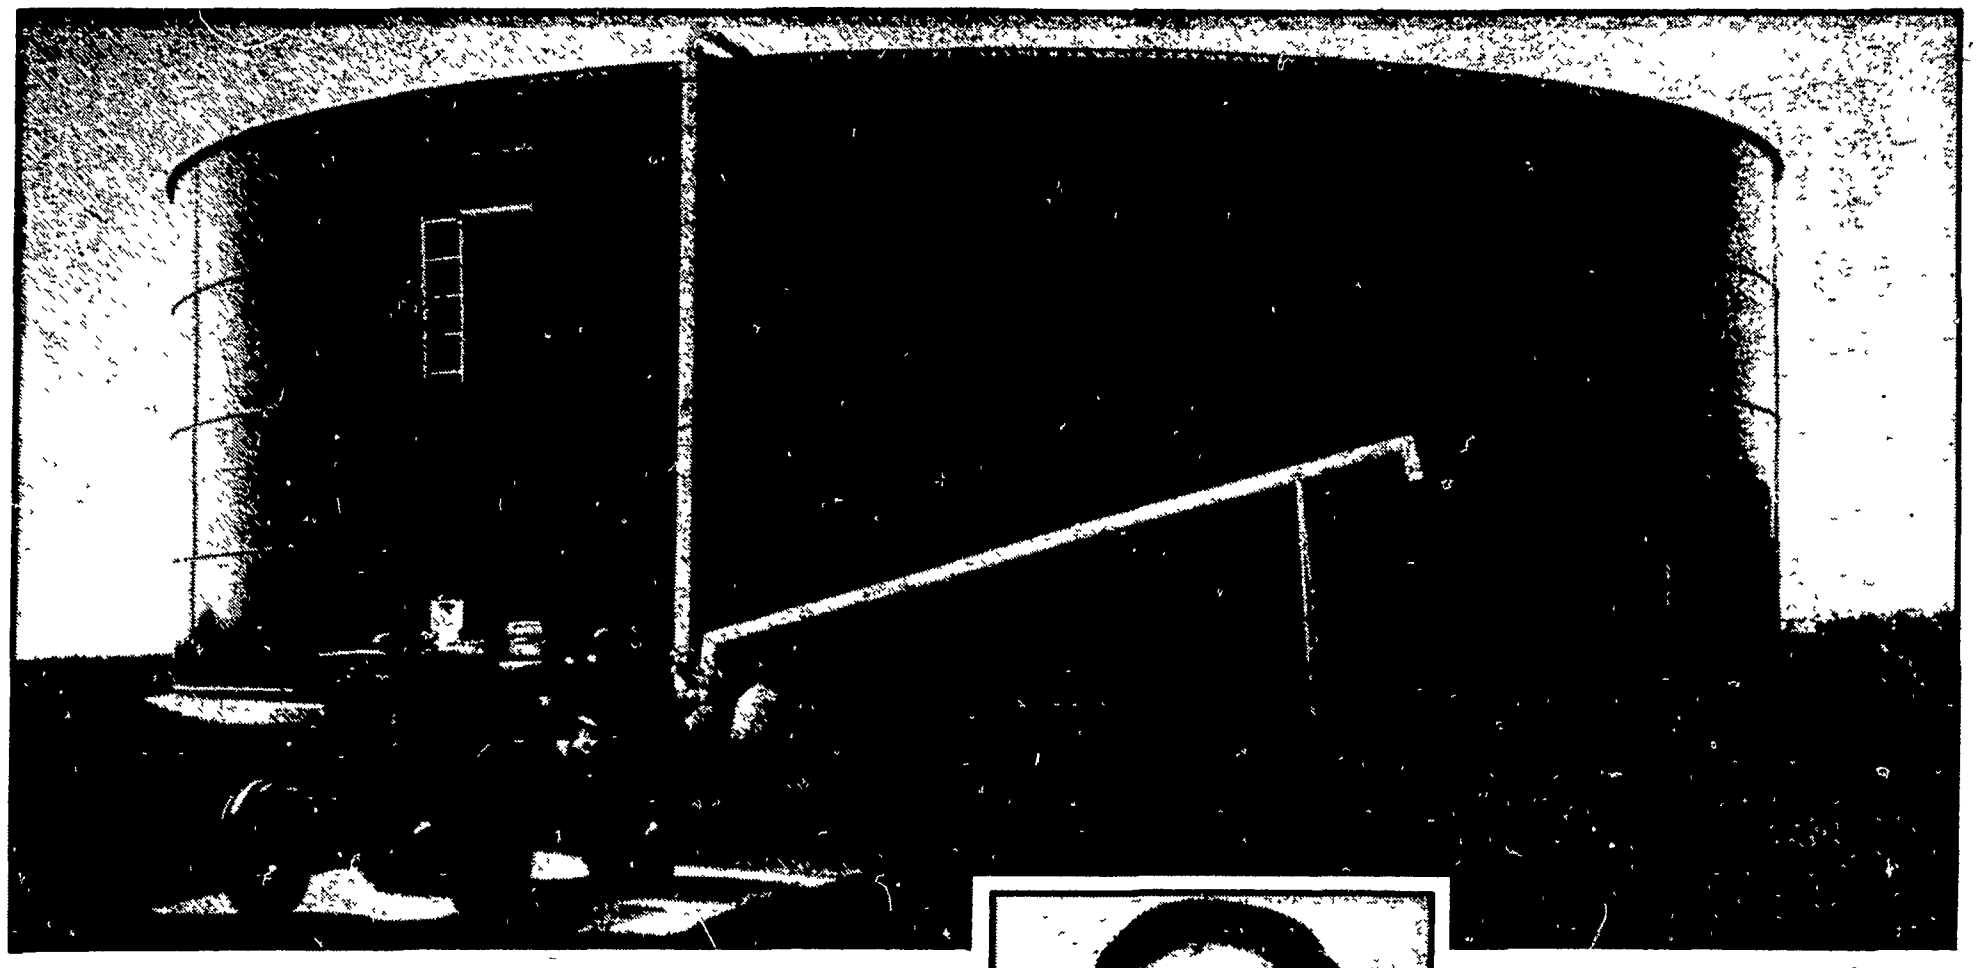
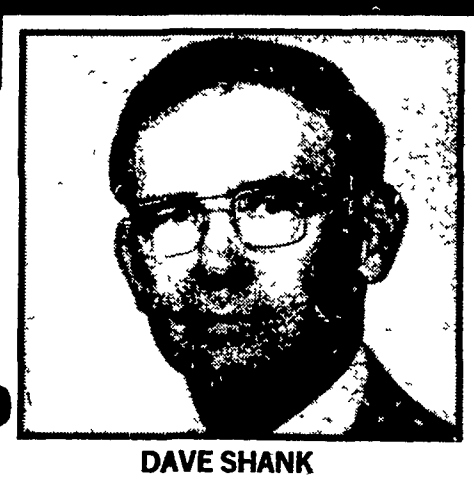
Who says you can't afford a Slurrystore® manure handling system?



You bet you can.



DAVE SHANK
PENN-JERSEY REPRESENTATIVE

Many cattle feeders have saved enough money in fertilizer and labor costs to more than pay for a Slurrystore system.

For example, when you compare a Slurrystore system to a conventional scrape and haul program, you can save enough N, P_2O_5, and K_2O with 440 beef steers to produce about 25,000 bushels of corn. The loss of valuable plant foods in manure is cut to a minimum. And your work is a lot easier. You store and then haul manure in volume to boost your profit potential and management skills. You can smile all year long.

Yes you can afford a Slurrystore system in your beef feeding operation. Talk with your Harvestore® system representative now. He has the facts and figures to show you that a Slurrystore system can be both affordable and profitable in your operation.

You get more dollar for dollar value.

Here's why you should invest in a Slurrystore system: (1) A total system proven dependable on over 1,100 farms; (2) Up to 95% of N produced can be recovered from storage; (3) You make more efficient use of time and labor; (4) Storage capacity from 50,000 to 900,000 gallons; (5) Expandable structure models are available; (6) Excellent pollution control because manure is moved out of confinement areas into high storage structures...you stop the risk of runoff, reduce offensive odors and other contamination, and improve fly control; (7) Exclusive new pump and center agitation promotes uniform manure mixing...store for months and move to application equipment when time and weather are right.

YOU CAN RENT A SLURRYSTORE®
YES-YOU CAN.

In minimum till corn...
"Banvel Herbicide does a better job."

Wayne McGinnis, White Hall, MD

"Since we started using Banvel herbicide six or seven years ago, we hardly ever see morningglory anymore. We get very good control of thistle. Compared to 2,4-D, Banvel does a better job. It gives a broader range of control of some of the more resistant broadleaves."

Wayne McGinnis, White Hall, MD 600-700 acres in corn

Breck Debnam, Chestertown, MD
2400 acres in corn.

"We really started using Banvel herbicide heavy on our no-till weed problems four years ago. Canada thistle is our biggest problem . . . we went to Banvel herbicide because we got twisted corn with 2,4-D. You have more tolerance with the weather. Banvel is a lot safer than the old 2,4-D."

"It doesn't make corn brittle even though I use a regular sprayer. We spray Banvel herbicide right on top, when corn is six inches high. This is the right stage to hit morningglory. My major weed problem is cocklebur . . . and Banvel herbicide does a nice job on it. Control? Super!"

Fred Hubbard,
Federalsburg, MD
300 acres in corn

John 'Buddy' Burner,
Luray, VA
150-200 acres in corn

"The first time we used Banvel herbicide about four years ago, we got excellent results. Old 2,4-D has been a standby for years. But Banvel herbicide with 2,4-D gives much better control . . . with Banvel herbicide and 2,4-D we're getting weeds we did not get with 2,4-D alone . . . Banvel herbicide looks like the most economical way to control problem weeds."

For years, successful minimum-till corn producers have been depending on Banvel to stop tough, resistant, late emerging broadleaf weeds.

Banvel is very effective against hard-to-kill perennial broadleafs as well as such weeds as Canada thistle (seedlings), morningglory, pigweed, lambsquarter, ragweed, and annual clover. Tank-mixed with atrazine, Banvel knocks out horsenettle or combined with 2,4-D, it will even take care of the super-tough velvetleaf, Canada thistle and many more.

Late germinating broadleaf weeds need not lower your corn yields. Follow the lead of other successful Banvel users who have found Banvel herbicide is a much needed "success" ingredient for higher minimum-till corn yields.

Delaware has $235,000 for ACP programs

NEWARK, Del – The 1977 Food and Agriculture Act obligates us to protect soil and water resources for the benefit of farmers and the public. The Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP) endeavors to meet this obligation, says Palmer Corey, chairperson of the Delaware Agricultural Stabilization Conservation (ASC) Committee. The goal of the 1979 program is directed toward longer-term, enduring practices that conserve water, prevent soil erosion and reduce farm-related pollution.

"We recognize that a lot of conservation work has been done," he says, "but we realize there is a lot more that has to be done."

The problems of conservation are complex, for they deal with resources of many kinds While woodland conservation and soil retention remain continuing interests, water quality is a growing concern. This awareness is an important and necessary step. The farmer and ASCS, once aware of these problems, can solve them.

According to Corey, the farmer is the key. He is the one that knows his land well and cares about it. Now he has to realize how its maintenance affects everyone.

The ASC official explains that ASCS is ready to assist with cost sharing and arrange for the technical aid.

Funds totaling $235,000 have been allocated for the ACP in Delaware.

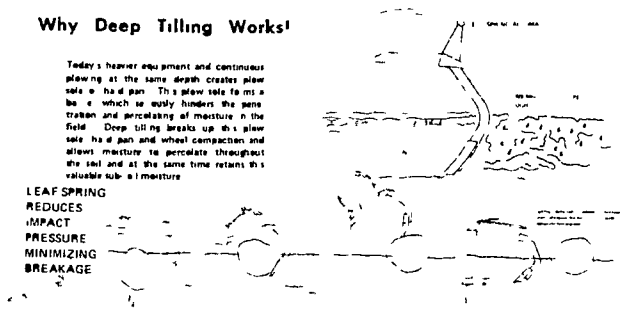
WE ARE READY TO DEAL -WITH REBATES TO YOUR BENEFIT!

TEBBEN AUTOMATIC RESET DEEP TILL/CHISEL PLOW



Why Deep Tilling Works!
Today's heavier equipment and continuous plowing at the same depth creates plow sole or hard pan. This plow sole forms a barrier which seriously hinders the penetration and percolating of moisture in the field. Deep tilling breaks up this plow sole hard pan and wheel compaction and allows moisture to percolate throughout the soil and at the same time retains this valuable sub-soil moisture
LEAF SPRING REDUCES IMPACT PRESSURE MINIMIZING BREAKAGE

Increase speed and depth without increasing horsepower by lifting one or more pair of shanks.

GOT TORQUE AMPLIFIER, CLUTCH AND PRESSURE PLATE PROBLEMS WITH YOUR IH TRACTORS?

There is a company in the West that has been rebuilding T.A. units for several years now and having excellent results. The basic reason for their success is the sprag clutch they use. In the areas where they have been selling, they even have IH dealers that use this unit almost entirely.

(1) They feel this sprag clutch is giving less problems than even IH's new beefed up unit because of the design of the sprags.
(2) This unit can be bought as individual parts which is many times all you need or as a complete renewed unit ready to set in your tractor.
(3) They have a warranty up to 2000 hrs., or 3 years . . . and . . .
(4) They don't cost any more and to most buyers they are costing less than from the big company. They offer same day shipment by UPS or Greyhound bus. They also have a program on rebuilt Dynalife clutches and pressure plates.

If you want more information write me and I will get the literature to you. Raymond B. Leaman, RD #1, Willow Street, Penna. 17584.

AGRI-KING
KEY TO PROFIT

NEW IMPROVED SILO-KING PLUS

Research done on heat control in hay preservation as conducted by Dr. Martin Vogel, Director of chemical research at Agri-King is documented in these charts.

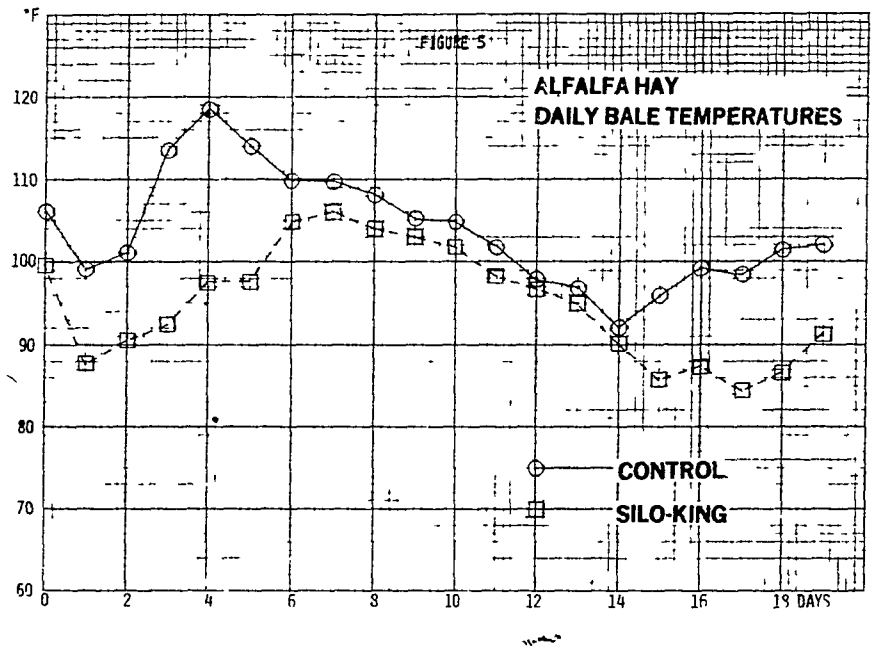
Alfalfa hay was baled in the 23 per cent moisture range. The hay was weighed initially and checked for moisture. After two months of storage the hay was again weighed and checked for mositure. In this way weight and dry matter losses were determined for control (untreated) hay, Silo-King treated hay and Silo-King plus treated hay. The following table gives the mositure at the time of baling, the weight loss of each treatment expressed as a percentage of the initial weight, and the dry matter loss expressed as a percentage of the initial dry matter content.

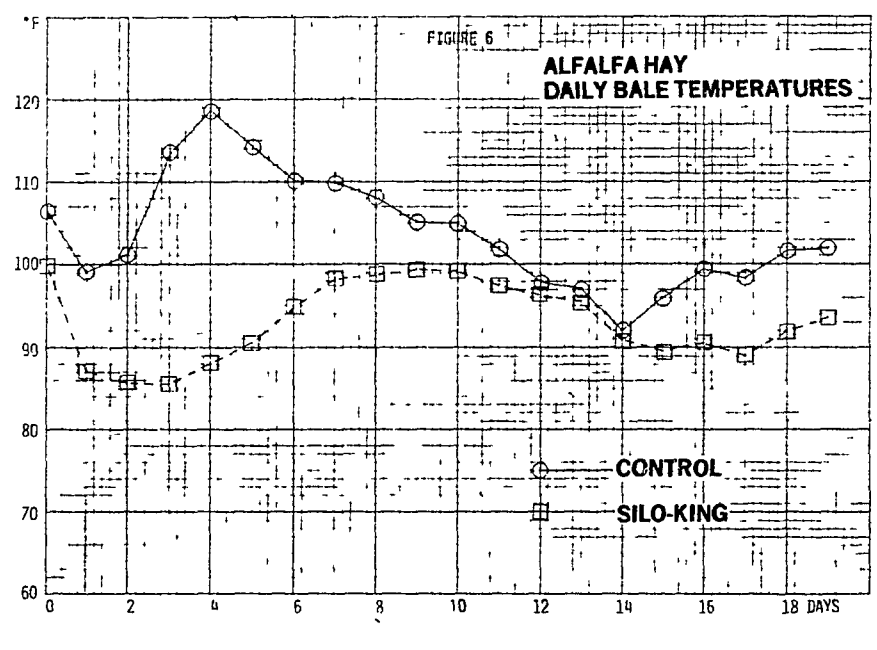
Alfalfa Hay Test

Treatment	Moisture	Weight Loss	D.M. Loss
Control	23.6%	26.6%	15.7%
Silo-King	22.2%	16.1%	4.5%
Silo-King Plus	22.6%	13.6%	1.0%

It should be noted that the control had 3.5 times the storage dry matter loss of Silo-King and more than 15 times the storage dry matter loss of Silo-King Plus. Visual examination of some opened bales in each treatment indicated a considerable amount of spoilage throughout each of the control bales, while spoilage was minimal in the Silo-King treated bales and almost undetectable in the Silo-King Plus treated bales.

Dr. Martin Vogel





The temperature of each stack of hay was recorded daily. The temperature profiles of the three treatments revealed a definite reduction in heating in the Silo-King and Silo-King Plus treated hay. A plot of days of storage versus temperature for Silo-King and a control is shown in figure 5 and for Silo-King Plus and a control in figure 6. To be noted from these graphs are the temperature differentials between the control and the treated hay during the first six to 10 days of storage and also after the 14th day. Heating during the initial stages of storage can cause heat damaged protein while during the latter stages of storage heating may indicate excessive dry matter losses.

If hay is an important part of your livestock feeding program, then Silo-King Plus should be an important part of your hay harvesting program. Reduce your field harvesting losses by making high moisture hay and reduce heating and dry matter losses in that hay with Silo-King Plus.

Local people 'felt welcome' during China tour

By SALLY BAIR
Staff Writer

"It was not a vactation; it was an experience." Mrs. Carl Wenger, Lebanon, was referring to the trip she and her husband took to the People's Republic of China on an 18-day People to People Goodwill Mission, hosted by Enos Heisey. Her sentiments were echoed several times by other Lancaster countians who were participants in the tour in February.

All the local people agreed on one point: the people of China are friendly, happy and well fed, and the American visitors were warmly welcomed with no restrictions on where they went or what they saw.

John J. Herr, Mount Joy, said, "Everybody was happy and occupied. There were no signs of hunger."

Faye Kreiner, Manheim said she found the people to be "so calm and easy-going. They were trustworthy and very pleasant. We felt welcome there. I never felt better in my life." She said she was impressed by their innocence and their slow pace of life.

Leroy Hawthorne, Elizabethtown, whose wife accompanied him, agreed, "The people are friendly and warm, and were quite happy about the normalized relations with the United States. We've done a lot of traveling and we found the Chinese to be the friendliest of all."

All the travelers agreed that the Chinese they met were very anxious to try out their English. Mrs. Hiram Graybill, Lititz R2, said, "The only way to better themselves is to learn to talk English."

Faye agreed, "Wherever you are, the Chinese have been told to try and make conversation with foreigners. There are crash courses to try to learn English." Because of their desire to learn, the Americans met many friendly students who showed them around and generally befriended them. Mrs. Graybill said, "They were shy at first, but once they talked with you they stayed with you. They really wanted to be friends."

The masses of people were impressive to the local travelers. As a point of orientation, China is slightly larger than the United States, and lies on approximately the same latitude. Their population is 900 million. And the local travelers agreed that the hard work of the populace is as impressive as their masses.

Everyone works except for the elderly and the disabled. Women return to work as soon as possible after childbirth and children are left in the care of grandparents. Hawthorne said, "There is a retirement age as I understand it, but they work as long as they are able, and when they are no longer able they care for the children. There is no unemployment."

Hawthorne pointed out, "There is no private enterprise. Nobody works for himself - they work for the system, the commune and the government. It seems to work and they get the job done. They are not competing. They are all on the same level and seem contented." He noted that communes are large, and encompass large land areas and many agricultural industries. The communes are highly organized, with an internal government which sends representatives to the central government.

Faye added, "The five essentials of life are provided for everyone. They earn a living, they are given a home, they are given clothing, medical care and a burial. There is no incentive to work more." As she put it, "The state owns everything but the bicycle."

Dainty fans were just a few of the many intricately made items found in China. Faye Kreiner holds a fine silk one.

Mrs. Hiram Graybill pours tea from a Chinese teapot she purchased in China. On the coffee table are other momentoes of the couple's trip to mainland China.

Herr said that while there are no signs of wealth, the people are very happy. He said, "They work for the good of the government and the people, and that is the difference between socialism and capitalism." We can't argue against it since they had a civilization in 2,000 - 3,000 B.C."

Hawthorne said it was his understanding that 70 per cent of the workers are employed in agricultural pursuits, and said that in his observation most of the work is done with extremely crude tools. "An awful lot of work is done as it was in the time of Christ."

Graybill described one commune the group visited, saying there were 85,000 people in the commune, with 7,000 households, 10 administrative districts and 150 production brigades. Rice and wheat were the predominant crops harvested, but the commune was active in forestry, had fisheries and 170 hectares of fruit. Livestock included 80,000 pigs, 380,000 Peking ducks and 3,7000 milk cows divided among nine different dairy farms. For the uninitiated, Peking ducks are ducks which are force fed mash directly to the crop every four hours. This allows them to be ready for market in six to eight weeks. Herr pointed out that force feeding also increases the size of the liver, a delicacy for the Chinese.

There were several work shops on the farm, Graybill said, and the work was done with 108 tractors, 500 hand tractors, 120 trucks and 30 grain harvesters. He noted that one third of the grain was harvested by machine and the rest was done by hand. All the rice is harvested by hand.

The commune also had nine secondary schools, 59 schools in all, and each production brigade had a health center and a "barefoot doctor," who was a nurse.

Despite the presence of farm equipment, Herr noted, "I can't see how we can sell them implements. The paddies are too small." Graybill said, "They would like more combines, then they could put more people in factories."

Herr said that one third of the freight is hauled by bicycles in some areas. He said the Chinese can haul market pigs on their bikes and he saw them bicycling with two full bags of rice, weighing 100 pounds each. Bicycles are the main mode of travel.

Farming is very intensive in China. Graybill said, "They farm everything, and they have a wonderful irrigation system. In some parts of the country there is just 24 inches of rain yearly. The soil looked good and rich, but there just isn't enough rain." In the south, he said, it is possible to grow three crops a year.

Herr agreed about land use, "Every inch of land is used, even along roadsides." Hawthorne added, "Everything is pretty well manicured, with no waste. The underbrush is cleaned, partly for use as fuel. There are no scraps of wood, everything is cleaned up" Even forests, it was noted, are cleared of twigs and brush since people walk great distances to find suitable fuel

Hawthorne said, "As you go South in China it is more tropical and we saw beautiful, huge truck farms. The land is terraced and irrigated."

Mrs. Wenger said, "In the South it is very warm, and there were many beautiful vegetable gardens. There was no waste and the land was used right up to the railroad tracks and the houses." By contrast, Mrs Wenger said she found Peking depressing. "It was Winter and everything was the same color."

In the communes, people were allowed a small area for private gardens, and any excess could be taken to the market to be sold. Homes were owned by the commune.

Unisex was a way of life in China, according to the travelers. Faye said, "Women are no different from men. I saw women hitched up like oxen. The women work in dirt and in the fields. It is really unisex." Others noted that women helped build bridges and roads, by hand.

Clothing was similar too. Mrs. Wenger said, "The women all wore slacks and the only colors they wore were blue, grey and khaki green. But the children were brightly dressed."

With 900 million people it is not surprising to hear the visitors remark about the amount of human activity. It was a pleasant surprise for the Americans to wake up one morning following an eight inch snowfall and find the streets being swept clear by men and women working side by side with small brooms. Herr said, "The streets were clean by 7 a.m. so they could ride their bicycles to work."

He also observed that often at daybreak people would be outside taking morning exercises, sometimes in groups of up to one hundred. He said they would "stretch out slowly" in contrast to the quick rhythms associated with exercise here.

Homestead Notes

While they did not visit a city apartment, they did visit some homes at one commune. In every case, the Americans said the homes were very simple with few furnishings. Mrs. Graybill described the home she visited as having three small rooms, with a two-room second story. There were low stools to sit on and one very small table. She said their hostess very ceremoniously poured boiling water into their tea cups, and they sipped hot water. Others, it should be pointed out, did have tea in the homes they visited.

Mrs. Wenger said of the home she visited, "It was very primitive, with five small chairs. They cooked in one room and ate in one room. The beds were small wooden beds, with pads."

Hawthorne elaborated, saying, "The housing was extremely simple, with concrete floors. The homes were made of mud brick and some of a nice quality brick with tile roofs. The people have very little, although most have electricity and a radio. We weren't in any city apartments so we can't compare the differences there." He compared the simplicity of their homes to the simple homes built by pioneers in this country.

Families are small in China. Mrs. Wenger explained,

Local people 'felt welcome'

"They are being taught to have late marriages and small families." The Graybills said they understood it was the norm to have two children in the city and four in the country. When asked about birth control, they were told the women used the pill and injections.

Graybill noted that the children seem "much more regimented - more like we were when we were kids. We didn't get away with much and we were shy."

Herr told of a visit to a school with children from ages three to eight. "They were little show-offs - they danced for us for over an hour." When the group walked through the school, the children folded paper and gave it to them. At that school, the children arrived Monday morning and stayed until Friday evening.

The China trip was prolonged by two days, partly because of the Chinese involvement in Vietman, although the countians did not know it at the time. When traveling to Nanning, they saw many troops on manuevers. Once there anti-aircraft guns appeared on tops of buildings, and the streets "were lined with anti-aircraft guns. It looked like they were fortifying for an attack," Faye said. While the visitors received little news while there, they were told there was a border provocation. Their stay in Nanning was cut short because no planes were allowed to fly and there was a shortage of trains. Instead of a flight to Peking they took a 39 hour train ride, which they agreed was comfortable and a great way to see the country. Because of the long train ride they missed their flight out of China, so stayed two days longer and enjoyed some sights they missed by a late arrival at the beginning of their tour.

Later, they realized that they left Nanning on Friday and the invasion began on Saturday. Mrs. Graybill said, "I didn't feel afraid. The Chinese people didn't know about it and they went about their business." Hawthorne noted, "Most in the group reacted calmly and mildly. We didn't know quite what was going on."

The American group visited a Christian church. Hawthorne, himself a minister at the West Green Tree Church of the Brethren, said, "According to our guide, the constitution permits religious freedom, and when we asked if there was any bias against the Christian people we were told there is no discrimination. It was a very nice meeting for us. The minister read the scripture in Chinese and we sang. As I understand it they are not permitted to preach, although one guide said they are allowed to. It was really a meaningful experience for us."

There was food in abundance, and the group experienced at least two of the sumptious banquets one hears about, with 10 to twelve courses. Mrs. Wenger, who said she and her husband enjoy Chinese food in this country, said, "It was very good. The food was prepared differently from here. There were a lot of vegetables and rice at every meal. Some was spicy and some was hot."

Herr was even more enthusiastic, "The food was out of this world. We had one banquet that lasted 2½ hours with roast pig as the main course. I never ate so much in my life, but I lost eight pounds." He attributed the weight loss to the fact that there are few sweets on the menu. The last course is soup, not a rich dessert. He said, "There were no cold beverages, they were all room temperature. In the hotel room there was always beer, soft drink, which was very sweet and a thermos bottle filled with boiling water for tea.

Faye kept notes on one of the banquets they attended. There were five hor d'oevres served, including hearts and livers, sauce, shredded chicken and green peppers. Next came a soup with duck tongue and white fungus, a rare and expensive delicacy which grows on trees. This was followed by chicken and duck stomach; then mushrooms and shrimp; white onions and radish onions in soy sauce; lotus leaf cake; pancakes filled with duck; duck and cabbage soup; deep-fried apple, dipped in cold water for a taffy taste, and tangerines for dessert. There was fruit in abundance, including fresh fruit in the room daily.

For drinking there was a sweet orange drink, red wine and mai tai, and Faye said there were many, many toasts, with the Americans being expected to return each toast in turn. Faye described some of the food as being "highly seasoned," and explained that if people didn't like one there were always others to choose from. She said that snake, cat and dog meat are considered delicacies. Faye is a professional photographer, who has slides available to show to groups.

Mrs. Graybill explained that forks were available if asked for, but that the waiters tried very hard to teach everyone to use chopsticks. "We mastered it enough to eat the food."

All the visitors marveled at the great architectural feats they visited such as the Great Wall and the ancient burial palaces of the emperors. Enthusiasm ran high for the experience to visit a culture that is different in so many ways.

Hawthorne said, "We enjoyed the trip very much, primarily because of the 'people to people' emphasis. Everywhere we stopped the emphasis was on meeting people. That adds a lot to the trip."

Faye summed up many feelings when she said, "It was well worth the time and effort. We really enjoyed it. It is altogether a different culture and a different way of life."

MARCH IS PEANUT MONTH

If you think of March as a ho-hum month midway between Christmas and the 4th of July, think again. March is National Peanut Month and that's nothing to yawn about. Peanuts contribute rich flavor and crunchy texture to many kinds of foods and are nutritious as well as tasty. If you add them to familiar dishes you will find that they take on new and interesting flavors.

Peanuts contain about 25 per cent protein and can be an added source of protein in meals. Now is an excellent time to stock up on peanuts because, according to marketing specialists with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, peanuts are in especially heavy supply.

Peanuts grow abundantly in the United States. Three common varieties are Virginia, Runner and Spanish. The shelled Virginia is long and slender; the Runner is small and stubby and the Spanish peanut is round.

If you are getting bored with winter menus, try adding peanuts and discover how they can change the taste of a dish entirely and wake up bored appetites. Why not surprise your family and friends with one of these unusual dishes:

Mediterranean Chicken

1 Tablespoon butter or margarine
1 Tablespoon onion, finely chopped
1/2 cup celery, chopped
1 10 ounce package green beans
1 Tablespoon pimiento, chopped
2/3 cup roasted peanut halves
2 cups chicken, cooked and cubed
2 10 1/2 ounce cans condensed cream of mushroom soup
1/2 Teaspoon oregano
Pepper, to taste
1 Tablespoon parsley, optional

In saucepan; add onion, celery, and beans. Cover and simmer over low heat for about 15 minutes, stirring occasionally, until beans are tender. Add pimiento, chicken, soup, and seasonings. Cook 10 minutes longer to blend flavors, stirring to prevent sticking. Stir in nuts. Sprinkle with parsley before serving, if desired. Yield: 6 servings, 3/4 cup each.

VARIATION: MEDITERRANEAN TUNA: Omit fat and chicken. Cook onion, celery, and beans in ½ cup water instead. Use a 13 ounce can of waterpack tuna, drained, in place of chicken. Continue recipe as in Mediterranean Chicken.

Golden Cheese Salad

1 3-ounce package lemon flavored gelatin
1 cup boiling water
1 1/2 ounce cream cheese, chilled
⅓ cup roasted peanuts
2 cups crushed pineapple
1 cup shredded carrots

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water and chill. Cut cream cheese into 18 cubes. Coat cream cheese cubes with chopped nuts and roll into balls. Stir pineapple and carrots into gelatin and cream cheese balls. Chill several hours or overnight until firm. Yield: 6 servings.

CAN YOUR DIET INCLUDE POTATOES?

Pity the poor potato – it has an image problem! While there are few people who don't like the taste of potatoes, many feel guilty about eating this nutritious vegetable because they have the mistaken notion that they are fattening. But the fact is that it's the fancy toppings added to potatoes that make the calorie count zoom and not the potato itself.

Look at the facts: A medium-sized, unembellished baked or boiled potato has 110 calories, about the same amount as a large apple or orange. And, they are high in vitamin C and B-vitamins – especially thiamine, niacin, and vitamin B6. They also provide some iron.

So, to enjoy this delicious vegetable without a severe case of the guilts, eliminate the butter and sour cream and substitute toppings such as yogurt and cottage cheese, spiced up with chopped chives, scallions, or watercress.

To get their full nutritional value, be sure to steam or bake them and to eat the skins – that's where most of the nutrients are.

And this is an especially good time to start including potatoes in your meals on a regular basis because we are in the midst of a bumper year for potatoes, according to marketing specialists with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, meaning that heavy supplies are keeping prices quite reasonable.

So, do your budget and waistline both a favor – bon appetit!

B Directional flow tubing captures the heat that is normally lost up the flue 65% of the heat collected in the Hydro-Heater is absorbed by the tubing section This heat is then transferred to your existing heating system

C These fittings connect the Hydro-Heater to your existing system The heat collected by the Hydro-Heater is transferred to every room of your house via your normal heating ducts or radiators A built in safety system assures that the Hydro-Heater temperature remains below 210°

Family forum planned

NEWARK, Del. – The needs of families and children will be the focus of an all-day statewide family forum here on April 5.

The free public meeting, sponsored by the Delaware Cooperative Extension Service and the Delaware Humanities Forum in conjunction with public and private agencies, will be held from 8:30 to 4:30 at the First Presbyterian Church, 292 W. Main St.

Because of rapid economic and social changes, American families are under unusual stress, says Dr. Patricia Nelson, Extension family and child development specialist, who is coordinating the event. The forum will explore how basic social institutions deal with the needs of families and children. Speakers and workshops will examine many aspects of family life and the nature of available service programs in order to present an overall picture of the current situation, says Dr. Nelson.

Participating will be Governor duPont and other state legislators, representatives of public and private agencies, and specialists in family living. The keynote speaker will be Richard H. DeLone, former Assoc. Director of the Carnegie Council on Children.

Morning and afternoon workshops will deal with the impact on families of such factors as government, law, religion, mass media, employment, medical and social services, children, and the elderly.

Luncheon and child care will be available, but preregistration is required. For more information contact Dr. Nelson at 738-2537.

JOYCE BUPP

This year has been designated the International Year of the Child, honoring youngsters around the world.

Surely some special celebration is called for to mark this memorable occasion. Perhaps we should even erect a commemorative monument.

I think I know what they'd like.

How about decorating the family bathtub to look like a mud puddle?

Exits there anywhere on earth a kid who can resist any opportunity to cuddle a fully-developed enticing puddle? The very thought of such wild ecstatsy plants naughty grins across their faces as their feet gather momentum; and, in one grand Superman-inspired leap, they splash into the slush, boots, coats and mittens totally forgotten!

And, don't you wonder if children who live on the flat Midwest plains country aren't somewaht culturally deprived? Where in the flat country can a child ever taste the joy of floating leaves, sticks, milkweed pods, styrofoam cups and even plastic cars as these "boats" sail along the river of snowmelt that cascades beside a gently climbing roadway?

So, on with it. Paint the bathtub a dull brown enamel. Fill it with well-muddied water. Throw a few stones around the floor and liberally dust the area with gravel. Toss some ragged looking "boats" across the brown waves. Your youngsters will know that he has truly found a paradise on earth.

Well, our youngsters have just finished in the tub and I know now that it won't take much time to build that commemorative puddle.

In fact, they've already taken care of it.

And as mud puddles go, our bathtub is a blue-ribbon winner.

York Co. Society 21

A birthday luncheon was held recently at Willow Valley Restaurant by York County Farm Women Society 21. Special guests were Naomi Bupp, Pat Sechrist, Marie Smyser and Treva Whorl.

The program included a few solo selections by Mrs. Robert McLaughlin and readings by Naomi Bupp. Secret pals for the past year were revealed and gifts were exchanged.

York Co. Society 2

Esther Sechrist, Glen Rock, hosted the March 14th meeting of York County Farm Women Society 2. Her two daughters-in-law helped serve a luncheon.

President Grace Ferree conducted the business meeting. Chairman of Ways and Means, Donna Cunkelman, outlined plans for a bus trip to Bedford Village, Bedford, on May 2. The cost is $10. History buffs, take note. Donna also appointed chairmen for the various projects for November's bazaar, so that groups can get together to work on them.

Leafa Klineyoung will work with Pauline Thomas on plans for April's 39th Anniversary celebration of the Group's founding. The meeting will be at Washington House, Wrightsville, on April 11.

Agnes Snyder was in charge of the program centering on St. Patrick's Day.

Esther Lehman displayed her latest quilt. Agnes Snyder showed a "frustration pencil" and a cupid on a fringed yarn fan.

Agnes Snyder extended an invitation to the society for the May meeting, reminding them of our plant exchange. By-Laws will also be read; everyone to bring their books along.

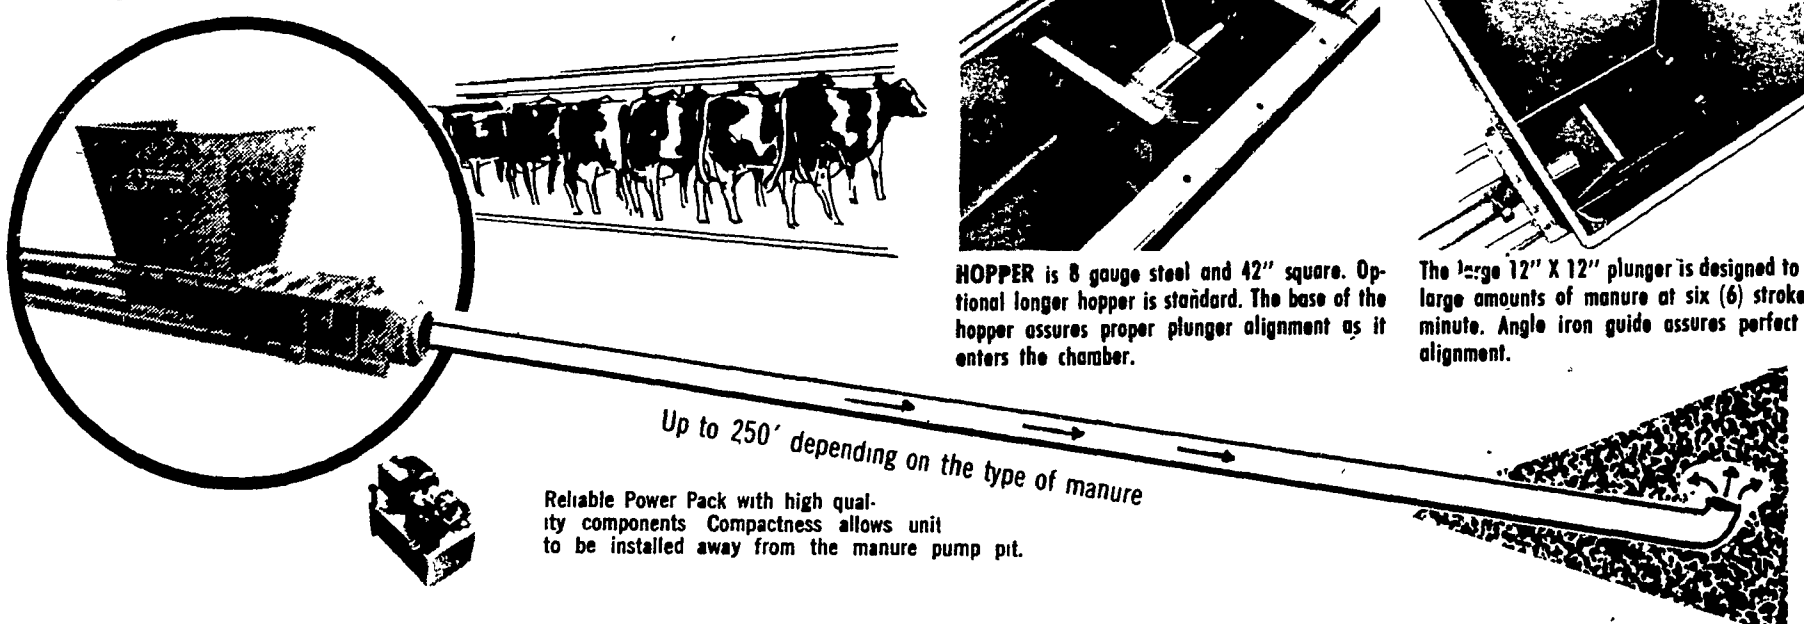
HYDRAULIC MANURE PUMP

Products of RYDER SUPPLY CO



HOPPER is 8 gauge steel and 42" square. Optional longer hopper is standard. The base of the hopper assures proper plunger alignment as it enters the chamber.

The large 12" X 12" plunger is designed to move large amounts of manure at six (6) strokes per minute. Angle iron guide assures perfect head alignment.

Up to 250' depending on the type of manure

Reliable Power Pack with high quality components Compactness allows unit to be installed away from the manure pump pit.

12" SQUARE CHAMBER
- A square chamber allows for best gate design To open completely, with minimum resistance, a round chamber doesn't allow the gate to open completely

HEAD SHAPE
- The head shears long straw or hay-filled manure with no need to chop or eliminate bedding
- Slope-back head creates agitation with each stroke, preventing bridging
- Works without needing to add water to manure

PVC PIPE
- 10" PVC Pipe, not 12"; by going from a 12" square chamber to a 10" round, assures even pressure on manure to eliminate the chances for sediment to accumulate.

SERVICE
- By installing the pump in an accessible pit, all parts are easily inspected.

NOTE
- Design requires no Teflon seals which wear and allow back flow
- Design has no brass bushing to manually rotate or replace

NO WINTER DUSTING LABOR

For control of lice on beef and dairy cattle

Cattle lice are a major economic problem in the United States. The U.S.D.A. estimates annual economic losses at between $45 and $50 million. This includes reduction of weight and lowered milk production. All breeds, sexes, and ages of cattle are susceptible. Lice are present on cattle throughout the year, but seldom reach damaging populations except during late fall to early spring. Cattle that have heavy infestations, often have poor feed conversion and are subject to other problems because of their weakened condition. Heavily infested animals lose their appetites, rub, bite, and kick the irritated itching skin. The animals become weak and inactive with anemia developing. Young calves may become stunted to the point that they will fail to respond to increased feed or milk supply. The visible membranes of the eyes, mouth, and vulva are pale because of the anemia. In addition to the nervous irritation of the animal, a reduced red blood cell count can result in poor feed utilization and a lowered white corpuscle count can mean less natural disease resistance. As a result of heavy infestation during the winter, growth rates decline and death from secondary infection such as pneumonia may result.

Unlike flies, lice do not migrate or move readily from one herd to another. They stay on the host animal and, due to the nature of their life cycle, two treatments can break the reproductive cycle. The first SELF treatment with Anchor FLIP TOP DUST BAG early in the fall, kills adult lice. A later SELF treatment (through forced or semi-forced use) will kill any young lice that hatch from eggs in the hair coat at the time of the first treatment. Additional SELF treatments will stop infestation.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

During the month of March most any kind of weather can be expected although it isn't always graciously accepted.

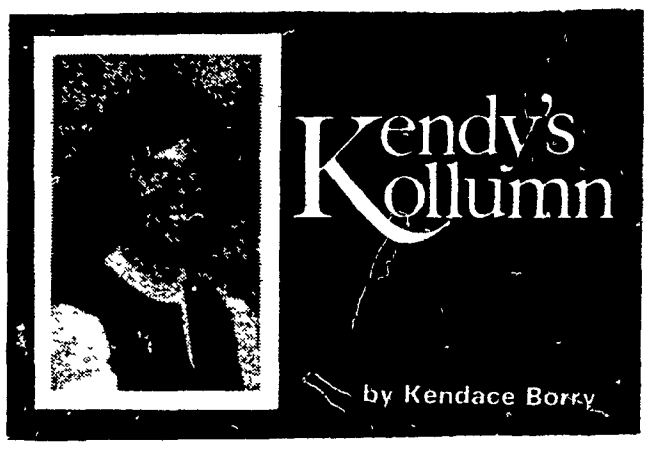
The sun shines one day and the thermometer climbs and so I venture out to saw a few dead limbs off the evergreen trees or to pick up dead branches that the Winter winds have blown down. I hear the wild geese overhead as they fly northward and notice the red knobs of rhubarb are several inches out of the ground. However, the tulips, daffodils and hyacinths are ahead of them. And I look foward to seeing the new bulbs bloom which I planted around our mailbox last Fall.

A robin is hopping around the pussy willow bush and a blue jay sits on the forsythia bush for a moment and then flies away. Every year we seem to have more wild ducks and they too are enjoying the sunshine and are playing a "dunking" game on the Conestoga.

I'm glad I trimmed the raspberries last Summer as now I only have the blueberries to do in the Spring. Whether or not the raspberries will bear as well with an early trimming only time will tell.

Then when I awaken the next morning, the wind is whistling through the spruce trees and the temperature has dropped. As I look out my kitchen window, I see a whirlwind of dry leaves sweeping across the field and disappearing in the distant meadow. It is another day to stay inside and bake some bread or read a book.

Near the end of March when I try to plant my sugar peas, I've often started to drop the seeds into the shallow double rows that I've made in the rich, dark earth only to be interrupted by a snow squall and have to run for a coat to finish the job. So until Spring is here to stay, I guess I'll just leave the snow shovel on the back porch as "insurance".



You may first notice them as a long trailing speck on the sky's horizon. Shaped in a long V, they travel across the sky, wings moving gracefully, as they honk the arrival of Spring to their audience below.

Every year about this time, the geese visit this area for a short while, and seeing them gives me hope that soon the grass will be green and the worst of Winter is over.

The geese are never wrong, and instinct prompts them when to make their trek North. And seeing them go, is one of the highlights of my year.

I have been walking out in the field, only to stop work and gaze at the stately birds as they hasten to their destination. I've watched as many as five different flocks, all in my view at the same time, and seen them all speed on, ever northward, as their cries urge each other on.

Majestic in the air, I envy them their beauty and freedom. They know that the true rebirth of the year is here, and full of life, they steal on to their destiny.

Anniversary noted

PARADISE – Last week Mr. and Mrs. L. Robert Frame will celebrate their third anniversary as managers of the Vintage Sales Stables. Mrs. Frame is the office manager and Mr. Frame, the sales manager.

At the board of directors' meeting of the corporation on Thursday, February 22, the following officers were re-elected: President - L. Robert Frame; Vice-president - John Bowman; Secretary and Treasurer - Elaine R. Frame. Irvin Martin will continue as the ring man.

The Frames became the majority stockholders of the Vintage Sales Stables, Inc. in March 1976 when they purchased the stock of John Huber and Harold Hess.

Although he noted that receipts were down last year, Frame commented that they had a good year. According to the local USDA market news office, cattle receipts at Vintage last year totaled 50,042 head compared to 53,329 in 1977 and 47,942 in 1976.

Frame listed the improvements under his management include changing the calf sales from the main arena to a small one, painting the entire complex, new sorting and tagging facilties, new holding alley, paving the parking lot, and a new tractor-trailer for local and long distance livestock hauling.

Maryland pork producers held annual dinner

COLLEGE PARK, Md. – Farmers and Extension workers living west of the Chesapeake Bay gained most of the top recognition at last month's annual dinner meeting of the Maryland Pork Producers Association.

The event was held Feb. 23 at Frock's Sunnybrook Farm restaurant in Westminster. About 150 persons attended.

Karen Martin, 18, of Smithsburg (Washington County) was crowned as the new state Pork Queen. An active 4-H member, Miss Martin has career plans to become a professional home economist engaged in promotion of agricultural products. She is currently a student at Hagerstown Junior College.

Her 4-H activities have included membership in the Washington county livestock club. She also served the past year as secretary of the Maryland Junior Pork Producers.

Karen's major responsibilities on the family farm have included managing a greenhouse, assisting at the family's roadside market and keeping records on the farm's purebred Yorkshire swine herd. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. John R. Martin.

Besides winning the pork queen title, Karen received the junior pork producer award at last month's MPPA dinner meeting. Her father received the association's "over 40" service award for active pork producers.

Receiving the MPPA "friend of the industry" award was David L. Greene of White Hall (Baltimore County), a county Extension agricultural agent in Carroll County since August 1972.

Greene formerly worked eight years as herd supervisor and farm manager for the University of Maryland's animal science department at what is now the university's horse research center south of Ellicott City (Howard County). He is especially well-known among the state's sheep producers.

A Carroll County fatherson farming operation received the Maryland Pork Producers Association's annual Dr. James R. Ferguson memorial trophy for superior performance in the production of feeder pigs. That duo was Richard W. Soper, Jr., of Westminister and his father, R. Warren Soper. (Dr. Ferguson was a nationally known Extension livestock specialist a the University of Maryland for 1970.)

And the perennial winner of the Maryland State Fair purebred barrow carcass award, for the fourth straight year, was John E. Strawbridge of Norrisville (Harford County). His mailing address is Stewartstown, Pa.

Strawbridge has now won the annual state fair award eight times in the last nine years. He raises both Hampshires and Yorkshire pigs. Most of his carcass winners have been Hampshires, including the most recent one.

Strawbridge was also one of several pork producers honored at last month's banquet by John W. Wildesen, manager, on behalf of the Eastern national Livestock Show, held each Fall at the state fairground in Timonium.

This year's Pork All-American from Maryland is J. Gordon Warfield, Jr., of Marriottsville (Howard County), a graduate of Purdue University. This award is presented annually to an outstanding pork producer under the age of 35.

Floral tributes of appreciation were presented to Mrs. Franklin E. (Julie) Feeser of Taneytown and Mrs. Claude L. Ruby of Hampstead, both Carroll County residents. They have been active pork boosters. Mrs. Feeser also serves as subscription editor for The Swine Line, official newsletter of the Maryland Pork Producers Association.

Finally, the past president's appreciation award was presented to an Easter Shore resident, William C. Malkus of Cambridge (Dorchester County). Malkus's successor is Russell G. Watson of Brandywine (Prince Georges County).

Watson is the first southern Maryland resident to head the present-day statewide pork producers association since its inception in 1952.

J.G. Warfield, Jr., Maryland's current Pork All-American, was named to fill Watson's previous slot as vice-president for the western shore. Paul L. Shortall, Jr., of Easton (Talbot county) was re-elected as Eastern Shore vice-president.

Also re-elected were Paul L. Phillips of Mardela Springs (Wicomico County), secretary, and Donald E.

February milk price not affected by New York strike

NEW YORK, N.Y. – Dairy farmers supplying milk plants regulated under the New York - New Jersey marketing orders during February will be paid on the basis of a uniform price of $11.57 per hundred pounds or 24.9 cents per quart. Market Administrator Thomas A. Wilson, who announced February's price, also stated that the uniform farm price was $11.49 per hundredweight in January 1979 and $9.87 per hundredweight in February 1978. The strike by Local 584 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters against New York City and Long Island milk plants with union contracts apparently had no effect on the February 1979 uniform price. The uniform price is a marketwide weighted average of the value of farm milk used for fluid and manufactured dairy products.

The total amount of milk received from the 17,593 dairy farmers supplying the New York - New Jersey Marketing Area was 763,067,742 pounds during February 1979. This was more than 14.5 million pounds above last year. The gross value to dairy farmers for milk deliveries was $90,467,487.28. Wilson explained that this included differentials required to be paid to dairy farmers but not voluntary premiums or deductions authorized by the farmer.

Regulated milk dealers (handlers) utilized 376,399,[illegible]5 pounds or 49.3 per cent of the total amount of milk for Class I. The Class I milk is used for fluid milk products such as homogenized, flavored, low-test and skim milks. For February 1979, handlers paid $12.85 per hundredweight, or 27.6 cents per quart, for the milk used in Class I products compared with $11.12 a year ago.

The balance of the milk, 50.7 per cent, was used to manufacture Class II products including butter, cheese, ice cream and yogurt. For this milk the handlers paid $10.54 per hundredweight.

The uniform price is based on milk containing 3.5 per cent butterfat.

Maryland pork producers

Morrison of Dayton (Howard County), treasurer. Morrison has served as treasurer since 1956. He was a 1978 recipient of the University of Maryland's honorary certificate of merit award in agriculture.

Conrad J. Langenfelder of Clarksville (Howard County) was elected to a one-year term on the board of directors to fill the unexpired slot vacated by Warfield.

Elected for three-year terms were Franklin E. Feeser of Taneytown (Carroll County); Mike Tippett of Hollywood (St. Mary's County), and Francis C. Perdue of Parsonsburg (Wicomico County.)

Two Eastern Shore residents from adjacent counties were re-elected for three-year terms. They were David B. Nagel of Harmony (Caroline County) and Richard H. Hutchison of nearby Cordova (Talbot County).

During the past year, Hutchison served as chairman of the commercial producer committee for the Maryland Pork Producers Association. His health committee report was included in the annual meeting booklet. A synopsis of it follows:

Dr. Robert C. Hammond, Extension veterinarian at the University of Maryland in College Park, worked with the committee to conduct a swine diagnostic session on Oct. 24, 1978. Six producers had delivered four good quality, healthy market pigs apiece on the previous day to Kling's Meat Market at Petersburg, Del. for slaughter and evaluation.

Before slaughter, all 24 pigs were inspected for parasites and possible health problems. During the postmortem examination, samples of blood, tissue and feces were taken for laboratory analysis. Each of the six producers received a confidential report on his animals.

All of the pigs were found to be negative for hog cholera, pseudorabies, transmissable gastroenteritis (TGE), and leptospirosis. White blood cell counts were within normal limits, in most cases.

The study was done to make producers aware of possible health problems in their herds and how the problems – if any – might be eliminated. More diagnostic sessions are planned this year. Pork producers interested in participating may contact Hutchison or their local county Extension agricultural agent. Hutchison's telephone number is (301) 822-4643.

Hammond named president of IH dealers

CHAMBERSBURG – Phil Hammond, General Manager of Chambersburg Farm Services, Inc., Chambersburg, has been elected president of the National Dealer Council of International Harvester dealers at the annual Dealer Convention held in Chicago, Ill., recently. Hammond was among 16 select IH dealers who met with the company's agricultural group management to discuss matters of mutual interest at the eighth annual conference.

Phil Hammond (right) general manager of Chambersburg Farm Service, Inc., gets together with Robert L. Lee, manager of the International Harvester Northeast Agricultural Equipment Region (center) and Rey Browning, vice-president of Whitmore and Arnold, Inc., Pursellville, Va., during the IH National Dealer Council held in Chicago, Ill. IH dealer representatives from throughout the U.S. elected Hammond president of the 1979 Council. Hammond and Browning represented dealers in a 16 state region at the meeting.

One of the younger members of the council, Hammon has been managing Chambersburg Farm Service, Inc., for the past two years. His dealership has achieved the highest business standards possible for an IH dealership by receiving the IH "XL" award in 1976. This award recognizes the outstanding contributions of key dealers to the success of U.S. agriculture and service to their customers. The standards for the award are the highest, according to R. L. Lee, manager, IH Northeast Ag Equipment Region, and only a select group of dealers who have totally commited themselves to the pursuit of excellence qualify.

Hammond said his major thrust during his year-long term will be to keep open the lines of cummunication between the company and the dealer body and to continue the good rapport existing between them. He has repesented the dealers in the northeast at the Dealer Council for the past two years.

Hammond holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Business Administration from Elizabethtown College. He is a former International Harvester company employee and worked 9 and a half years in various positions at Harvester including Credit Representative, Retail Sales Representative, Farm Industrial Zone Manager and Assistant Store Manager from 1963 to 1972 in the former Harrisburg district. Prior to joining the Chambersburg organization, Hammond worked for two years with a car leasing firm in Baltimore, Md.

Hammond and his wife Marian, reside in Chambersburg with their three children.

PATENT PENDING

PERMA-BOND* KOMFY-KOTE CONSTRUCTION

A tough acid-resistant plastisol compound permanently bonded to a rugged steel mesh.

An exclusive bonding process developed by Tenderfoot*

- Superior Traction prevents injuries and abrasions.
- Cushioned comfort reduces stress.
- Self-cleaning. No holes or crevices to harbor bacteria.

HOW LONG WILL THEY LAST?

First produced in 1975, Tenderfoot was tested in farrowing pens for 1½ years before being marketed. These original floors have been in constant use ever since WITH NO APPRECIABLE WEAR! Today's Tenderfoot floors have 6 advantages over the original pieces

1. 3 times more coating.
2. Tougher vinyl coating.
3. Extra-strength steel.
4. Treated to resist bacteria & fungi growth.
5. Improved Perma-Bond processing.
6. Strict quality control.

Constant research, development and quality control continues at the Tenderfoot factory and at the nearby 650-sow operation where the original 1975 Tenderfoot floors are still going strong.

How long will a Tenderfoot last? No one knows. The very first ones produced have withstood heavy use since 1975 with no appreciable wear. The floors produced today are 6 ways better than the first ones. On the basis of these facts it seems safe to say that any concern over the durability of Tenderfoot flooring is unnecessary.

Farmers should tell their story

By DIETER KRIEG

LANCASTER — The editor of Pennsylvania Farmer magazine, Bob Williams, says no one can represent agriculture better in public relations than the farmer himself. Speaking here Wednesday afternoon at the annual meeting of Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, the bespectacled writer urged farmers to do just that.

To illustrate how much misunderstanding there is between non-farmers and those involved in agriculture, Williams noted that a New Jersey dairyman was recently cited for operating an illegal landfill.

"That 'illegal landfill,' fellows, was a trench silo," he said wryly.

Also, in some areas farmers have to obtain a permit in order to cut down a tree on their own property.

"And how about those suburban people with the twitchy noses who are all too busy trying to tell the farmer how to run his business," the well-known editor went on as the audience nodded approval.

Over and over again, Williams suggested that farmers should get involved in local government and planning committees. "You are the expert in your field," he said repeatedly, trying to convince the listeners to take the initiative for settling some of the thorny issues in agriculture.

Noting that some farmers are already telling the stories that should be told, Williams emphasized that he'd like to see more of it being done.

Williams himself often gets to relate the farmers' problems to legislators and other public officials. He'll be in Washington, D.C. next week for an agricultural editors conference during which agricultural situations will be discussed. "I'd like to have you down there to tell'em," he said. "You're the experts, not we editors."

"They want to hear from you," Williams stated, continuing the theme of "YOU - the farmer, are the expert. The farmer can do it. He's the expert on the farm," he encouraged.

Among the farmers singled out by Williams who are standing up for their rights and getting involved are Abe and John Barley of Conestoga R1, said Williams. Some 58 acres of their prime land was threatened to be taken over by a landfill, he explained. Good public relations work helped to save the farm.

Lehigh County turkey grower Fred Jaindl was also mentioned as one who recognized injustices and decided to fight back. More examples followed.

Farmers should stand up and tell their story, says Pennsylvania Farmer editor Bob Williams. "Explain that there is a practical limit to regulations," he advises, noting that "suburban people with twitchy noses are all too busy trying to tell the farmer how to run his business."

Williams' point was that the stories of these people (and others), should be told - not only by editors, but the farmers themselves.

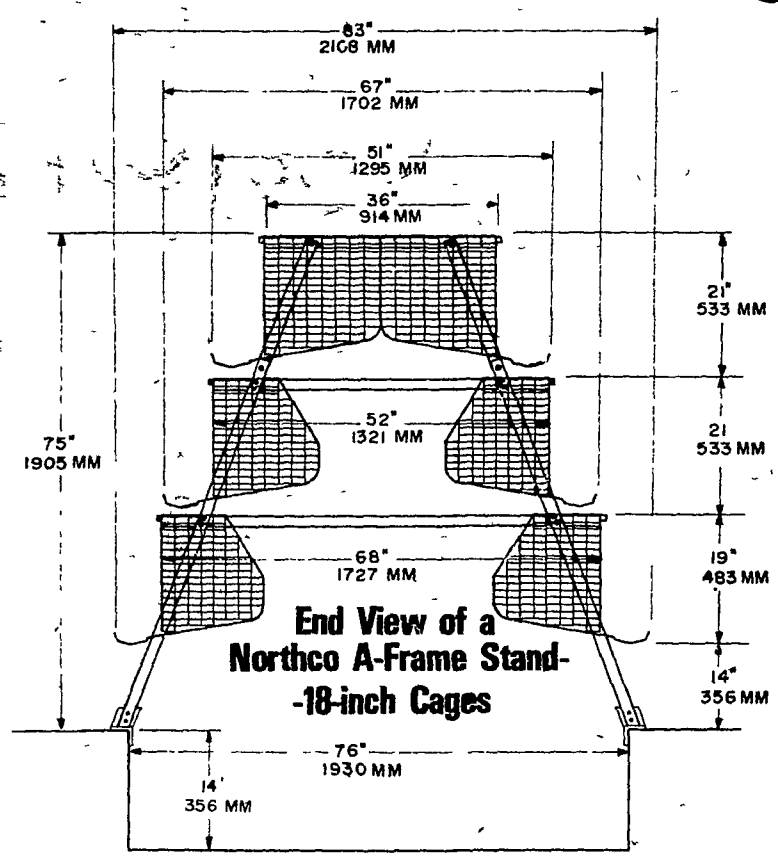
NORTHCO Slant-Back Cage Laying System



End View of a Northco A-Frame Stand--18-inch Cages

IT'S A TOTAL SYSTEM

Combine the Slant Back System with NORTHCO Cage Feeding, Ventilation, Egg Gathering and Manure Handling Systems and you have a total system engineered to provide efficiency and dependable performance.

HIGH DENSITY . . . LOW PROFILE

Northco's Slant-Back System is the simple way to increase profits by cutting building costs and increasing bird densities.

HIGH DENSITY - Using Northco's 18-inch (45.7 cm.) deep cages, forty thousand birds easily fit into a 40-foot (12.2 m.) wide house with a 420-foot (123 m.) long cage row. Systems with 16-inch (40.6 cm.) deep cages are even more compact. Either way the total height of the cage row is only 75-inches (191 cm.).

NO DROPPING BOARDS OR DROPPING BOARD SCRAPERS - Vinyl dropping shields on the slanted cage backs deflect manure into the pit. Manure on the shields dries and flakes off into the pit without build-up.

WELL VENTILATED - Northco's Roof Exhaust Ventilation System provides every bird on every deck the fresh air needed to minimize stress and increase production.

Farm Bureau forms marketing division

PARK RIDGE, Ill. – The formation of a marketing division in the American Farm Bureau Federation was announced last week by Allan Grant, president. The new division will be responsible for the development of new marketing programs to benefit Farm Bureau members, Grant said.

Dr. A. William Jasper, former director of the AFBF's poultry department, was named director of the new division, according to Richard W. Owens, chief administrator and secretary of AFBF. In his new position Jasper will also provide management services to American Agricultural Marketing Association, an AFBF affiliated company. He will coordinate activities of the existing fowl, processing vegetable, red tart cherry and apple marketing programs of AAMA.

Voting delegates at the 60th annual meeting in January, 1979 passed a resolution that, "AFBF establish a marketing division to coordinate the organization and operation of marketing programs."

The new division was authorized at the March 5-8, 1979 meeting of the AFBF Board of Directors.

"We were fortunate to have a man of Dr. Jasper's national and international renown on our staff. It enables us to move quickly to implement these recommendations," Owens said.

A native of Pennsylvania, Dr. Jasper received degrees in poultry science and agricultural marketing from the universities of Vermont, Ohio State and Cornell. His professional experience includes employment as a marketing specialist with USDA, managing editor of Poultry Tribune, and associate professor of farm management and marketing at Cornell University.

Jasper joined AFBF in 1959 serving as the organization's poultry specialist and as assistant secretary for market development and research. From 1966-71 he was manager of the AAMA poultry division. Active in several professional organizations, he is past president and a life-time member of the World's Poultry Science Association.

McHale addresses Young Farmers

DILLSBURG — James McHale, Pennsylvania's secretary of agriculture from 1970-76 under Governor Milton Shapp, told a group of York County farmers all about a soil innoculant last week. He was guest speaker at a meeting of the Gifford Pinchot Chapter of Pennsylvania Young Farmers, here.

McHale, who distributes Agrispon, claimed his product allows more nitrogen from the atmosphere to become available for all types of plant growth on the areas treated.

The next meeting of the Gifford Pinchot Young Farmers is scheduled for April 3 at 7:30 p.m. at Northern High School, here. Steve Fisher, a representative of FMC Corporation, will be discussing corn insect control. Prospective members are invited.

Farmers

"You guys have nothing to be ashamed of," Williams assured in his informal style. Although Dupont is the only industry that's bigger than agriculture in Delaware, and only steel beats farming in the Keystone State, agriculture is No. 1 in the Northeast as a whole.

"Twenty-five per cent of the people live in the Northeast; we produce 20 per cent of the milk, and 15 per cent of the eggs," the editor continued, emphasizing the strength and importance of the agricultural economy in the region.

Focusing his remarks briefly on the farm economy, Williams said present prices are good, but back in 1974, cows were selling for as little as nine cents a pound. He issued the reminder in hopes that legislators would be mindful of the rollercoaster statistics. "You should tell'em about that," he repeated. Cheese imports also concern the magazine editor, as he left no doubt that subsidized dairy imports from foreign lands irritate him. "Dumping subsidized stuff ; I wish you were there to tell'em," he said in reference to his upcoming trip to the nation's capital.

"You should be speaking, you're the experts," he said once again.

On preserving farmland, Williams paraphrased a statement made by then candidate Richard Thornburgh, who is now governor of Pennsylvania. To preserve farmland, first preserve the farmer, he exclaimed.

"Explain that there is a practical limit to environmental regulations and any other regulations. You guys must break down these barricades. Let'em know the truth. Farmers ought to get involved in government and meetings. Get your story told," the guest speaker concluded.

Senate Ag Committee proposes budget increase

WASHINGTON, D.C. – The Senate Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry recently proposed an increase of $927 million in the Carter Administration's recommended budget authority for the U.S. Department of Agriculture in FY 1980.

The Committee completed a two-day budget review by voting to recommend a spending level for agriculture of $21.4 billion in budget authority and $19.9 billion in cash outlays for the fiscal year beginning October 1. The Administration has proposed $20.5 billion in budget authority and $18.4 billion in outlays for the Agriculture Department.

Both the Committee's and the Administration's budget proposals would reflect a decrease in current year spending levels of $23.7 billion in budget authority and $20.2 billion in outlays.

The Agriculture Committee's budget recommendations will be submitted to the Senate Budget Committee, which will consider them in adopting the First Congressional Budget Resolution. The resolution must be reported to the Senate by April 15.

Major increases recommended by the Agriculture Committee in the budget authority provided under the President's proposed budget include: $347 million for the Food and Nutrition Service largely for the school lunch program; $36 million for agriculture and cooperative research; $51.4 million for Extension Service; $115 million for conservation programs; $89 million for the Farmers Home Administration; $60.7 for the Soil Conservation Service and $203.6 million for the U.S. Forest Service.

An attempt to reduce the Administration's budget request for the food stamp program for $6.9 billion to $6.2 billion to meet an appropriation ceiling – the so-called food stamp "cap" – written into the Food and Agriculture Act of 1977 was defeated by an 8 to 9 vote.

The Carter Administration will ask Congress in separate legislation to repeal the food stamp "cap" because of sharp rises in food costs since 1977. Unless the cap is repealed, the Administration says that food stamp allotments for all recipients will have to be reduced sometime during the 1980 fiscal year.

In addition to being recognized for production and ABC progeny, several of the dairymen in the 4-county area were cited for their assistance in using young sires during the past year. Atlantic Breeders Cooperative continues its extensive program of testing the true genetic merit of about 36 bulls per year through random matings in many different herds.

Members were also informed that 1978 was the most successful business year in Atlantic's history. Service technicians provided nearly 300,000 services, and semen sales increased to direct-herd breeders and through domestic and international distributors.

Atlantic sires maintained their rating among the nation's best for transmitting profitable traits, a management representative stated at each meeting.

A 23-minute movie was shown which depicts the life story of one of the cooperative's most popular sires and many of the daily operations of the sevice organization.

Atlantic members who were patrons in 1966 and 1968 received a cash refund totaling over $74,000. New equities have been issued to members active in 1978, amounting to 10 per cent of gross revenue for the year.

Members present at the four different meetings also voted for District representatives for the coming year.

Carter wins 'Connie'

WASHINGTON, D.C. – In recognition of his "outstanding" environmental record during his first two years in office, President Jimmy Carter has been named "Conservationist of the Year" by the National Wildlife Federation.

He received his "Connie" in a ceremony at the White House on March 19.

The "Connie" is a statuette of a whooping crane, an endangered species symbolizing the conservation cause. Carter is the first President to win the top "Conservationist of the Year" honor in the 16-year history of the award – regarded by many as the most prestigious in the conservation field.

He won it, said NWF, the nation's largest citizens conservation group, for his overall record on environmental issues, but especially for his fight on "costly and environmentally-unsound pork barrel water projects," his effort to protect the Alaskan wilderness from overdevelopment, and his defense of the Endangered Species Act.

CCC releases oats reserves

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Oats in the farmer-owned reserve was released for sale effective immediately by Stewart Smith, acting executive vice president of the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC). Farmers may sell their reserve oats after repaying their CCC price support loans.

Release of the reserve does not require farmers to redeem or sell their grain at this time.

Smith said the national average market price for oats is $1.29 per bushel, exactly 125 per cent of the $1.03 national loan rate, and the price level at which the commodity is released from the reserve. More than 42 million bushels of oats are in the reserve.

Farmers with grain in the reserve receive storage payments annually in advance from the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA). Upon repayment of the loan, farmers can keep the storage payments earned through the date of repayment or, if the loan is not repaid, the end of April.

On April 30, USDA will review the average price for oats to determine if the release authorization should remain in effect. If release continues, storage payments will stop in those states where the price remains above the release level.

Data used by CCC in determining the release level include a daily report by Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) which shows prices bid by buyers at selected markets, and a month-end Economics, Statistics, and Cooperatives Service (ESCS) report of prices received by farmers, showing the previous month's average price and the current mid-month price.

Chicago and Minneapolis are the daily markets reviewed by CCC for oats. The five-day average of the Chicago and Minneapolis market prices, adjusted to reflect prices received by farmers, was the basis for the action.

CONTROLLED

*WHAT IS AN "ENERGY–PAK" OXYGEN CONTROLLED FEED STORAGE SYSTEM?

The "Energy-Pak" "Oxygen Controlled" Storage System includes a solid, steel reinforced concrete wall with a tough epoxy coating on the inside wall and a cone shaped concrete roof All access openings to the Silage Storage area are round and fitted with air-tight gaskets These round openings are easily clamped tight These features help to control and limit the amount of oxygen that comes in contact with the feed

In operating an "Energy-Pak", prime importance is placed on closing the silo after each filling and feeding operation Proper use of this system significantly reduces the oxygen content in the silo and results in a more ideal condition for maintaining the quality of the feed put into it

Bug problems may bring back DDT

By JERRY WEBB
University of Delaware

NEWARK, DEL. — A book that has graced my bookshelf for more than 10 years bears the rather controversial title "Bugs or People". It's described as a reasoned answer to opponents of pesticides. The book, written by Wheeler McMillan, retired editor of Farm Journal, was copyrighted in 1965 and attempts to respond to "Silent Spring" and all of those other books, statements and advocates that dealt with the environment and the need to ban pesticides.

A lot has happened in the bug fighting business since Rachael Carson wrote her controversial "Silent Spring". A lot has happened since McMillan's "Bugs or People". The fact is insects have always been with us, sometimes in almost overwhelming numbers and the choice has been bugs or people. In recent times, however, through the use of many pesticides people in this country at least have been able to live with a certain level of insect damage and they've been able to protect the nation's food supply with a highly controlled arsenal of pesticides.

But environmental pressures have reduced that arsenal to the point where in at least some instances it's ineffective. And more than a few observers are starting to say that we're losing the battle with the insects. That, in fact, the "day of the locust" may be at hand. Evidence is fairly widespread indicating that bugs are getting the upper hand.

An article in Barrons magazine focused on this problem and presented fairly convincing evidence that our current attitude toward cleaning up the environment just may do us in. From the wheat states come stories of grasshoppers and chinch bugs. From the Corn Belt tales of the Japanese beetle, and right here in the northeast the gypsy moth is ruining thousands of acres of trees. And while this happens the Environmental Protection Agency continues its efforts to clean up the environment.

The pesticide industry has been guilty of crying wolf in the past. But the time may be close at hand when those chemicals approved for use will no longer control the insects that are with us.

It's more than economics. Farmers have talked long and hard about the added cost of producing food if certain pesticides were banned. But we may be approaching the time when cost is not the important consideration. Sure we can grow more crops in this country than we can eat, but that's not a reason to allow substantial shares to be devoured by insects.

When the average consumer thinks of agricultural pesticides, he or she probably thinks first of DDT. That one chemical has taken so much abuse and has been blamed for so much of this country's problems that you would almost believe it had political power. Despite all the claims about how it damages the environment, DDT does not kill people and that cannot be said for a lot of other chemicals that are still being used.

The man who did the first experimental work with DDT in the U.S. believes that the present ban on that product is a dreadful miscarriage of justice. Dr. Francis Gunther, who is chairman of the entomology department at the University of California, recently said that DDT is "the safest chemical that has ever been developed for intensive and for long term use".

Gunther got involved with DDT during World War II when a small quantity of it was smuggled out of Germany. He was looking for a new product to control lice among American soldiers. It proved to be very effective for that purpose and for a variety of other insect problems. He says its safety as far as humans were concerned was never a question. He cites an example of a man and his wife who took a teaspoon of DDT each day for breakfast for years without showing any ill effect from it.

Later on Gunther did research that showed DDT was in fact absorbed by plant tissues. That posed a health hazard, one that continues to plague American agriculture. DDT was used worldwide and so extensively that its residues could be found anywhere in the world and no doubt the environmental concerns were well founded. But in the meantime, DDT helped to control a lot of agricultural pests along with providing a needed assist in the control of typhus, plague, malaria, yellow fever, encephalitis, and a lot of other human diseases.

Pressure is mounting to bring back DDT and to open up some other avenues of research and development so that effective chemicals can be produced. Gunther believes DDT will make a comeback. He believes it will come back because it's so much safer than so many other chemicals that are so dreadfully toxic.

Agriculture may have to look to its traditional rival, the environmentalists, for support in bringing back DDT and in freeing up some other agricultural chemicals. Probably the gypsy moth will be the catalyst that will cause that interaction. As that tree-defoliating pest spreads across the northeast and gradually moves west, more and more environmentalists are wondering about the price that's being paid. The gypsy moth is not being effectively controlled. It is defoliating thousands of acres and trees are dying. Project that image a few years into the future and you come to a very grim conclusion. It would be better to control the gypsy moth with a chemical that has some environmental hazards than to see this nation lose its trees. It may also be more important to grow a successful corn crop or some other food crop even if it does jeopardize the bald eagle.

Its a hard choice but somewhere down the line the only choice may be "Bugs or People".

Evergreen trees can protect and act as fence

FLEMINGTON, N.J. – A row of evergreens carefully located on the property can provide a living fence..an addition to the landscape that's pleasing to the eye, as well as functional according to calvin Wettstein, Hunterdon County Extension agent. An evergreen screen can provide privacy, and to some degree, serve as a noise barrier.

Screen plantings have several possible applications on the farm. For years farmers have relied on evergreen screens to protect home and buildings from prevailing winds. They may also double as a snowfence along the farm lane, or screen off a part of the farm operation that the farmer would really not like to share with his neighbors or passersby.

Trees can reduce noise levels if properly placed, and if there are enough of them. It does take a wide belt of trees to do this effectively.

The home landscape scene can also benefit from evergreen screens, and for much the same reasons they've been popular on farms. Privacy may be the primary motive, but protection from the blustery winds of our cold months should also be considered.

One disadvantage is that it takes a great deal of time, and patience, for that row of evergreens to reach a point where it can be considered a screen. That is, unless you buy farily large specimens, and that can be quite costly.

One of the most popular evergreens used for a screen planting is the hemlock. It has a moderate rate of growth, lends itself to a formal hedge, as well as a freegrowing screen. If used in a formal hedge, they should be planted four to five feet apart; otherwise, something like 10 or 15 feet apart. Soil drainage must be good. Hemlock will not tolerate wet conditions.

On the farm, the usual choices for screens are White pine, Austrian pine, Scotch pine. They are listed as fast growers, can reach heights of 60 to 70 feet. They prefer good drainage, but Austrian pine can tolerate only fair drainage conditions.

The time is now to consider evergreen plantings. Early Spring is by far the favored time of year for the planting of evergreen seedlings and the transplanting of older evergreen stock. Plants balled in burlap or in containers are available from many sources.

Tree seedlings require considerable patience, but when large numbers of trees are to be used, it seems to be the most practical approach.

Tree seedlings are available from commercial nurseries.

In addition, the Hunterdon County Soil Conservation District offers bundles of evergreen seedlings in their annual sale. The species included are all adaptable to the area. There are 25 seedlings in a pack, 5 each of white pine, Scotch pine, Douglas fir, Norway spruce, and blue spruce.

You may also order single bundles, 25 in a bundle, of any of the above species.

Black walnut and northern red oak seedlings are also available.

Bill Dietze, district manager, tells us that the seedlings will arrive on April

Corn, sorghum set-aside payments may total $350 million

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Farmers who complied with the 1978 corn and grain sorghum set-aside programs will receive between $285 and $350 million in deficiency payments, Ray Fitzgerald, administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), said last week.

The payments will be made by county ASCS offices in early April. Corn payments will be between $115 and $165 million and grain sorghum will be between $170 and $185 million.

Fitzgerald said that the deficiency payment rates will be determined after publication on March 30 of the national average prices received by farmers for the first five months of the marketing year. Based on the reported prices for the first four months and a preliminary report for February, the payment rate will be between four and six cents per bushel for corn and 33 to 35 cents (59 to 63 cents per hundredweight) for grain sorghum, he said.

Deficiency payments are made to program participants when the national average market price for the first five months of the marketing season falls below the established (target) price for the commodity. The payment rate is the lower of the difference between the established price and the market price or national average loan rate.

CHORE-TIME

Brings You The Air System With A Mind Of It's Own.

Until now, most ventilation systems had one drawback. Air inlets had to be opened and closed by hand.

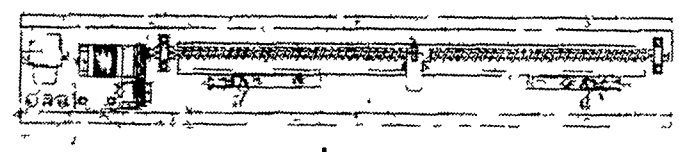
This was time consuming — and pretty much a matter of guesswork.

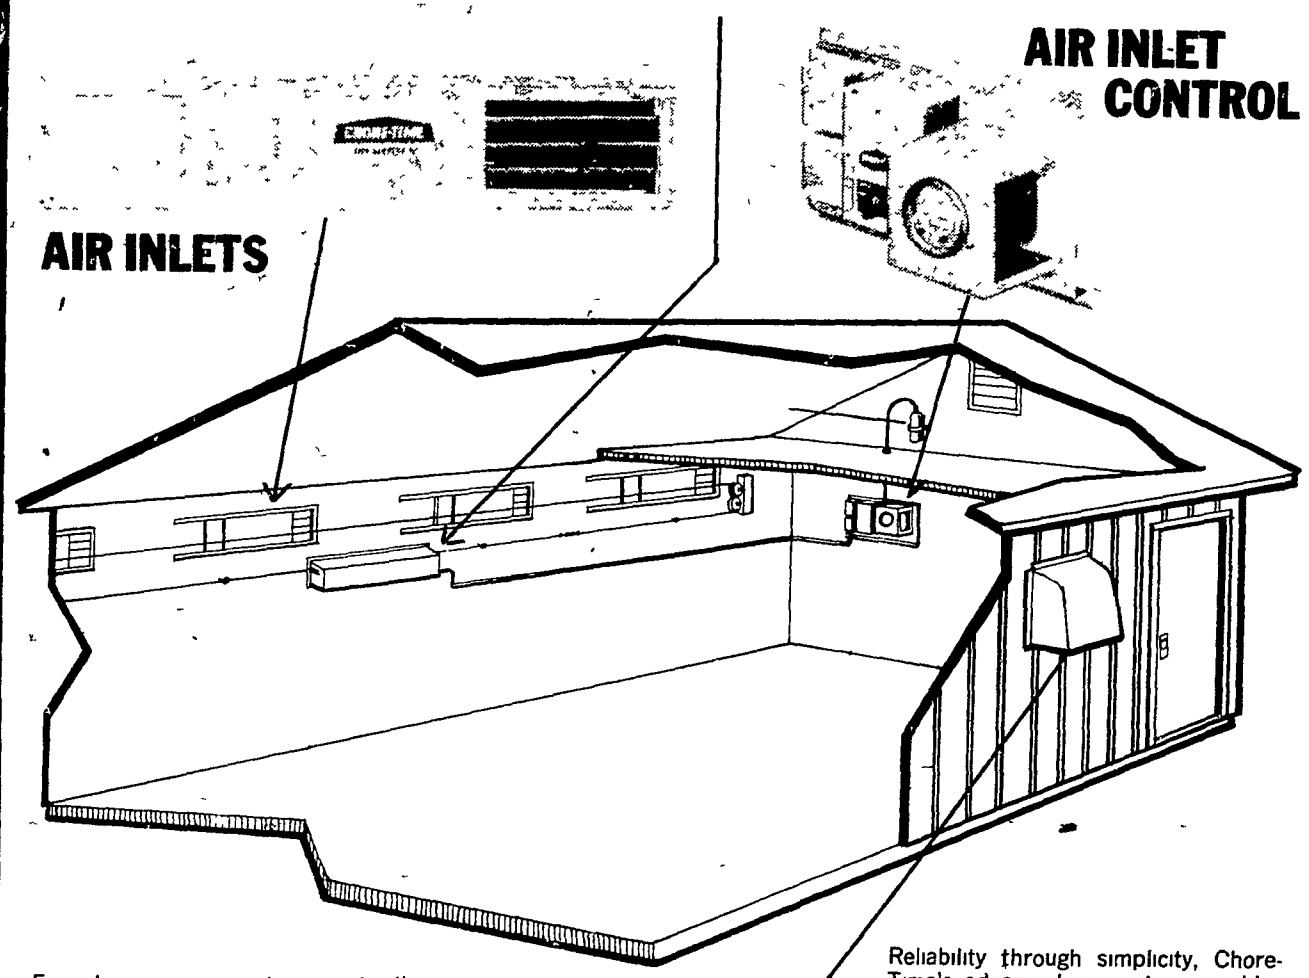
Now, Chore-Time has eliminated this problem.

The Chore-Time system has a mind of its own and adjusts inlets — in conjunction with fan operation — to maintain air pressure at a constant, preset level.

This provides a degree of air and moisture accuracy never before possible in poultry and livestock buildings.

The new inlet control (pictured) is just one of many exclusive features that make Chore-Time air systems number one in performance and reliability

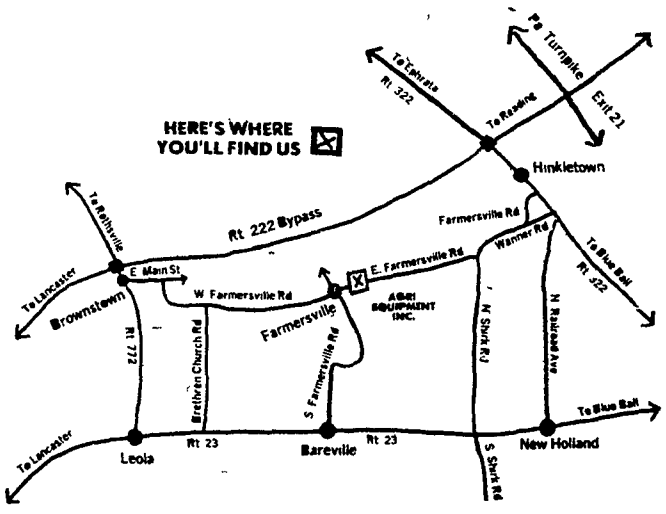




Four basic components go into the makeup of this ventilation system the fan, the inlet, the air inlet power pack, and the controls Coordinated, these four basic components can provide you with better conversion and performance by removing stresses due to lack of oxygen, excess humidity, noxious gases and temperature extremes

Reliability through simplicity, Chore-Time's advanced air system provides automatic control of incoming fresh air, moisture and heat for productive environmental control in agricultural buildings

AUTOMATIC HOOD FAN



If you're thinking about ventilation for a new or existing building, consider a Chore-Time Air System. Your local Chore-Time representative will explain how we do a lot more than move air. We have the proven components and the know-how to design a system that's exactly right for your operation.

Maryland asks for bee registration

ANNAPOLIS, Md. -- Before your honeybees get busy doing their wonderful thing, here is a reminder from the Maryland Department of Agriculture: please make sure you have registered your bee colonies with the Maryland Department of Agriculture.

The requirement to registered bee colonies goes back many years but due to the increased interest in beekeeping as a hobby – which is the way most of Maryland's beekeepers do it – there is always the chance that some colonies might not be registered and thereby miss the inspection service offered as part of registration and required by State law and regulations.

I. Barton Smith, MDA Apiary Inspector, says there is an additional benefit to registration in that it provides a record of where bee colonies are so that when questions of pesticide use come up, bee colonies may be protected.

The number of beekeepers in Maryland and the number of colonies of bees has risen dramatically in recent years according to MDA. In 1974 there were 582 registered beekeepers and 8,156 colonies registered.

In 1978, there were 1,459 registered beekeepers, and the number of honeybee colonies had risen to 10,638!

Honeybees are described as "the wings of agriculture," while others say, "bees are to agriculture, what investors are to the stock market." For without bees our fruit and many of our vegetable crops wouldn't exist.

Anyone who has not yet registered his honeybee colonies with MDA should contact: Maryland Department of Agriculture, Apiary Inspection, Parole Plaza Office Building, Annapolis, Maryland 21401, or call 301-269-2960.

Tax information offered

(Submitted by the Pennsylvania Institute of Certified Public Accountants on preparing 1978 Federal Income Tax Returns)

"Although most of the tax law revisions adopted by Congress last year did not take effect until this year, taxpayers now getting ready to prepare their income tax returns should be aware of the changes that apply to 1978 incomes," says John S. Ross, Jr., CPA, president of the South Central Chapter of the Pennsylvania Institute of Certified Public Accountants, "for most of these changes benefit the taxpayer."

Among persons affected are those who:

– Had capital gains or losses

– Are 55 or over and sold their homes after July 26, 1978

– Sold inherited assets that appreciated in value after 1976

– Made energy-saving modifications in their homes after April 19, 1977.

– Changed homes for employment reasons

Ross says as for the other changes you may have heard about – the raising of personal exemptions, the ending of the general tax credit, and the broadening of tax brackets to lessen the effects of inflation, and the increase in the earned-income credit to help low-income taxpayers – they become effective only in 1979.

Of more immediate concern, until the law was changed, 50 per cent of long-term capital gains had to be added to taxable income. Now, on most gains realized after October 31, 1978, only 40 per cent must be included. The complexity of changes in the treatment of capital gains, makes it necessary to compute gains and losses at two different rates.

Those persons 55 years old or over, who after July 26, 1978, sold a home at a profit after owning and occupying it for three of the past five years are eligible for a significant tax break. This once-in-a-lifetime exemption from capital gains tax on the first $100,000 of profit could be the biggest tax break most persons are ever likely to receive, so it should not be treated casually.

A change adopted earlier but which became effective in 1978 and thereafter determines the length of time an asset must have been held in order to qualify for a long-term gain or loss; it is now a full year. Another earlier change provides that in 1978 a taxpayer can offset up to $3,000 of net capital losses against ordinary income. In 1977 the maximum was $2,000.

The Tax Reform Act of 1976 provided for new treatment of assets inherited and sold after the end of the year. But Congress now has moved the start-up date for those changes back to 1980. So anyone who received a post-1976 legacy should check; they may have paid taxes on it that now are refundable.

If you improved the insulation in your home on or after April 20, 1977, or added storm windows or other fuel-saving devices, you may be eligible for a credit of 15 per cent of what you spent, up to a total credit of $300. If you put in solar heating or equipment utilizing renewable sources of energy, the credit can be even bigger. The energy-conservation credits apply only to principal places of residence, not vacation homes. They also do not apply to new homes.

It has long been true that if you make a profit on a home sale you can defer the capital gain tax if within eighteen months you reinvest in another home costing at least as much. It also has long been true that this 'rollover' could be used no more than once every year and a half. Effective in 1978, however, if the change of homes is employment connected, as in a change of your place of employment, you can defer the capital gain tax even if two sales occur within 18 months.

Farmers need lawyers more than ever

By GARY MAYK
Correspondent

LANCASTER – Which came first: the chicken or the regs?

"Regs" are the zoning regulations that are making it tough for even existing poultry operations to expand in the face of new residential development.

Even where the homes are in agricultural areas, farmers are finding zoning regulations are consuming time and money.

Nowhere was it more evident than at a poultry education meeting held recently by the Lancaster County Extension Service. About 80 poultry producers heard attorneys and the state's biggest turkey producer give tips on avoiding costly legal battles to settle zoning disputes.

They found out that it doesn't really matter which came first. What matters, farmers heard, is which side can last longest in the legal system.

Increasingly, attorneys are becoming as important a part of the poultry operation as financial counselors, suppliers and Extension agents. Fred Jaindl, who produces a million turkeys a year at his Lehigh County operation, said it clearly: "Be sure you have a good attorney or they will really make an ass out of you."

Jaindl has been the target of several legal efforts to block construction of pole barns on his turkey farms. Jaindl was himself a member of the South Whitehall Township Planning Commission, the body that recommends how township supervisors should zone land. He eventually resigned his post.

After his experience on both sides, Jaindl isn't too fond of the people who handle zoning. "Most planners don't know what they're doing," he charged, "and most township commissioners don't know what they're doing."

Jaindl said he did have an attorney who knew what he was doing. The result was a string of court decisions allowing him to expand to his present level of production. Faced with a "stop order" when nearby residents challenged one expansion project, Jaindl's attorney asked the court to require a bond to protect Jaindl from financial loss. The residents, failing to come up with the thousands of dollars required, dropped their case.

That can't always be done. Lancaster Attorney John F. Pyfer Jr., who fought challenges to Lancaster County poultryman Robert Weaver's broiler house plans, had no basis for asking the court to require a bond. But he also applied financial pressure that eventually caused the complainants to drop their suit against the Weavers.

"Whenever you're battling a citizens group, time is on their side," Pyfer said. By delaying construction through legal action, complainants hope that "perhaps you'll throw up your hands and give up or work out a compromise," he said. The longer protesters delay construction, the bigger the poultryman's income loss will be.

So, Pyfer used similar pocketbook tactics. When neighbors decided to appeal a temporary court order in Weaver's favor, they were ordered to pay the costs of having court records typed. It might have run to $500 or more, Pyfer said. He stepped in and said the Weavers would pay court costs if the complaint were dropped. That was the end of the case.

"They could have tied it up two or three years," Pyfer said. "The wheels of justice turn very slowly." In the Weaver case, compromise worked. "We're always willing to talk," Pyfer said, "but we're not willing to delay court dates."

Pyfer felt education of judges as well as education of the public about modern poultry operations is critical. "One citizen's reason for complaining was that he raised chickens in the 1930s and knew how smelly it was," Pyfer said. He admitted that he shared misconceptions about the poultry industry with other countians, many of whom moved to Lancaster's rural areas from large cities.

Pyfer and Jaindl emphasized that poultrymen facing challenges must be as well organized as opponents. That means carefully – and thoroughly – piling up evidence to combat claims of odors and dust. In some cases, water runoff also becomes an issue. A poultry operation that is well planned will have none of these problems, according to Jaindl.

But finding evidence that will hold up in court can be difficult. According to Jaindl, he had trouble enlisting help from the Extension Service, although he has used the service extensively in the turkey operation.

"Whenever you're battling a citizens group, time is on their side ... The wheels of justice turn very slowly," says Lancaster attorney John F. Pyfer, Jr., who successfully defended a poultry farmer in a case last Summer involving zoning ordinances.

Jay Irwin, Lancaster County Agent who works with poultrymen, explained that an administrative ruling from Penn State's Agriculture College prohibits court appearances by Extension staff members unless they are subpoenaed. Irwin said he didn't mind the subpoena. Some Extension staff members reportedly do not want the involvement, however, and request not to be called in as witnesses.

Irwin's own role in locating poultry experts in the Weaver case was praised by attorney Pyfer.

Irwin agreed that a good attorney is more important than ever to farming and production operations. He said the importance of level advice has proven invaluable in other matters, such as wills and estate tax planning.

Farmers need lawyers

Irwin doesn't want to see the state's agriculture operators come in contact with the law only when a suit is filed. Farmers and producers should be helping in the lawmaking process.

"Get involved in zoning boards and township commissioners," Irwin said. "In decisions that affect you, you want to get involved." Involvement is one way of solving the educational problem that confronts the farm community when it deals with a public that has little modern farm knowledge.

John Hoffman, executive director of the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation, agreed. "We can see what's happening with developments. Farmers can see their areas being moved in on. They're beginning to think, maybe (they) should run for zoning board or commissioner or get on the zoning board."

Hoffman thinks the problem is a local issue that cannot be decided by state laws. Only local people know what's good for their area, he said, and in rural areas, nobody feels it more than the farmer.

The state Deparment of Environmental Resources has been restricted from ruling on dust and odors on normal farming operations, Hoffman noted. "Now it's up to local governments or neighbors," Hoffman said.

And it's also up to the farmer – and the poultryman. Jaindl said it will take proper farm planning, including isolation of houses where possible. It will take proper manure management. It will take proper house design to keep odors and dust down.

And, as Pyfer said, it will take education. "Without it," he said of the favorable Weaver case, "the decision would have been different."

Present at a recent Lancaster County Poultry Producers' Association meeting, Fred Jaindl of Lehigh County advised farmers to have a good attorney when they're faced with zoning and construction problems. Jaindl is the largest turkey producer in Pennsylvania and has faced numerous challenges from residents who live near his farm.

Tour planned to discover roots of Pa. Germans

NUREMBERG -- A retracing of the roots and the route taken by the ancestors of Pennsylvania Germans as they made their way through Europe toward settlement in America will be undertaken by the American German Language & Cultural Society, Inc. of Nuremberg, Pa.

A 15-day guided tour departing on May 18 from Pennsylvania, still has some seats available. Interested persons should contact the Society immediately at Box No. 636, Nuremberg, Pa. 18241, or phone (717) 384-3200.

The group will travel by bus to New York City to board a jet plane for Luxembourg. A modern German tourbus will take the visitors through five countries and various places of interest to the descendants of the Pennsylvania Germans. The Dutch port and town of Hellevoetsluis in Holland, where many of the settlers, heading for the New World during the 1700's had to wait for years before they could board a ship bound for America, will be visited. Other places of interest in Holland will include the "Keucfenhof", world famous flower gardens, Alkmar, the "cheese capitol" of the world, the small old fishingtown of Vollendam, whose traditions and folk customs take the visitor back in time a couple of centuries. Before departing Holland, the group will also tour Amsterdam and ride through the city's canals. Heading south into Germany the group will visit Krefeld, home of the Krefelders and first settlers of Germantown which is now the Germantown section of Philadelphia. Following a tour of the city of Cologne and its magnificent cathedral, the tour will then travel on to Womelsdorf in the Wittgensteiner Land. The founders of Womelsdorf near Reading. The trip continues south into Bavaria touring the area of Wuerzburg, Nuremberg, and the mideval town of Rothenburg. A visit to the birthplace of Franz Daniel Pastorius in Sommerhausen near Wuerzburg will be made. Pastorius was the first German to set foot on Pennsylvania soil. A good friend of William Penn, he was instrumental in getting many German settlers into Pennsylvania. He is also the founder of Germantown, Pa., at the time called "Deutschstadt". On his second return to the New World he brought the Krefelders along on the ship "Concord", considered the Mayflower of the German immigrants. While in Bavaria the group will also tour its capitol city of Munich and visit the "Hofbraeuhaus".

From here the tour continues to Salzburg in Austria, and along the worlds most scenic areas, the German and Austrian Alps to the Tirol and its capitol city of Innsbruck. Returning into Bavaria via Mittenwald and Garmisch-Partenkirchen, the town of Oberammergau (Passion Play city) will be toured along with the nearby King Ludwig's castle "Schloss Linderhof". Continuing the tour through the German Allgaeu, a very scenic and mainly cattle raising region, the group will enter Switzerland and tour some of the areas which were once home to the forefathers of the Amish and Mennonites of Pennsylvania. With a trip on a large ferry boat across Lake Constance (Bodensee), the group enters into the Black Forest of Germany. Here, among others, an old famers village turned into an open air museum, will be visited as well as a "cuckoo clock" shop. The tour continues to Heidelberg and Speyer in the Palatinates. It was in the cathedral of Speyer where the Protestant church was first officially recognized in Germany after the reformation. The remaining days of the tour will be spent in the Palatinates, place of origin of the great majority of the Pennsylvania German settlers. Here, historic places dating back before the time of emmigration will be visited. Also time will be spent at the "Heimatstelle Pfalz" in Kaiserslautern, a combination museum and library, containing all the information and records concerning the emmigration with names of the people who left for America. Many Pennsylvania German families have found their ancestors here.

Anyone interested in joining this cultural excursion is invited to come along.

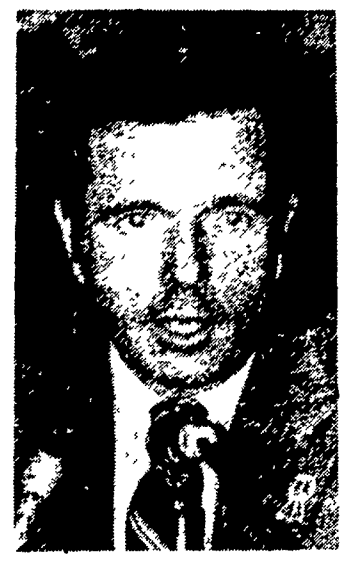
PFA went to Washington without tractors

Eugene Thompson



John Heinz

GETTYSBURG — Approximately 250 members of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association met their senators and representatives March 14 and 15 to discuss problems such as inflation, marketing and bargaining legislation, and repealing the Delaney Clause controlling food additives. The group also opposed President Carter's proposal to reorganize the Department of Agriculture.

Legislators were familiarized with the Farmers' Association's efforts to repeal the carry over basis provision of the Tax Reform Act of 1976 which requires heirs of inherited property to pay Capital Gains Tax on increased value of the property before it was inherited.

The Farmers Association suppports repeal or modification of the Delaney Ammendement to the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act, which because of the development of more sensitive scientific techniques has threatened the use of valuable items such as saccharin.

At a banquet attended by many congressmen and their aides PFA President Eugene Thompson emphasized some of the policies of the Farmers' Association which represents 21,000 Pennsylvania Farm Family Members. Thompson said that PFA has been calling for inflationary reform for the past 25 years. "Our farmer members still believe that government-fed inflation is bigger problem than any other economic or social problem facing citizens of this great nation." Thompson said, "It robs the poor; it kills initiative to work; it stifles business and it is bankrupting farming."

Senator John Heinz III spoke at the Thursday breakfast opposing President Carter's proposal to weaken the U.S. Department of Agriculture by transferring the Farm Home Administration out of USDA into the Commerce Department and the Forestry Service to the Department of Interior, The Senator also said he will introduce legislation to limit federal spending by trying spending through a formula to the Gross National Product (GMP).

The Congressman generally opposed the Constitutional Convention but favored some type of control on government spending.

Soybean meeting clarifies price factors

COLLEGE PARK, Md. - Only 50 years ago, the soybean was considered a "poor man's crop," just as minor crops like the winged bean, tarwi and the amaranths are regarded today on the world farming scene.

But modern writers now refer to the soybean variously as a "wonder" or "miracle crop."

As though to prove the point, some 900 farm-oriented persons turned out last month for the thirteenth annual Delmarva soybean meeting.

As in past years, the educational event was sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service organizations headquartered at the land-grant universities in Maryland and Delaware. Yeoman assistance was again provided by related agribusiness firms serving the entire Delmarva peninsula.

To veteran observers, it was interesting to note the trend toward greater emphasis being placed on marketing, compared with earlier versions of the same event. This marked the first year, for instance, that three commodity futures brokerage companies were represented as exhibitors among the list of financial sponsors.

And one of their number made a well-received talk during the formal program on "Soybean Marketing Strategies." He was Robert Purkey, vice-president at the Norfolk, Va., office of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith, Inc.

Purkey declared that "the days are gone forever when a farmer merely needs to accept the price that is offered for his production." This was an obvious reference, of course, to opportunities for hedging, storage and forward contracting which are among the many marketing alternatives available to modern U.S. farmers.

Here are 10 of the dozen or more economic factors which he listed as having current or potential impact on U.S. soybean prices: 1. Plunge of the U.S. dollar; 2. upheaval in Iran; 3. the new relationship with mainland China; 4. bountiful world harvests in the past 12 months; 5. increased petroleum prices from OPEC (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries); 6. huge U.S. trade deficit in the world market; 7. foreign investments in the U.S., including farmland; 8. Mexican oil; 9. India becoming more self-sufficient; and 10. final size of the Brazilian soybean crop now being harvested.

That last factor is the dominant one right now, Purkey commented. He noted that recent preliminary estimates on the size of the Brazilian soybean crop have been revised downward. But offsetting this is the belief in trade circles that last year's Brazilian crop was underestimated and the fact that this year's soybean crop in Argentina appears to be in good shape.

Bullish traders have been encouraged by frigid Winter weather bringing on heavy usage of soybean meal by livestock producers; soybean processors having favorable profit margins until recently, and reports that Russia appears trying to supplement a poor sunflower seed oil crop in that nation last year.

On the bearish side, however, Purkey noted big carry-over stocks of soybean oil and soybeans on hand. And the late Spring which appears likely this year in major Midwest soybean-producing states is likely to accelerate a shift from corn to soybeans, thus triggering a U.S. soybean crop even larger than the record-shattering 1.843 billion bushels in 1978.

The commodities analyst said that he sees a fairly volatile soybean market in the near future, with swings of 50 to 60 cents per bushel. In view of this, he advised his listeners to "seriously consider moving soybeans now in storage" by such marketing techniques as forward contracting or shifting hedges.

On the prophetic side—just a few days before the current fighting started in Asia—he commented, "I look with mounting fear at the Chinese armies on the borders of Vietnam." This factor could add to the potential for volatility in the soybean market.

Purkey presented a fairly optimistic viewpoint on the long run outlook for soybeans. He noted that soybean prices in the Delmarva area are competitive with those normally offered anywhere else in the U.S.—maybe even better, thanks to nearness of export facilities and an expanding broiler industry.

In conclusion, he offered the following axiom on marketing strategy: "Bulls sometimes make money, and bears sometimes make money. But hogs eventually get slaughtered.

"We may yet see soybeans this marketing season at $8 per bushel. On the other hand, they could hit $6 at the low end of the trading range. But it is difficult to foresee soybean prices retracing the (widely fluctuating) price patterns of 1973-77."

Farm tax issue repealed

WASHINGTON, D.C. – The American Farm Bureau Federation has called for complete repeal of the "carryover basis provision" of the 1976 tax reform act.

In a statement delivered by John Datt, Director of AFBF's Washington office, Farm Bureau said the "carryover basis fosters an insidious bias against farmers and ranchers." Datt said it does this by taxing appreciation in capital assets that is due largely to inflation, rather than increased productivity.

The testimony was delivered to the Subcommittee on Taxation and Debt Management of the Senate Finance Committee.

Datt said farm and ranch heirs should not be forced to pay increased taxes on an artificial gain in land values, especially when the appreciation occurred prior to their ownership.

Under the carryover basis provision which has been suspended until 1980, an heir must pay capital gains taxes based on the original price of the land, not value at the time it was inherited.

To show the serious impact of inflation, Datt noted that the average price for an acre of farmland in 1972 was $216. By early 1977, the figure had reached $452, an increase of 109 per cent in five years.

Datt said that by repealing the carryover basis, "Congress will recognize a contribution of a sector of our society and economy that has taken great economic risks to build a productive and efficient agriculture. Heirs must not be penalized for the skill, enterprise and vision of their benefactors."

Lebanon County DHIA Monthly Report

FEBRUARY 1979

A registered Holstein named Ellalu left considerable distance between herself and the runnerup in the Lebanon County milk production standings. Producing 26,760 pounds of milk testing 3.0 per cent butterfat, she outproduced 5-year old Dairyman which yielded 24,348 pounds of 3.8 per per cent fat milk. Their butterfat poundages were 807 and 920, respectively. Ellalue is at home at Willowmaple Farm, while Dairyan is owned by Ivan Weiler.

The champion butterfat producer for lactations completed in February was No. 66 of Wernerway Farm. Beginning her lactation at age 3 years and 2 months, she pumped out 20,444 pounds of milk and 934 pounds of butterfat. She averaged a 4.6 per cent butterfat test. Second in butterfat was Weiler's Dairyan.

Cedar Crest chooses outstanding FFA members

By SALLY BAIR
Staff Writer

LEBANON – Cedar Crest FFA President Lester Heinaman was named Star Agribusinessman and received the DeKalb Award for outstanding senior at the chapter's 14th annual banquet held Tuesday.

Heinaman was cited by FFA Advisor Harold Berkheiser for his outstanding work for the chapter. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac O. Heinaman, Quentin. He also received an FFA Foundation Award in agriculture electrification.

Dean Moyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Moyer, Lebanon, was a multiple winner also. He received a trophy for corn production for producing 171 bushels per acre, and a trophy for his work in dairying. He received FFA Foundation Awards for crop farming and dairy production as well. Moyer is chapter treasurer.

Roy Shirk was recognized as the Star Chapter Farmer and for his work on the dairy judging team. Shirk placed third in the state as an individual and was a member of the state team which placed first in competition with 13 states. He received an FFA Foundation Award for public speaking. Shirk, chapter vice-president, is the son of Mrs. Audrey Shirk, Lebanon.

Heinaman, Moyer and Shirk all received Keystone Degree pins.

In a touching tribute, Heinaman, Moyer, Shirk and other senior officers presented plaques to their parents which read, "in appreciation to my parents for guidance throughout the years."

In giving the award to his mother, Shirk told the students to "look to your parents. They know better than we do."

Paul Miller, chapter reporter, presented the award to his father, Harold E., Lebanon. Miller received a trophy as outstanding stockman for his work with beef animals and horses.

Chapter Sentinel Clyde Forney gave the award to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Forney, Lebanon. He said, "I appreciate the guidance and help you have given me throughout the four years." Forney received an award for his performance in the area tractor driving contest.

In his remarks, Principal Joseph Sakalosky praised the seniors for recognizing their parents who provide the "root and base of support for them. This is a perceptive group of students." He challenged the chapter to recruit more female members, saying the girls did well and helped make it a better program.

Other top award winners included Sheila Haulman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Haluman, Lebanon, for outstanding horseman, and Arthur Arnold, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Arnold, Lebanon, as a winner in agriculture mechanics for his work with the small gas engines team.

Receiving awards for their endeavors in FFA in the past year were Mark Patches, Clyde Forney, and Roy Shirk, of Lebanon, and Lester Heinaman, Quentin.

Mark Patches, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark C. Patches, Lebanon, was named Star Greenhand: Dawn Shirk, daughter of Mrs. Audrey Shirk, received a plaque for her outstanding work as secretary; and Daryl Balmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Balmer, Lebanon R4, was cited for his outstanding contributions to the chapter.

Dennis Brubaker, Lebanon R7, was recognized for having received the American Farmer Award, the highest degree which can be bestowed on an FFA member.

Donna Lansberry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Lansberry, Mine Road, Lebanon, was recognized for having received the national horse proficiency award.

In a special presentation, Clair Gerbrick gave an award of recognition from the Lebanon Soil Conservation District to the chapter for their forestry conservation project. Gerbrick noted the work the students have done in establishing an area which serves as an outdoor classroom both for the chapter and for other school students. He complemented the chapter on "a job well done."

The senior members of the chapter presented an award to Richard Moore, former FFA Advisor, who is now in charge of the Young Farmer program. Heinaman noted that the class of 1979 is the last freshman class Moore worked with, and gave the award "in appreciation for sharing knowledge with us." Berkheiser, who is in his first year, received an award from the class "in appreciation for sincere and devoted efforts."

The freshmen members presented honorary chapter degrees to Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Forney, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Heinaman and Richard Moore.

Certificates of appreciation were presented to Jay Lentz, former FFA Advisor; Joseph Hartman, high school guidance counselor; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reist Jr. and Mrs. and Mrs. Carl Reist.

FFA Foundation Awards were given to the following: Mike Balsbaugh, outdoor recreation; James Ault and Ed Kale, soil and water managemnt; Gary Mase, dairy production; Clyde Forney and David Kreider, farm safety; Dawn Shirk, floriculture; Ron Copenhaver, beef production; Arthur Arnold and John Kline, agriculture mechanics; Paul Miller, diversified livestock production; Sheila Haulman, horse proficiency; and Steve Wenger, poultry production.

Scholarship pins were given to the following: Arthur Arnold, Mark Patches, Walter Stumpf, Mike Balsbaugh, Ed Kale, Clyde Rexrodl, Dave Noll, Dawn Shirk; Sheila Haulman, Dean Moyer and Dale Zuck.

Sheryl Bollinger, state secretary, challenged the FFA members to give all they have to FFA. She encouraged them to have a healthy self-image and positive confidence, not conceit. She told them to accentuate their positive attributes, saying "trying and failing is better than not having tried at all." She said that no one is a born loser or a born winner, but a winner never quits.

She said a committment is necessary to give all they have. While it is a temptation to put off a commitment, that could result in FFA passing them by. "To gain total satisfaction there must be a total commitment," she stated. Sheryl, who hails from the Cloister FFA Chapter and is now a freshman at Penn State, told members, "Give your whole self to FFA to get full rewards. If the going gets tough, just keep looking ahead. We have the power to mold each moment."

The following project book contest winners were announced: Arthur Arnold, first gold state pin, first blue county; Mike Balbaugh,

Flower show captures breath of Spring

BALTIMORE – One step into the Baltimore Civic Center was all that was needed last week to forget Winter's freezing temperatures and the fickleness of March's weather.

There were daffodils, tulips and lilies in abundance, and restful gardens with flowering trees. Spring had truly come, if only for a few days.

The occasion was the second annual Baltimore Flower and Plant Show, and though small in size, the retail exhibits offered a brief, but beautiful, visit to Springtime, with expanses of flowers, grass, trees and goldfish ponds.

Tom Shaner, promotor of the show and executive director of the Allied Florist Association of Baltimore, said visitors were up 75 per cent from last year, with an estimae of 30,000 people attending. He explained that while the first show was primarily an outlet for retail stores, this year's show was organized with "more color, more variety and more tree foliage. We've also mixed in more flower gardens. We are very pleased with the whole show and the quality of work of the retailers."

(Turn to Page 138)

Signs of Spring were evident at the flower show, with displays artfully created to capture the look of the outdoors.

According to Shaner there were 60 selling booths, 40 informational and educational exhibits, 24 major garden displays and two stage areas where demonstrations were scheduled regularly throughout the five-day show.

Not only did people come to see the flowers but this artist decided that the displays were pretty enough to paint.

The University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service booth was a popular place for all visitors. There they could get free advice on problems. Dr. Russell Balge, Baltimore County horticultural agent, who organized the booth, said, "We get a lot of questions and the run the gamut from fruit trees, to lawn care to trees and shrubs to houseplants. We are offering bulletins, and a monthly gardening newsletter." Balge said horticulture agents from around the state helped man the booth throughout the week.

Balge also helped organize most of the ten different talks being offered at the stage areas. The talks covered a variety of topics: terrariums, bonsai, vegetable gardening, lawn care, house plants, grape culture, fruit trees and small fruits.

One result of their booth, according to Balge, is to introduce people to the service provided by the Extension office. "Many people don't know the Extenstion service exists," Balge noted.

A day at the flower show is a day of relaxation for young and old. The Baltimore show offered something for everyone.

Case...all over your place

cultivating, disking, drying, loading, haying, scraping, plowing

The Low Profile work-work-workhorses from the Tractor Specialists. Five models*, from 43 to 80 PTO HP deliver the prime power or chore power for many jobs on any farm. We gave a lot of thought to the jobs you'd put them to and did something about it.

FOR EXAMPLE:

Our high torque engines not only give lively power and quick response, but outstanding fuel savings. Our 12 speed synchromesh transmission provides nine working speeds under 7 MPH and fast on-the-go shifting. Optional 12 speed range power shifts are offered for the 65 and 80 horsepower models with four on-the-go speed choices in each of three ranges.

Multi-speed PTO on the 43 thru 65 HP models provides a 540 speed at both 1800 and 1100 RPM engine speed — matches the power to the job for top fuel efficiency.

To give solid support for heavy attachments, we use a heavy box section main frame. Hydrostatic steering permits fast, easy loading and maneuvering. A differential lock ties rear wheels together to help keep you moving in slippery going. For really top traction in heavy drawbar or loader work, the models 1210 and 1410 are available with front wheel assist. And, for mounted and semi-mounted implements, there is a single lever hydraulic control for depth, height, and traction control (TCU).

Shop around and you'll find Case features as standard that cost extra on other makes or Case options that aren't even offered by others. Compare and you'll put a Case Low Profile to work on your place ... everyplace.

World Ploughing Contest

Peace and understanding mean more than a trophy

By JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

RED LION – Adventuring to the state of Hessen, Federal Republic of Germany to participate in a World Ploughing Contest, is not an every day event. Among 16 representatives from the United States who took part in the contest last September were Charles and Shirley Hess of Dallastown R1.

The Hess family, which includes Brad, John and daughter Penny, specialize in dairy and crops production on their York County farm. A plowing enthusiast for many years, Charles has won several county and state titles in the contour and large plow divisions of the Pennsylvania tillage competition.

World ploughing

Hess was the speaker during the annual banquet of the Red Lion Young Farmers Association, held at the high school on March 6. His presentation included slides of the German-hosted plowing competition, Switzerland and Italy.

While representing Pennsylvania at past National Plowing Contests, the Hesses had become close friends with Illinois champion Alvin Wolf. When the Wolf's 21-year-old daughter Colleen became the first women ever to win the national contest, and the first woman to ever compete in the world plow-offs, Charles and Shirley elected to attend their international competition.

An extra incentive to make the Germany plowing visit was the nearby American military base where son Brad was then stationed with the Air Force.

Site of the tillage event was the town of Niddatal, in Wetterau district. This central part of Germany is rich in agriculture grain production and in earlier times was known as the "granary of the Holy Roman Empire."

A former monastery estate, Wickstadt, hosted the field events and the large display of farm show type exhibits of equipment from all over the world.

Wickstadt is an extremely large estate by German standards, and includes 330 hectares of agriculture land and 300 hectares of forest. (A hectare is equal to about two and one-half acres.) The estate has passed down through generations of the Counts zu Solm family and is presently owned by an 18-year-old descendant.

By comparison, Hess indicated, the average German farm is only 30 to 50 hectares with about 15 dairy cows. Grain crops such as barley and oats are popular, with sugar beet production rapidly increasing as well.

" To the Germans, the plowing contest is much like the Olympics," says Hess, who worries that proper tillage of the soil is becoming a neglected art in America. Over five thousand German competitors participated in last year's local eliminations, with the top winners plowing for their national title just a day prior to the world event.

A total of 19 countries sent two representatives each to Niddatal to compete in stubble and grassland divisions. Contestants got only one chance to turn the ground and were judged on detailed scoring sheets.

Points were earned for uniformity, conformity and straightness of the opening split, complete turn-under of stubble, weeds and grass, depth, neatness and regularity of the furrow and the perspective seedbed appearance and workability.

Hess noted that plowing is taught as part of the German vocational agriculture curruculum in school, which ag-career minded youngsters must complete in order to become "certified farmers." Like most European countries, the Germans value their soil resources too highly, to just allow anyone to farm it without proper training.

With representatives of 19 countries housed together during the entire competition, Hess sees the contest as more a chance to establish peace and understanding than a mere place to hand out trophies. Even though they often could not communicate with delegations from the other side of the world, a mutual love of the land brought them together on a common ground of fellowship.

As a permanent memorial to the goodwill established by the annual plow-off, a statue known as the "Cairn of Peace" is built at the site of each world contest and bears a plaque from each competing nation. Next year's contest is set for Myroe in Londonderry, Northern Ireland. The site is on poulder land reclaimed from the Atlantic Ocean over 100 years ago.

Both Charles and Shirley were deeply impressed with the beauty and neatness of the European countryside and the strict standards imposed to maintain original farm structures, many of which date back to the thirteenth century. During several day long excursions, hosted by German farm women organizations, they visited agriculture points of interest, including a research farm now located at a school once attended by Martin Luther.

About 170 members and guests attended the Young Farmers annual dinner. Gordon Grady of the Red Lion Jaycees also gave a brief slide presentation featuring Roy Jackson Jr., winner of the local group's Outstanding Young Farmer Award.

Jackson is president of the young farmer group, which is advised by vo-ag instructor John Myers.

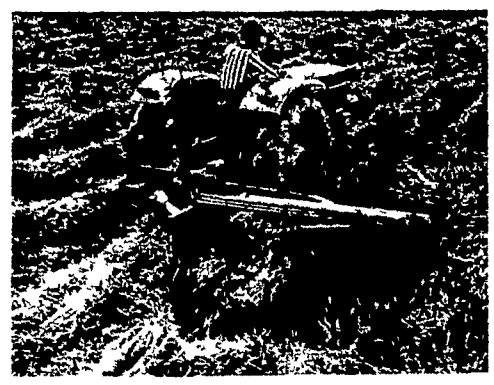
Vicon doublet/mower conditioner

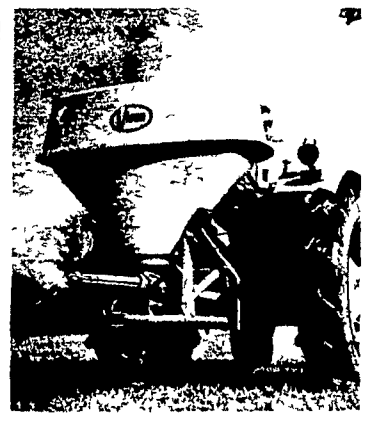
New concept in cutting and conditioning grass



The New Vicon Doublet/Mower Conditioner offers a new concept in grass conservation The Vicon Doublet/Mower cuts, conditions and produces a light airy swath, reducing valuable time required to produce good quality hay and wilted silage. Conditioning at the same time as cutting is accomplished by incorporating the same cutter bar as the Vicon Discus disc mower with a conditioning rotor mounted above. The sucking action picks up the cut grass and delivers it to the back of the machine in light, fluffy swaths.

Vicon fertilizer spreader

The most accurate fertilizer spreader you can buy



The Vicon Spreader uses an exclusive fast-action spout moving back and forth at 540 times per minute to give even, rectangular coverage instead of the usual circular pattern
That means increased profit because you get uniform fertilizer coverage, resulting in better stands and higher yields

Give the Vicon fertilizer spreader a try. It costs no more than others. But it's better.

Machinery expo had over 200 exhibitors

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania's first ever Farm Machinery Exposition, which opened here Thursday, March 8 and continued through Saturday, March 10, had over 200 commercial and agricultural exhibitors represented. They offered the latest in farm machinery and energy conservation methods. Energy conservation in agriculture was a theme for the show. A third big attraction, were the farm safety demonstrations held in the Small Arena. On the final day, a large farm machinery auction was held.

Lieutentant Governor William Scranton III was on hand to officially open the Exposition, stressing the importance of agribusiness and agriculture in Pennsylvania's economy. He pledged that the administration would work hard to help Pennsylvania farmers become lass dependent on oil resources, and noted that Pennsylvania can be self-sufficient because of its agricultural and industrial diversity.

Pennsylvania's first ever Farm Machinery Exposition opened here Thursday, March 8 and continued through Saturday, March 10. Over 200 commercial and agricultural exhibitors were represented, offering the latest in farm machinery and energy conservation methods. Energy conservation in agriculture was a theme for the show.

Lieutentant Governor William Scranton III was on hand to officially open the Exposition, stressing the importance of agribusiness and agriculture in Pennsylvania's economy. He pledged that the administration would work hard to help Pennsylvania farmers become lass dependent on oil resources, and noted that Pennsylvania can be self-sufficient because of its agricultural and industrial diversity.

State Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell also put in a plug for energy conservation on the farm, and expressed his confidence in the ability of the Pennsylvania farmers to meet problems head on and come out ahead.

Both the Governor's Energy Council and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture had displays at the Machinery Exposition aimed at promoting good energy conservation practices in the home and on the farm. Hallowell noted that a number of commercial exhibitors also stressed the need for conservation at their exhibits. More than 20 publications with information on energy conservation, methods were available at the two exhibits.

Shearing school scheduled

NEWVILLE - Sheep shearing skills will be taught at schools to be conducted over 4 days this Spring in Cumberland and York Counties. The shearing schools, part of the educational outreach of the Cooperative Extension Service of Penn State, will be held near Newville, Cumberland County, on April 19, 20 and 21 and at Hallam, York County on April 23rd.

All participants will be expected to attend two days of the program. Instruction will begin at 9:30 a.m. each morning and end about 4 p.m. It is noted that sheep shearing requires stamina and fortitude, and people who are not willing to work at learning the techniques should not enroll.

Comments on proposed grain program wanted

WASHINGTON, D.C. - The U.S. Department of Agriculture has proposed changes in the U.S. Grain Standards Act that deal with grain inspection and weighing and is requesting public comment by May 1.

The major areas of change are grain inspection, registration, who should be exempt from inspection and weighing requirements for export grain, mechanical sampling, recordkeeping, and performance requirements for grain weighing equipment.

Under the proposals, elevators that ship less than 15,000 metric tons of export grain per year would be exempt from the inspection and weighing provisions. Those handling less than 15,000 metric tons of export grain would also be exempt from having to register with the department.

Also, elevators will be required to keep records of receipts and shipments of grain and other records that are now being kept in the normal course of good business practice. Records would be required only if the elevator obtains official inspection and weighing service and also ships grain by rail and water.

Leland E. Bartelt, administrator of the department's Federal Grain Inspection Service (FGIS), said the proposals are meant to implement extensive changes that Congress made in the act in 1976 and 1977.

Comments should be sent to FGIS Compliance Division, room 2405-A, Auditors Bldg., U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C., 20250, by May 1.

1979 field crop guide available

FLEMINGTON, N.J. - "Production Recommendations for Field Crops–1979," an annual publication of Rutgers' Cooperative Extension Service, is being distributed to commercial field crops producers in Hunterdon.

This is a "production guide" for the commercial crop farmer, says C. G. Wettstein, Hunterdon agricultural Extension agent. The ultimate choice of the variety, herbicide, pesticide, equipment, fertilizer, and cultural practices is up to the individual grower. However, the publication lists recommendations that should aid the farmer in making many of his crop growing decisions.

A change in format this year, information on lime and fertilizer needs, varieties, weed, insect and disease control, are found under each specific crop. This should make the publication much easier to use, says the agent.

There is also a general section on cover crops, reduced tillage, choosing an herbicide, stored grain, insect control, and seeding rates and dates for field crops.

The information provided is based on research at Rutgers' Cook College, New Jersey's Land Grant College, and the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture. Experience and knowledge of growers and agriculturally related industry are also involved in compiling the recommendations.

Comparable publications have also been prepared by the Cooperative Extension Service for commercial growers of fruits and vegetables.

SALE MANAGER'S NOTE: The Bowen-Vale prefix is a wellknown name in the Holstein business. Their cattle have been very successful in the show-ring and always were good contenders at the state sales. The family is grown now, and after much thought they have decided to sell the entire herd, as many of the animals are owned by the children. Most of the herd will be fresh or close by saletime and there are several top show animals. Don't miss this opportunity for the Right Kind.

PURINA HIGH OCTANE COW CHOW 36

THE DAIRY SUPPLEMENT WITH "milk power"

WHAT GIVES PURINA Hi-O COW CHOW 36 IT'S "MILK POWER"?

Purina Dairy scientists have produced many outstanding Dairy rations through the years, but none offer a greater milk-making potential than Hi-O Cow Chow 36. This "super performing" supplement contains 36% protein. When mixed with grains according to Purina Research approved formulas it produces a "super" energy milking ration.

It is the unique scientific blending of a carefully calculated balance of proteins, minerals, vitamins and extra high energy milk-making ingredients that provides Hi-O Cow Chow 36 with its unusual power to produce extra milk.

Use Hi-O Cow Chow 36 for on-the-farm mixing or let your Purina dealer Check-R-Mix a Purina milking ration for you containing Hi-O Cow Chow 36. He has specific formulas to make a quality milking ration with the right protein level to fit your roughages and your herd.

Records show Hi-O Concentrate 36 not only increases milk production, but dairymen report significant increase in fat test.
